Standard Stock and Mining Exchange Make a Careful Survey of the Cobalt District.

It was scarcely daylight when the members of the Standard Stock members of the Standard Stock Exchange and a number of their friends going to Objait were out of their berths on Saturday morning to catch a glimpse of the Co-balt camp, which is now attracting such a world-wide reputation. As the train wended its way into the south end of the town necks were craned out from the steps of the sev-cral cars and exclamations of sur-prise at the first sight of the mining

The brokers had scarcely landed be-fore they were met by many of the important men of the sliver city and hurried up to the square, a busy thriv-ing thorofare, crowded at almost all hours of the day by miners, prospec-tors, capitalists and others who have the one interest at heart—that of mak-ing money. Shortly before noon on Saturday the party, which consisted of upwards of 70, were taken in vehicles first of all to the Temiskaming mine. This is the centre of the wonderful aggrega-tion of properties, now generally re-cognized as the Temiskaming group. Here, as at every other mine, which the brokers desired to see, a most open-hearted treatment was accorded, and in this as in other every instance the emperor considered this a misfor-tune for both and a danger to the civilized world. The emperor's ideal-istic thoughts, purposes and efforts often without reason have caused doubts to arise. We wish to avoid anything like the currying of favor abroad and anything appearing to savor of our insecurity or the running after of any one, but I quite under-stand the emperor's feedline aggregated stand the emperor's feeling aggrieved when attacked because of his zealous and honest efforts to bring about good relations with Great Britain.
