FEAR INSPECTORS WERE KILLED

Word has been received from Moncton that last night Liquor Inspector Coates and his son and Constable Beverly Coates went to St. Edward's, a place about six miles from Buctouche, to attend a wedding where it was suspected liquor would be found. About midnight Constable Coates returned to town badly injured and said that a fight had taken place between the inspector's party and a number of roughs at the wedding. In the fracas the attacking party demolished the car in which the officers had arrived on the scene and threatened to kill or drown them. When Constable Coates made his escape the other members of his party had been driven into the sea and were standing in water up to their necks. The constable fears the inspector and his son have been killed or drowned.

Britishers Win Again.

GRAIN PRICES DROPPING.

(Bangor Commercial.)

From the central west come reports of sharp breaks in the grain and provision markets, Chicago, Kansas City and St. Louis reporting reductions of 8 to 11 1-2 cents in wheat, 9 to 10 1-2 cents in corn, as well as a lesser drop in oats and $2 a barrel in pork.

These reductions are primarily the result of the steadily improving condition of the big crops which are certain to be much larger than was for a long time anticipated. The earlier fear of a decided food shortage has passed and the lessened acreage has been offset by the fine growing conditions that have prevailed. In Kansas there will be a wheat crop of some 147,000,000 bushels and other big grain states are almost equally fortunate. There are still the difficulties of transportation that must be overcome before the whole country shares in the advantage of the big western crops but these will probably ultimately yield to action and effort. However, the fact that there is a big supply of food in the country will have a reassuring effect that is certain to make itself felt on the market.

The corn crop promises to be enormous and this will surely bring about a reduction in memat prices, in spite of the fact that the supply of beef cattle has been decreasing. With feeds at lessened prices and farmers will raise more stock and a general improvement will come. Meat prices will continue to be high doubtless for some time to come, but lower than those that have been maintained for a long time. Milk and butter will remamin high but should graddually drop and the same is trure of poultry products.

Farmers very generally have been killing young stock and failing to raise poultry to their former extent, for they could not see returns in spite of the high prices obbtainable, due to the excessive cost of feeds. But with plenty of corn, wheat, and oats there must eventually come a change, although it is certain to be quite a period beyond its full effects are felt.

The scarcity of labor is still a difficulty for the farmers but is not proving so great a menace as was feared a few months ago. In the great grain states herculean efforts are being made to care for the crops everything else being held subservient.
