The home of S. H. Davis is happy today over the return of the second son, R. Wesley Davis, who arrived on the C. P. R., having come overseas on the Megantic. He enlisted with the Acadia College boys early in 1916 and went over with the Nova Scotia Highland Brigade as a signaller in the 21st Battalion. In England he was transferred to the 83rd Battalion, going to France in February, 1917. After a year and a half in France he was discharged from the Royal Air Force, successfully completing his course a little after the armistice was signed. Since then he says one desire filled the minds of the boys—Canada and home. He was one of the fortunate few who went through many hard places and came home without a scratch.

THROUGH TWO WARS AND SEVEN YEARS WITH N. W. MOUNTED POLICE

Sergeant James P. Ryan Given
Hearty Welcome Home Yesterday

After three years service in the South African war, seven years with the North West Mounted Police and more than four years in France and Belgium, Sergeant James P. Ryan, son of Patrick Ryan of this city, arrived home yesterday. Sergeant Ryan left home more than fourteen years ago, and his home coming yesterday was a joyous one for his family. He was met by his father and his brother, William M. Ryan, and driven to his home, where he was royally welcomed.

Sergeant Ryan resigned from the mounted police and enlisted for service overseas at the outbreak of the war. In the fall of 1914 he left Valcartier with the first Canadian contingent, and since that time had been on active service. Late in 1917 he was seriously wounded and sent to England where he remained in hospital for a few months. When convalescent he was appointed bombing instructor at Shoreham and remained in that position until the armistice was signed. He was at first attached to the seventh battalion, but was later transferred into the twelfth and again into the fourteenth. It was while attached to the last that he fell wounded during one of the big drives.

COAL SHORTAGE

Further Statement of Conditions
With Added Advice to Buy Now

That there will be a serious shortage of coal, particularly domestic sizes of anthracite, during the fall and winter, is the opinion of New York experts, according to an article published in the New York Sun recently, and a warning has been issued to householders by the National Coal Association to buy coal now.

According to the American government figures the shortage threatens to be about 25 per cent. Although this shortage is expected to hit the householders rather than the industries, it is figured that unless the production is greatly increased one industrial plant out of every eight in the United States will have to shut down this winter. One of the commissioners of the New York Coal Association has advised the people to order all the coal they can get, and take anything the dealer can give them. "If they can't get stove coal, take egg; if they can't get egg, take broken coal," he says.

The present scare is caused to a real extent by the fact that many of the European miners who remained in the United States while the war was on are now returning home. It is estimated that 40,000 foreign miners are leaving the United States this year and there are practically none coming in to fill their places. Another reason for the falling off in the supply is credited to the fact that last winter being mild, with the consequent lower consumption of coal, many of the mines were shut down early, and owners have since been unable to get their working organizations together. Speaking of the coal situation yesterday, a local dealer said that the shortage in the United States would greatly affect the supply in Canada. He had just returned from New York and had experienced great difficulty in getting any quantity of hard coal and he was given to understand that there was not much prospect for an improvement in the condition of affairs. He said that the warning to "buy now" was a timely one.

PREMIER FOSTER AND THE LIBERAL PARTY

In connection with a remark made by J. A. Barry at last night's meeting in the Moose Hall that there is no provincial Liberal organization, E. S. Carter said to the Times-Star this morning that Mr. Barry was misinformed. Mr. Carter points out that a Liberal convention was held in this city on January 11, 1916, and a platform adopted, and E. A. Smith of Westmorland elected president. W. E. Foster was elected chairman of the campaign committee and was later chosen as provincial leader of the party. At that time, Mr. Carter points out, not only Mr. Barry but John O'Brien and Dr. Broderick were supporting Mr. Baxter and the Conservative party. In his view, they should therefore not today appear as harsh critics of the Liberalism of Premier Foster, or those for whom he speaks in his capacity as the New Brunswick member of the National Liberal Committee.
