

ROWING

It is easy to glide Adown the
To flow with the Like music
But ah! it takes Against its
And we must
When rowing

We may float
While our
And visions of
On our daze
We forget that
The dashing
And, while we
Its waters

But few—ah,
Row up the
They struggle
And mind
Though wear
Singing true
For Christ is
When rowing

Far on, though
Like a mist
They see the
With its bay
Seen through
They almost
But faith thrives
When dawning

And shall we
Who mind
Shall we mind
When we
Or shall we
With death
While our
Is rowing

A certain degree
to have been allotted
of human
shalt thou eat thy
has proved a blessing favored few, who are exempted from
to be thankful for servation of this
say, that the industry
gave them nothing
one of the great
ral, be gratuitous
well observed, the
sary of human life
equally cheap and
more reason to brutes, for the
than philosophy
And the facts seen
countries, where
the least; and we shall find the utility
It is the energy
of the intellect;
it is not, all is lation. People
imagine that it
lusive to the
the wear and tear
an idle notion, and
those who enter
who knows its
compare the extent
that of an active
cases the subject
fitter to undergo one thing I believe
spent by energy
ness at worst, even
it is superior to
may fall into it
ation from first
but even this view
favourable enough

The fact is,
energy any more
on the copitrary
the most work,
inward-working
energy, the inner
of the body is
no vigence; the
vital; without it
into corruption,
have life. But it may be so, but
The gainsayer
thing from the truth.

Blank pages in original issues.