Sunshine grates have maximum strength

Sunshine Furnace has four triangular grate bars, each having three distinct sides. In the single-piece and two-piece grate no such-like provision is made for expansion or contraction, and a waste of coal always follows a shaking.

On the left- and right-hand sides are corner pins, which when loosened permit the grates to slide out. These four grate bars are made of heavy cast iron, and are finished up with building teeth. The teeth will grind up the toughest clinker, and because the grates are made in sections, not only can nothing but dust and ashes pass through, but after each shaking a different side can be presented to the fire. Also, with the Sunshine grate there is no back-breaking movements attached to the shaking. By gently rocking the lever, first on the left and then on the right, the ashes are released on both sides, and fall through into the pan.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is a bad system of food is the cause of it. We find of dyspepsia, flatulence, and indigestion as well as headache, nervousness, and a certain degree of general debility.

It was the first of the troubles that led to the creation of that new and popular remedy, Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Getting directed to the stomach, which is the seat of the trouble, and highly vital principle, and the result is a complete cure. It is the most powerful, and most reliable, and most effective medicine ever discovered. It is the only one that will cure the most stubborn cases of indigestion, and it is the only one that will cure the most stubborn cases of indigestion.

Stops Hair Falling

Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, will certainly stop falling of the hair. Indeed, we believe it will always do this unless there is some disturbance of the general health.
Then a constitutional medicine may be necessary. Consult your physician about this.

Do not change the color of the hair.

Formulas with each bottle show it to your doctor. Ask him about it.
Ask him about it.

Ayer's

The reason why Ayer's Hair Vigor stops falling hair is because it first destroys the germs which cause this trouble. After this is done, nature brings about a full recovery, restoring the hair and scalp to a perfectly healthy condition.

A L'Outrance.

Turning to face his foe,
The knight holds his lance at rest, Now, steady, good lance! and so you will find the heart in his breast.

"Dark knight, of foes the first No quarter I give more take;
My lance's terrible thrust, There's naught but your blood can stake."

"I know you-as strong as hold, But hold you awhile at bay,
The one of us dies the maid,
And the other sides on his way."

"Ho! the clang of the steel!
Clear through his armor it thrust!
He sees his spear and meet-His worst enemy bites the dust."

"From 'neath the darkening skies, What ricks he of lance or spear!
The one of us dies the maid,
The other sides on his way!"

Cooperator in the fight, He swings his sword again-A gleam in the noblest knight, Because it is he that it is slain.

6 Yrs. a Victim of Itching Piles

In dreadful agony day and night—
DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

Mr. G. W. Cornell, who is with the Shaw Milling Co., St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "It is justice to suffering humanity I write to tell you of the world of good I obtained from the use of Dr.
Chase's Ointment. For about six years I was a victim of itching and protruding piles, and was in dreadful agony day and night. Doctors were unable to help me, and I could get nothing to relieve the suffering. I was about to give up when I was told that I was to be cured by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. I bought a box, and it was found on the face of the earth."

"One day my druggist advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, which I did, and obtained relief from the first box, and complete cure with the second.
My trouble was caused by heavy lifting, and I consider that Dr. Chase's Ointment was the most satisfactory remedy for itching, bleeding and protruding piles that was ever discovered. 50 cts. a box, all dealers, or Elmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto."

Olivia's handwriting. It had lain there for days unopened. He had vowed in the hardness of his heart to refuse all communication with the child who had deserted him; but now he looked up Olivia's letter, and slowly broke the seal. So much had happened that was contrary to his will, that it seemed of little consequence if he once more obeyed his impulse rather than his habit. So he broke the seal.

The letter bore no address and was very brief.

"Dear Father," it read,—"If you should come back to me in love and honor, would you refuse him what he asks, and be true to me?
I will not, cannot, come to you, till you say 'come.' Will you say the word? He has been ill; he is now well, and his one desire is reconciliation with you. For myself I ask nothing. Do with me as you please; I plead not for myself, but for Robert.
To-morrow I shall be once more in New York, and will await your reply at Dr. Gaunt's house in Washington Square."

Your child, OLIVIA.

He looked at the date upon the envelope. It was a week old. So then his children had come to New York, they had waited no doubt for some sign from him, and all the time their plea for kindness had lain upon his desk unread. 'Robert is alive and well'—yes, and he loved Robert. He knew it now. The old affection, the old pride in his boy, the old hopes that he had cherished for his success in life, all those feelings that had once been his delight returned upon him now in torturing vengeance. Once more he had let occasion slip, he had failed to know the hour of his visitation, he had mismanaged his life with a folly truly tragic. He had lost his boy once through harshness which he no longer justified, he had lost him a second time through mere obstinacy.
Vaguely he became conscious of something that defied human calculation in these happenings. He heard over him the dark wings of fate beating the expectant air, he felt round him the fast-closing web of destiny.
And yet, as these phrases flashed through his mind, he knew that they were false. Destiny, fate—these could not explain the paradox of his conduct. What could it be?

"Very well," said Stoneycroft cheerfully. "That's understood. I'll call for you this evening about six o'clock, if that will do."

"That will do," said Jordan.

Jordan sat silent a long time after Stoneycroft left. His dominant feeling was a sense of overwhelming surprise at his own conduct. He had expected Stoneycroft's visit; he had intended to make it the occasion of lifelong controversy. On the contrary, he had capitulated without a struggle.
More than this; he had exposed his own heart in a way which seemed irreversible. It was possible that these were the acts of Robert Jordan, that taciturn, reticent Jordan, who had always put a severe restraint upon his inner feeling, who had never even to his wife or child made a full exposé of his own soul. And he had done this to a man whom he had never before even regarded as an intimate friend. He, whose every act had been the fruit of calculation, had allowed himself to be mastered by an impulse of confession, wholly foreign to all his previous instincts. And yet he was conscious of a sense of relief, as of a burden lifted from his back. What did it all mean? Another might have told him, but as yet he had no vision to discern the truth that what he was experiencing was the birth of humility. His egotism was upon the cross, and through all the cruel anguish a soft voice whispered, "Lord, it is good for me to be here."

It was as though a city had fallen, leaving erect a single bell-tower, which rang out to the awful sound of the thrilling Angelus—a high note of mysterious consolation amid disastrous ruin.

A letter lay upon his desk in Stoneycroft's handwriting. It had lain there for days unopened. He had vowed in the hardness of his heart to refuse all communication with the child who had deserted him; but now he looked up Olivia's letter, and slowly broke the seal. So much had happened that was contrary to his will,

HOW WEAK GIRLS MAY GROW INTO STRONG WOMEN.

The words sent a pang through Jordan's heart, for he remembered that it was this very sisterhood that Olivia had joined. For the first time he realized what her life must mean, a life of self-denial and hard toil, and even of peril, amid scenes of misery and degradation.

At last they stopped before a plain and dingy building. It had been a dance-hall, as the half-effaced sign declared. People were passing into it by twos and threes; some of them more with a furtive and half retained air. Stoneycroft and Jordan entered, taking seats in the darkest corner they could find, from which they could be observers without being observed. Presently a group of half a dozen women, all dressed alike in black, as the half-effaced sign declared. People were passing into it
declared.

Healthy girlhood is the only path to healthy womanhood. The merging of girlhood into womanhood lays a new tax upon the blood. It is the overtaxing of the scanty blood supply from all these headaches, backaches and siccities—all that paleness, weakness and weariness—all that languor, despondency and constant ill health.

Unhealthy girlhood is bound to lead to unhealthy womanhood and a life of misery. Nothing but the blood building qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can save a girl when she undertakes the trials and tasks of womanhood. That is the time when nature makes new demands upon the blood supply. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new, rich blood which meets those demands with ease. In this simple scientific way Dr. Williams' Pink Pills fill a girl with overflowing health and strength.

Miss Eva Tombs, Amberst, N. S., says:—"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done me a world of good. I was completely run down, was very pale, easily tired and suffered from frequent severe headaches. Though I tried many medicines I got nothing to do me the least good until I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.
Even the first box of these seemed to help me, and after taking a half dozen boxes I was again a strong, healthy girl. I should not again feel run down. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be my only medicine, and I strongly recommend them to every weak and ailing girl."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Swearing Boys.

It is regrettable that profanity has become common among boys. It is not in the least out of the ordinary to hear a group of boys of 10 to 15 years when together upon the streets or in any place to play a game of ball, to hear them using oaths that might suit the tongues of the proverbial fishwife or costermonger, but which are shocking falling from the tongues of children of tender years.
Of all stupid and silly vices, profanity is one of the worst and most abominable. A simple statement of fact is much stronger than any statement embellished with swear words, and no lie is made any the more believable by being framed in profanity.
Profanity among men seems to be growing less and less, at least in public places and among those who may lay claim to decency and some education.

But the habit seems to have firmly fixed itself upon a great many of the boys, who imagine it manly to use profanity and smoke cigarettes.

A man who lives in an apartment house says it takes a pretty good cook to successfully roast a janitor.

It takes more than sharp angles to prove that a man lives a square life.

MORE DEADLY THAN CANCER.

It is said on high authority, that cancer causes only 30 deaths in every thousand deaths, while indigestion causes, directly or indirectly, fully one-half of all the deaths in this country. Indigestion starves the body, weakens the nerves, poisons the blood and in short, reduces the life-power and vigor in its victims.
You need not fear indigestion, if you take after meals a dose of the famous digestive tonic, Mother Seigel's Syrup. It is made wholly from herbs, and corrects the disordered stomach. "We have used Mother Seigel's Syrup for years and always keep it in the house. As a stomach medicine we recommend it very highly."
It always keeps us healthy and well."

And then, while he thus stood, thrilled and excited, from this same dim spot under the gallery, a man rose and began to speak in a low clear voice, and with the unmistakeable accent of culture. Jordan's face became deadly pale. It seemed as though a great wave had passed over him, blinding and bewildering him; and through this obliterating haze the voice reached him in smatches. "I was a wanderer—a prodigal—I have come home"—so the phrases of the speaker reached him. And then in an instant, the wave passed, and he knew the voice.

"Oh, my boy, my boy!" he cried.
It was all that he could say. He would have fallen had not Stoneycroft put his arm around him. In another moment, other arms were about his neck. The shy grey figure was by his side, the long lost son had found his father.
