ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA.

[The following poem was written by General Robert H. Lytle. At the time of its publication it had wide currency on its merits, and the gallant author's death at the head of his brigade in the Federal army, on the disastrous field of Chickamauga, created a new interest for it. Since then it has been almost forgotten, but to us it seems not unworthy to follow the verses on the same subject that have preceded it in these columns.]

I am dying, Egypt, dying!
Ebbs the crimson life-tide fast,
And the dark Plutonian shadows
Gather on the evening blast.
Let thine arm, O Queen, support me!
Hush thy sobs and bow thine ear!
Hearken to the great heart-secrets
Thou, and thou alone, must hear.

Though my scarred and veteran legions
Rear their eagles high no more,
And my wreeked and acattered galleys
Strew dark Actium's fatal shore;
Though no glittering guards surround me,
Prompt to do their master's will.
I must perish like a Roman—
Die the great Triumvir still!

Let not Cæsar's servile minions
Mock the lion thus laid low;
'Twas ne foeman's arm that felled him—
'Twas his own that dealt the blow—
His who, pillowed on thy bosom,
Turned aside from glory's ray—
His who, drunk with thy caresses,
Madly threw a world away.

Should the base, plebeian rabble
Dare assail my fame at Rome.
Where my noble spouse, Octavia,
Weeps within her widowed home.
Seek her! Say the gods have told me—
Altars, augers, circling wings—
That her blood, with mine commingled,
Yet shall mount the throne of kings!

As for thee, star-eyed Egyptian!
Glorious sorceress of the Nile!
Light the path to Stygian horrors
With the splendours of thy smile.
Give to Cæsar crowns and arches,
Let his brow the laurel twine.
I can scorn the Senate s triumphs,
Triumphing in love like thine.

I am dying, Egypt, dying!

Hark! the insulting foeman's cry!
They are coming! Quick. my falchion!
Let me front them ere I die.
Ah! no more amid the battle
Shall my heart exulting swell;
Isis and Osiris guard thee—
Cleopatra—Rome—farewell!
