boile of the best planks in our lumber yard and to encroach on our territory. But it has introduced so much questionable timber that we are afraid we must withdraw a commendation too rashly bestowed. If the Mail would now have our opinion it is this: that its articles suggest sore head on the part of two individuals, one as to his pocket, another as to his political aspirations, while a third and brainy gentleman turns the handle of the organ—we beg pardon, instrument—to his great and hearty amusement.

The Coming Election.

An election is at hand, and The World proposes to state the main features of the issue before the people.

On one side, we have the Reform party headed by Mr. Blake, assisted by Mr. Mowat thing except a parliament on College Green.

headed by Mr. Blake, assisted by Mr. Mowat in Ontario, Mr. Mercier in Quebec and Mr. Fielding in Nova Scotia, degenerated into a party of dismtegration and despair. They are seeking office at Ottawa, and they are reseking office at Ottawa, and they are seeking office at Ottawa, and they are dices of race in order to attain to power; has see dices of race in order to attain to power; has see up the claim that a French Canadian rebel is above the law and not to be executed though by the law condemned. Mr. Fielding in Nova Scotia has hoisted the flag of secession before the people of the Maritime provinces. In Output of the people of the Maritime provinces. In Output of the people of the Maritime provinces. In Output of the people of the Maritime provinces. In Output of the people of the Maritime provinces. In Output of the people of the Maritime provinces. In Output of the people of the Maritime provinces. In Output of the people of the Maritime provinces. In Output of the people of the Maritime provinces, in the will set out wish the proposition that from its earliest days his church has ever been the real friend of the poor. Following the argument based thereupon will be a defence of private property in land. Of nourse, the authority of the church in matters of faith and morals will be asserted, and a renewal the patriotism and all the purity elaimed for them by the papers friendly to their success.

On the other side, and now appealing to the country, for re-endorsement, is the country, for re-endorsement, is the country. Its record the Conservative party. to its charge. But it has had a policy and a leader of wonderful fertility and invention, a man who may have stooped to win support for man who may have stooped to win support for causes and ends that were patrictic and statesmanlike. We neither excuse nor accuse in the premises. But Sir John Macdonald and his party have acted in the main and his party have acted in the main for the course and for the prople of Causda. for the country and for the people of Canada. His party has sought to bind the provinces together, to unite diversified peoples into one, to develop home industries, to make the of the Empire. They have maintained the principle that there is but one law in this and for all, irrespective of race or creed. The Conservative party has never sought to vary the articles of confederation, but has always nsisted on their interpretation being such as o secure to the various contracting parties all the rights and privileges therein set forth. in creating a national sentiment, in develop-disposed so as to endourage marker to make Canadians to build up new industries, to make Canadian sufficient for themselves and for the future.

The Globe and Mr. Blake have got it into their heads that "political purity" is what the Canadian people are most concerned about. But they are interested in other things as well, notably the development of the country, the creation of a national sentiment, in a word, they are looking for Union and Progress. And when the question is asked of Mr. Blake what he has to offer in this direction we are afraid the answer will not be a satisfactory one, and the people will have to go elsewhere.

to the country, for re-endorsement, is the Conservative party. Its record will not beer scrutiny in some of its details as it has among its adherents men of shady repute, and among even its leading lights men of grasping propensities. Moreover, it has many errors both of omission and commission to its charge. But it has had a relieve and a time.

The progress that Ganada has made since 1866 in creating a national sentiment, in developing her great resources, in opening up new country, in proving her right to the first position among the outlying sections, of the Empre, has been of a satisfactory character. We are going ahead rapidly and well, not withstanding the croakers.

Again, on the great issue between Free Trade and Protection the Reformers are also astray. Mr. Blake does not believe in encouraging home manufactures, and the Globe newspaper teaches his followers Free Trade after the Manchester school. Mr. Blake and the Globe would have this country only pastoral and agricultural, a consuming ground for foreign-made goods. The great body of our people have twice declared otherwise. They are willing that their taxation should be disposed so as to encourage native productions, to build up new industries, to make Canadians, sufficient for themselves and for the future.
