

Hey! Why not join the ski team

By IVAN

Everybody in Canada is aware of the successes of the National Ski team. The names of Steve Podborski, Ken Read, Gerry Sorøson, Laurie Graham and Tod Brooker have become as familiar these last few years as that of your favorite brew.

Although it has had little publicity, UNB does indeed have a ski team. And yes, they're OK. They participate in the N.B. Cup circuit; a regional set of slalom and giant slalom races held under the auspices of the CSA and the N.B. ski association. This year, four different meets were held; two in Campbellton, one in Sussex and the final one in Edmundston.

UNB Ski Club racers compete as a team for overall team points which count towards the NB Cup. As well, individuals vie for individual titles in the same manner as World Cup races.

After a very close struggle throughout the season between UNB, St. John and Edmundston, the final races at Mt. Farlagne resulted in St. John edging out UNB by only 4 points for the NB cup.

Leafing through last Friday's edition of the Brunswickan at my usual torrid pace I failed to read the column by Nick the Greek.

After attending my classes I felt that since it was Friday afternoon, I would get myself highly motivated to conquer a fierce enemy, one who gives no sympathy, throws lightning fast manœuvres at you and continually says "Condition Red." Yes, I speak of the dreaded "Blackout" machine in the SUB game room. Little did I know that my fiercest competitor was waiting in the wings.

While having one of my better "Blackout" games, reaching upwards of 350,000 points on my last ball, I was affronted by my informant who gave me word of the challenge. His words assaulted me like bricks. I was challenged by one of the most dedicated sports writers in the history of the Brunswickan, Nick the Greek (although I still believe that Nick the Greek would be a better pen name.)

Individually, Patsy Dawson wrapped up the women's senior cup after a 1st in the slalom and a 3rd in the GS at Edmundston. In the same races Doug Johnson got 1st in the slalom and 2nd in the GS in the men's senior A division.

But there's more to it than racing. Someone once said when skiing becomes more trouble than it is fun, then it's time to quit. It would not be presumptuous to say that the people skiing for UNB have no intentions of quitting. Is ski racing the reason for savage road trips to such "exotic" destinations as Campbellton or Sussex, or merely the excuse? Who could forget the 'seriousness' of ski tuning the night before or the training session at the Arms. Or Doug Johnson in the starting gate uttering his famous "Have a good run guys." And especially Dave Jusnierczyk's rendition of the Stones' 'Angie' (as well as various assorted rugby songs). All in all it made for some finest kind adventures and provided fond memories for everyone (However expensive they may be Steve).

This year's UNB Ski club

Nick, had offered me space in the Brunswickan as a punishment for making a mockery of his interesting little column and his unique writing style. Nick believed that since he worked for three newspapers his image had been unduly violated when I frankly informed him that he had no journalistic ability whatsoever. With that intro let me reveal my story.

What constitutes a good sports writer?

Every good reporter realizes that a story must be factually correct. It cannot contain inaccuracies or personal opinion. It must be objective and relate only the events that actually took place. This is especially true of sports writers because it is their objective to give a clear, concise analysis of the proceedings.

Failure to do so could mean a loss in credibility and readers, a fate worse than death to a serious reporter. The reporter must also not lose sight of the fact that he is there to entertain and he must exemplify this in his writing style.

representatives were Sheila 'giggles/chuckles' Pollack, Patsy Dawson, Roland 'I know a song' Roy, Tim 'sleep on the floor' Leitch, Dave 'Angie' Kusnierczyk, David 'DNF' Stevens, "loud" Steven Stewart Doug Johnson, and last and certainly least, Brent Bethune.

These people may not have the publicity of the Red Raiders or the Red Devils, but they certainly know what and who they are. (And maybe so will everybody else - for better or for worse - after the Can Am.)

If you're interested in doing some skiing next year, more Intramurals dumped Flo's Sure Shooters by a final score of 46 - 18. The other game had McLeod beating River Blues in a well played match.

The result was the Dunn Dunkers against the Razzamatazzers in the Championship game. It was a well fought, close battle with the Razzamatazzers emerging on top by a 24 - 23 margin. members of the Championship team include: Joy Dow, Lori Delong, Wendy Colwell, Pam Price, Sue Collings, Kim Graham, Laurie Carten, Joan Donovan, Susan Fulton, Sue Woods, and Ellen Jarvis. Congratulations to you all and the Dunn Dunkers!

The Consolation Game featured the Forestry Dribblers against the tough and making some new friends, contact anyone of these people and they'll steer you in the right direction.

Finally, the ski club would like to thank Shirley Cleave for her support throughout the season.

May the summer be short and sweet and full of bad crazyness.

CS hockey team over all

All non-believers take note. Computer Science triumphed over all. Yes, that's the name to remember, C.S. which is known by our loyal fans (50 in all) as "Orange Juice" for team spirit. Not one but three team scorers, Robin Allen, Danny McKay and Kevin Stewart scored with help from the other C.S. team members and defeated Survey Engineering in a 3-2 victory. Maybe you didn't know that C.S. was for real... but you sure know now. A valiant show by Lloyd Lewis, who had 5 shutouts throughout the year.

Karl, you pulled it off even though you didn't have a suit and tie on! Francine, you can be our watergirl anyday! SPECIAL THANKS
