Dear Senator Meighen:

I called a few days ago, but your secretary informed me you were engaged. Doubtless you had forgotten meeting me, as it was during your term as Premier.

Having just arrived back from over a year spent in the old country, I find that the newly formed National Conservative party is receiving quite a little attention in the press.

It is in this connection that I am desirous of enlisting your interest on behalf of my cousin, Mr. J. J. Francis Walker.

Just here I would like to discuss for a moment Mr. Walker's background. He is a native of Liverpool, England, but went as a boy with his parents to the United States. He is an alumnus of Yale University. He has always retained strong British feelings, which were indicated during the war when he enlisted with the Canadians as a private. Though he could have obtained a commission in the
