How Much Salt in the Sea?

How Much Salt in the Sea?

At first it strikes one as strange that, although the sea must originally have been formed of distilled water—that is, congealed watery vapor—and though all the rivers that flow into it estimated to amount in the aggregate to 6,500 cubic miles of water every year, are fed exclusively by rainfall, which is also distilled water, it should nevertheless be extremely brackish, very salt indeed in the Tropics, and less sait at the Poles.

Yet it is chiefly the rivers that account for the saltness of the sea. It is estimated that they carry something like 100,000,000 tons of saline matter into the ocean every year, and, furstino the proposition of the saltness of the seat to a depth of 400 feet.

It is believed that 90,000,000 years have been required for the sea to attein its present saltness.

Wondrous indeed is the virtue of a good book.

HEALTH EDUCATION

BY DR. J. J. MIDDLETON

Eye fatigue is an important subject for discussion. A large percentage of the people of this province are unawaro of the dangers to their eyesight that result from fatigue. We have only one pair of eyes—that is, those of us who are blessed with normal vision, and the eyes we have are the only ones we ever will have. It is most important therefore that we try to preserve our sight as much as possible and not subject it to any unnecessary strain. For a long time it was thought that strain on the eyes only applied to students. Scarcely anybody suffered from eye headaches except the booksworms. Now we find that many other classes of people are affected with eye strain. Take the farmer plowing his furrow, who looks steadily at the ground hour after hour trying to keep in a straight line and trying not to "bit off" too much or too little earth at each roll of the sod. To do this he keeps his eye muscles in the same state of contraction all day long. When in the fading light, thereby increasing the strain to which he has been subjected all day. His muscles get tired, his nerves get tired, his brain gets tired and then when he goes home he often subjects his eyes to further strain by doing chores about the house or barn or reading the paper in imperfect light.

A recruit wearing fourteens in boots was enlisted in the Irish Free State army. One night he was included in a rounding-up party, and when the roll was called afterward he was absent. "Has anyone seen Jeweil?" asked the sergeant.

"Sir,' said a voice, "he's gone up to the cross-roads to turn round!"

EASY TRICKS

With Three Dice

Many of the best tricks are performed by utilizing facts about which few people are informed. An effective little trick with dice owes its mystery to the fact that very few persons, even those who are familiar with dice, really know how the spots are arranged.

Ask a person to throw three dice while you stand with your back to the table. Ask him to add the number of spots thrown—the total of the spots on the upper faces of the three dice. Then ask him to turn each die upside down and add to the total of the spots on the top of the dice, the total of the spots which are underneath.

Ask him to concentrate on the number. After an appearance of concentration yourself, tell him that the total is 21. You will be right.
