SUMMER DIARRHOEA IN INFANTS.
Hundreds of infants die during the summer from diahnoes and suckness which may, with proper care, be prevented, but cannot always be cured. If mothers will read carefully and carry out the following instructions, they may hope to save their infants from dying of these complaints.

Diarrhoea and sickness is much more common in bottle-fed than in breast-fed hables therefore mothers should always aurse

Diarrhose and sickness is much more common in bottle-fed than in breast-fed bables, therefore mothers should always aurse infants when possible for eight or nine

But infants should not be weaned just before or during the hot weather.

TO PREVENT DIARRHOEA IN BREAST-FED BABIES.

Nurse the bay regularly, not every time it cries.

Give the baby nothing but the breast milk which is its food.

Bables are thirsty as well as adults. Relieve this thirst by giving cold boiled water on no account give babies fruit, ice cream, ried fish, or bits from their mother's plate. To strengthen herself, the mother should ke milk and plain food, not beer or stout spirits.

To strengthen nerseit, the mother should take milk and plain food, not beer or stout or spirits.

Nursing mothers should avoid overwork and fatigue, and should remember that working and quarrelling may spoil their milk and give the baby diarrhoes.

In summer any dirt entering the mouth may produce diarrhoes. Therefore do not let babies such dirty soothers, nipples, comforters or thumbs.

In every hot weather diminish the amount of cow's milk given before the baby gets lil.—BOTTLE-FED BABIES.

In every hot weather diminish the amount of cow's milk given before the baby gets lil. Make up the quantity usually taken by sidding boiled water.

Summer diarrhoea in infants is chiefly due to bad and tainted milk and dirty feeding bottles, and not to teething.

Buy the milk twice a day—not once only—and get the best cow's milk you cas, as chesp milk is always dangerous.

Scald or boil it at once for one or two minutes.

Then place it in a covered vessel in a basin of cold water and keep it cool. The milk must be covered over to prevent the thust and flies from reaching it.

Always taste the milk, in a spoon, before butting into the bottle to see that it has not turned sour. Do not put the nipples into your own mouth at all.

Do not keep any milk left in the bottle for the infant's next meal. Use it fow yourself or the rest of the family.

The bottle should be boat shaped, with an India rubber nipple, but no long rubber and cleaned with a bottle brush which should.

the bottle should be scalded out after use, and cleaned with a bottle brush, which should be boiled immediately before using.

After each feed the nipple should be turned inside out and washed, and kept with the bottle in cold water.

Inside out and washed, and kept with the bottle in cold water.

Good milk is often spieled by dirty bottles. When fresh cow's milk cannot be obtained, or the milk has turned sour, use the best unsweetened condensed milk.

Get small tins, as after the tin is opened the milk wil soon go bad.

Cover an open tin with clean muslin or butter cloth to protect it from dust and files, and keep in a cool place.

In any case of sudden dirrahoea or vomiting stop the milk at once, give only plain water or egg. water, (the white of a fresh egg dissolved in a glassful of cold boiled water), and take the baby to a doctor without delay.

In hot weather do not keep bones, stale vegetables or fruit and other rubbish for the dust-bin in the room or house. Burn as much of the rubbish as possible. Rubbish breeds flies, and flies poison the food that they settle on and illness results.

New System of Making Wine.

Wine germs, which make it possible to duplicate the famous wines of Bordeaux, Burgundy or the Rhine, are among the latest experiments of scientists. The germs are obtained from the dregs of casks which have contained genuine old wine, and those for each particular brand are placed for safe keeping in a sub-stance prepared from Japanese isinglass and fruit juice. In the jellylike mass the germs soon establish a colony. When needed, sufficient germs may be placed in a tube of sterilized fruit juice. After two or three days the juice will be in full fermentation, with plentiful effervescence. This process is said to impart to the wine the exact bouquet and char-acteristics of the wine from which the erms originally came.

Life in Dawson.

The ubitquitous servant question bob up in Dawson in the shape of unskilled labor at high prices, and the family which is fortunate enough to possess a cook pays well for her services—$60 to $70 a month. This includes board and lodging. A woman who comes in to pre-pare dinner and set the house in order receives $35 a month, while the ordinary scrub woman commands $3 a day. Keepscrub woman commands and a winder is another expensive necessity. Wood is used for fuel, and last winter it cost a housekeeper of my acquaintance $67 to heat her six-room cottage for one month.

There is no place in the world which has a wider range of temperature than Dawson. In winter the mercury drops to 60 and 70 degrees below zero and the ordinary thermometer goes out of busi ness and a spirit instrument is used to register the degrees of cold. In mid-sum mer it sometimes becomes so warm that the sluice boxes at the mines are worked at night, which is always cool, instead of during the day. This way only instead of at night, which is always cool, instead of during the day. This can easily be done, as throughout the summer the sun comes up before 3 o'clock in the morning and goes out of sight after 10 o'clock in the evening. The red glow remains all night and one may read a newspaper by a window at midnight.

They are, however, without shadows and are rather lifeless for reproduction. The checchaco—the Indian word for newcomer and the popular term for tenderfoot—finds it difficult to go to sleep on account of the light, and for the light and the light and ligh some unevxplainable reason the hotels use white curtains. This is reversed in winter and during December and January there are only three hours of day-light each day.—Leelie's Weekly.

The two Jesuit provinces in this country have just named the delegates who are to take part in the election, of a new General foo, the order, which is to be held in September. Two Provincials, the Very Rev. Jesush P. Hannelmann of the New York-Jesush P. Hannelmann of the New York-Jesush P. Hannelmann of the New York-Maryland province, and the Very Rev. Henry Moeller of the Missouri province will take post in the election by rights accorded to their bositions. The Provincial of every Jesuit province of the General, and each province is entitled to two additional votes. The other American delegates are, from the New York-Maryland province, and Rev. William O'-Brien Pardow and the Rev. Thomas J. Gannon, and from the Missiouri province, the Rev. Joseph Grimmelsman and the Rev. W. R. Rogers.

The meeting of the Jesuit General is the Roman Catholic Church next to the conclave which elects a Pepe, for, the Beston Transcript explains, the Jesuit General is elected for life and enjoys a position second in importance only to that of the pontiff. He usually is understeed to wield much influence with the Pope, and for years it has been customary to speak of the General of this great order as the "Black Pope," the first word referring to the sombre garb which he wears, as distinguished from the white garments of the Pope, and the second to his great power and influence in the Church. It is generally believed that the congressition of next month will be held in or near Rome; but the place of meeting place secret, which is said not to be known, as yet, even to the delegates. It has always been the custom to keep the meeting place secret, and it is said that sometimes the election has taken place The late General of the order. Father Martin, who died in April, was elected in 1892 at a congregation thad it held to be no sure indication that the congregation will be held in that city, as the members of the order may be there instructed to go somewhere else, even outside of Italy.

large for it. Of course, people talk about that horse, and Mr. Stingiman doesn't like it. The other week, for instance, congregation will be near in that city, as the members of the order may be there instructed to go somewhere else, even outside of Italy.

Besides the Provincial and the two delegates from each province those having a vote in the election of the new General are the five "assistants" of the new General are the five "assistants" of the order, Father Roger Freddi, who was appointed by the late General to administer its affairs until the congregation shall be held. In Catholic circles both in this country and in Rome it is held to be possible that an American may be chosen General, and the name of Father Rudolph Meyer has been mentioned in this connection. Father Meyer is prominent in the order and has been resident in Rome for many years, connected with the German college there.

About one hundred will attend the congregation and the election of the General requires a majority of two-thirds. It is believed by those samiliar with Jesuit affairs that there is little or me likilhood that the new General will be of Italian birth, for the reason that the interests of the order are much greater outside of Italy than in it. The last six Generals were not Italian. The last six Generals were not Italian. The last six Generals were not Italian. The last father Martin was a Spanlard. It is because the interests of the order have so greatly increased in this country in the last decade that knowing once look for the election of an American.

The headquarters of the order have been for years at Friesole, near Florence, which was the official residence of the "Black Pope." The last General, however, resided for most of the time in Rome, and recently the immense quarters formerly held by the Augustinian order in the Ludovisi neighborhood in Rome have been purchased by the Jesuits, and here will be the headquarters of the order in the Ludovisi neighborhood in Rome have been purchased by the Jesuits, and here will be the headquarters of the order in the Ludovisi neighborhood in Rome have been purchased by the like it. How Chicago Boomers Figure the Increase of People of That City. It would not be strange if the casual reader should become somewhat confused by the estimates on Chicago's popula-tion. We start with the census figure for 1900, which was 1,698,575. The increase over 1890 was 54.4 per cent.
Next there is a government estimate for 1903, which is 1,873,880. The increase is 175,305, or slightly more than 10 per

The following year, 1904, there is a school census that tells a story of arrested development and decline. Chicago's population is only 1,714,144, or 159,736 less than it was in 1903. There is no increase worth speaking of in the four years since 1900. our years since 1900.

In the same year, however, there is a directory estimate of 2,272,760, and the difference between the two is 282,010. Finally there is the directory estimate just out. (Sheridan, Ore., News-Sun.)

Yesterday we were saked if we ever saw a baldbeaded woman. We answered, "No," we never did, nor did we ever see a woman with a cigar in her teeth and running into every saloon she saw. We have never seen a woman go fishing with a bottle in her pocket, sit on the damp ground all day and come home drunk af night. Nor have we ever seen a woman yank off her coat and say she could lick any man in town.

The publisher's estimate of the popula tion is not determined by using an art trary multiple—that is multiplying the number of names in the directory by 31-2, 4, 41-2, or some other figure; it is based on the United States census. We take as a basis the number of names in the directory in a census year, and in succeeding years increase our estimate of the population at the same ratio in which the names in the directory increase, and we find it makes the result almost as accurate as the enumeration of each individual.

A question of some importance, how-ever, is which census is used, and we be-lieve that the publishers adopted the lieve that the publishers adopted the plan some years ago of going back to the census of 1800. This was because of the general belief that the census of 1900 did Chicago a great injustice. If it were to be accepted we should have to admit frankly that the increase since 1900 that is indicated by the estimate is very improbable. It amounts to more than 35 per cent., or in exact numbers to 601,925. This is just about equal to the increase in New York as that is indicated by the recent State census. But New York had 3,437,202 people to begin with, and Chicago only 1,698,575. begin with, and Chicago only 1,698,575. All the figures, except that of the school "No. Why is it?"

Newspaper men in general, and the younger men in the profession in particular, will be interested and profited by reading an article on The Independent Press; Its Opportunities and Duties, which appears in the North American Review for July, the writer being Mr. Samuel Bowles, editor of the Springfield Republican. His conception of what a true journalist should be and what a genuine and self-respecting journalist genuine and sear-respecting journalist should stand for in every community are admirably expressed in these words: "The journalist has one client, one patient, one flock—that is to say, the whole community; and nothing should stond in the way of his single-handed and devoted service of that one interest. He should beware all entangling alli-ances—political, social, commercial ances—political, social, commercial—which may limit or embarrass such service. He should let the honors and vice.
