LORD SALISBURY'S PLAINT.

It is not often that a public man of Lord Salisbury's standing allows himself to be heard in public saying: "Who are we that we should try to stem the tide ?" comments the Toronto Star. It is a hopeless kind of speech, suggesting that he disapproves of the course of events, but has not the courage to try to guide matters as he would prefer them to go.

The speech reveals a weakness in Lord Salisbury that is not welcome to if it is not in some measure redeemed people in Canada, who have been of the opinion that the Imperial Government was resolute and undismayed by the difficulties of pacifying South Africa, notwithstanding the differences of opinion that exists in England. If, then the British Government is but floating with the stream, why should colonial Governments and popplations follow after? What causes the stream and makes the tide to which Lord Salisbury refers? It is is carrying the Imperial Government it knows not whither, the imperative duty devolves upon editors, teachers, and preachers to be fearless and frank in expressing their views. Lord Salisbury has enjoyed the confidence of the colonies, his policy has been approved as that of one who knew his course well, and it is pleasant to now hear from him the whimper of a weak man.

A BROAD HINT.

The following story from the No York Sun, has a moral, which, think, is easy of discovery

"George Schaefer, 17 years old, son of Jacob Schaefer, an undertaker at Fortieth street and Third avenue, Brooklyn; and two companions, George Watson, 15 years old, and Charles Johnson, 16, got a row boat last night and went out about a half mile from the foot of Thirty-fifth street, Brooklyn, to bathe. They dived several times. and finally Shaefer did not come up His companions waited a few second and then Watson dived for him, did this four times without finding Schaefer. The fifth time he brought unshis body "Apparently Schaefer was dead and was so evidently lifeless that they did storm too fierce, wave way." not even hurry. It was a half mil row to the dock. When they reached it the boys were in doubt whether to leave the body in the water and await the action of the coroner or to put i on the dock.

"While they were discussing what to do Dr. G. E. Barney, of 401 Third street. Brooklyn, came up in his steam launch Alma, Dr. Barney said that at first he didn't see any signs of life, and had made up his mind that Schae fer was dead, when he noticed a quiver of the evelid. The doctor then made the boys carry the body to the dock where he began to work over It; though it seemed a hopeless job. The doctor and the two boys rolled Schaefer on barrel, worked his arms, breathed into his mouth and bathed him with ammonia. After nearly half an hour's Farmers! work Schaefer showed signs of reviving. . In another half hour he was conscious. An ambulance was called $ and Schaefer was taken to the Norwegian hospital. It is said there late last night that he was doing nicely and would probably be able to leave the hospital this afternoon.

"Schaefer was in the water twentyfive minutes after becoming unconscious. Dr. Barney said it is the most remarkable case of recovery he has ever heard of."

CRITICISM OF A FRIEND.

The Seaforth Expositor, an excellent Liberal journal, has a much better memory than most of its Liberal contemporaries. It recalls the fact that the Liberals went into power pledged to reform the Senate and it is not blind to the fact that up to date the Liberals are as far from carrying out this pledge as they are from carrying out some of the others they made. In a sense the Senate is undergoing reconstruction: as Conservative members die Liberals are appointed in their place, and in the course of events it will not be long until there is a Liberal majority. But the Expositor points out that this is not the kind of Senate reform to which the party was pledged. "Even should the Liberals gain a majority in the Senate," says our contemporary, "it would not be any more responsible to the people or any less susceptible to evil influences than it was when the majority was Tory. The Liberals promised that, as soon as they had the opportunity, they would either abolish the Senate or so reconstruct it as to make it in some way responsible to the peopeople. They have not been in power

The people look for the fulfillment of that pledge, and before the next election the people will have something to say about it They will not be satisfied with simply a Liberal majority in the Senate, and the friends of the Government are not true friends of the Liberal party who counsel leaving the reconstruction to Providence.'

Doubtless the Expositor will not re ceive many thanks from its party friends for this unpleasant reminder but experience proves that the candid public opinion; and if public opinion friend, though seldom the most welcome, is usually the best friend.

BOURASSA ON LAURTER Mr. Henri Bourassa, M.P., lost no time after his arrival in London, en route for Paris, in getting his views formulated through the pro-Boer Daily News of the metropolis. In the course of an interview the laments the Imperialism of the Dominion and attributes it altogether to self-interest. At the same time he maintains that he represents in his pro-Boer views, "a tremendous body of veomanry in Canada-nearly the whole of the Province of Quebec and a large part of Ontario." The assertion that so much of Canada is affected this way, coupled with the fact that we sent our contingents, startled the interviewer, who immediately asked how it happened that Laurier had bowed to the British sentiment when opinions ran so strongl in the opposite direction, Mr. Bourassa twas quite ready with a solution of this problem, He said:

"If Laurier had persisted in the original position which the stated to the Toronto Globe on the way back from Chicago in the autumn of 1899 he would have dost the jingo party of Ontario and the Northwest, but he would have kept the whole of Quebec and this part of Ontario. He then the boys tied a rope around the body refused to send the contingents with and towed it ashore. Schaefer had out consulting Parliament; but on been in the water so long and his body arriving at Ottawa, finding the

Sir Wilfrit's original position that of Mr. Bourassa. But it was abandoned owing to the ferocity of the storm it traised. This is an interesting commentary upon the situation of two years ago. Here is another on Laurier's present attitude :

"But Sir Wilfrid Laurier." observed the interviewer, "said that he pledged his reputation on behalf of freedom for the Boers. Does that not mean that he will place his in-fluence on the side of a generous great political art of wielding opinions—of sweeping behind him even inconsistent opinions. That phrase was thrown to Queboo, just as the Imperialistic phrases were thrown to Ontario. It means nothing. Laurier would probably tell you that if the Beers became British subjects they must necessarily be free."

In Mr. Bourassa's topinion Sir Wilfrid's language has a double mean-The Premier "throws" one phrase to Quebec and another to Ontario. But the Quebec phrase is capable of such an explanation as to make it mean something different to the idea which it conveyed to the hearers. In other words, Laurier can talk clean through it. 'At the present time Laurier seems to side with the view of the Imperial Government But, says Mr. Bourassa:

"Laurier with all his political virtues is not a Cato. He does not love the beaten side. If you English Liberals can show him that you are likely to win, then he may think of

This is really rich. It is somewhat suggestive of Mr. Pickwick, who in the great Slumkey election judged the merits of the opposing causes by the strength of the applause awarded to the respective candidates and threw himself heartily on the side of the crowd that made the most noise. Mr. Bourassa seems to be quite unconscious of the fact that he is describing Laurier as a trimmer and a time-server utterly destitute of opinions or principles. 'A good many politicians would not care to have such a reputation affixed to them by a faithful admirer and friend.-Mail and Empire.
