OLD GUARD AT BANQUET.

A Unique Celebration at Ottawa in Their Honor.

Confederation First Spoken of to Sir John Carling.

Earl Grey, Sir Wilfrid and R. S. Borden Speak.

Ottawa, April 21.-An event unique took place in the Parliament restaurant to-night, when eight of the twenty-four surviving members of the first Parliament of the Dominion were tendered a banquet by the Canadian Club of the capital. There were present Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Hon, John Costigan, Hon. Wm. Miller, Hon. Wm. Sir James Grant, Mr. Basile Benoit, Hon, C. B. Baker, and Sheriff

SIR JOHN CARLING'S REMINIS-CENCE.

Sir John Carling, in his letter, re-called an interesting incident of anti-confederation days. "It was," he said, "in the early sixties, and the situation "in the early sixtues, and the situation in Canada was serious indeed. Elections had been held, but neither party was able to secure a working majority. Party feeling rose so high that the two leaders—Hon. John Macdonald and Hon. Gpo. Brown—ceased to be on speaking terms. Statesmen and political writers seemed to have given up all hone, for Geo. Brown—ceased to be on speaking terms. Statesemen and political writers seemed to have given up all hope, for matters were going from bad to worse. Whither are we drifting? was a standing headline in the newspapers, and there was talk in some quarters of throwing in our lot with the neighboring republic. I happened to be on my way to Quebec to attend my Parliamentary duties one day, and when the train reached Toronto George Brown, the leader of the Reform party, came into the coach in which I was seated and sat down beside me. We soon got into conversation, the subject naturally being the political crisis. Finally Mr. Brown brought his hand down on the arm of the seat with some force and vehemently exclaimed, 'Carling, John A. hes the chance of his life if he will only avail himself of it.'

"What is that? I asked.

"Let him go in for confederation,' was the reply."

was the reply.
"Would you support such a move-

'Most decidedly I would,' he returned.

"Mr. Brown presented to the Cabinet at Quebec the attitude of the Reformers on the Confederation movement, and on reaching the ancient capital I lost no time in telling Hon. John A. Macdonald, the Prime Minister, and his colleagues. that 'Brown would support confederation'

"The outcome was the opening of negotiations between the party leaders which ultimately led to the consummation of confederation."

EARL GREY'S SPEECH.

EARL GREY'S SPEECH.

His Excellency Earl Grey, who aptly opened the evening's oratory, spoke of the debt which Canada owed to the members of the first Parliament of the Canadian Confederation. If they were not actually the fathers of confederation, they at least rocked the cradle in which rested the baby form of the constitution. His Excellency hinted at the approaching end of his term of office in declaring that he would return to England with the kindliest recollections of the cordial manner in which he had always been received by the people of the Dominion, and he would in future envy the privilege of those who would call Canada "home."

SIR WILFRID LAURIER.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who proposed the toast to the "Old Guard," said that, although he had entered Parliament thirty-five years ago, he still considered himself one of the 'young guard." Then the two leaders who presided over the destinies of the country were Sir John Macdonald and Alexander Mackenzie. The examples left by these men were well worthy of emulation by the public men of to-day. "The bringing about of confederation," said Sir Wilfrid Laurier, "was the highest work of Canadian to-day.

Sir Mackenzie, in expressing the hope that Newfoundland would ere long round out the confederation of the whole of British North America, said the statement recently made by Sir Robert Bond, that the Bowell Government had refused to take Newfoundland into confederation because of a few paltry thousand dollars, was incorrect. The fact was that they had been some five or six millions apart, and the terms offered Newfoundland were more favorable than those offered to Manitoba, British Columbia or Prince Edward Island when these Provinces joined the confederation. donald and Sir George Cartier.

Senator William Ross of Cape Bre-on declared that confederation had een forced down the throats of the been forced down the throats of the Nova Scotians, but it had proved a blessing in disguise. He had been a member of the Nova Scotia Assembly before confederation, and he believed he could say without offence that there were in that Assembly a body of men equal to any in the Federal Parliaments of later days.

Senator Baker gave some reminiscences of the fathers of confederation, anotably Dorion, Mackenzie and Cartier, toast to "The Eleventh Parliament of Canada," paid a tribute to the Senate by declaring that its committees did more practically useful work than did the Commons committees, He had been accused sometimes, he said, of preaching too much duty of the citizen to the State, but it was good preaching. He hoped that when the day of stress came for members of his party they would meet the task with a prayer for a heart strong of purpose as in bygone days to do their whole duty by the nation.

Speaker Kerr, of the Senate, and Speaker Marcil, of the Commons, responded to the toast, RUN DOWN THE COUNTRY.

Censervative Speakers Cry Down Canada's Credit.

Mr. Lloyd Harris Makes Mr. Foster Smile.

A Stimulus, Not a Stimulant, Mr. Foster Took.

Ottawa, April 21.-The debate on the budget, which was resumed in the House of Commons to-day, revealed nothing more clearly than a disposition on the part of the Opposition to cry down the credit of Canada by way of reflecting upon the Finance Minister's administration. Lack of foresight, extravagance and Luck of foresight, extravagance and reckless borrowing were among the charges hurled at the head of Hon. Mr. Field as by the Conservative critics, who, with marked unanimity and characteristic disregard of facts, conjured up a condition of affairs bordering on bankruptey, and mourned over a depreciation in Canadian securities, which, as the Minister of Finance took occasion to suggest, existed only in the imaginations of the Conservative politicians.

"I am as optimistic as any man in this House," declared Mr. Perley, who resumed the debate. "The Conservative party have always been an optimistic party." These sentiments were cheered by the Opposition, and to prove how much of an optimist he is, Mr. Perley proceeded to draw a picture of the conditions in Canada, attributable, of course, to the financial blunders of the Government, which suggested that the country is going to the dogs. The member for Aygenteuil condemned the Minister of Finance for having failed to anticipate the financial stringency and for having neglected to take advantage of cipate the financial stringency and for aving neglected to take advantage of STIMULUS, NOT STIMULANT.

Mr. Lloyd Harris created an excellent impression by his busines handling of the subject of finance, handling of the subject of finance. He at once got on good terms with the House by cracking a joke at the expense of Mr. Foster, which even the latter seemed to enjoy. The member for North Toronto had spoken of the soporific effects of Mr. Fielding's speech. Mr. Harris said he had observed that the speech of the Finance Minister had had a peculiar effect-upon Mr. Foster. Up till the 6 o'clock adjournment yesterday the latter looked as if he had been put out of business, but on resuming at 8 o'clock he had given the impression that in the interval he had taken a stimulant.

"You had better take care of rule 19," remarked Mr. Foster.

"Well, I will substitute stimulus for stimulant," retorted Mr. Harris, Canada he added had passed through a creased the expenditure was because as a result of the policy they had pursued, they had not the means. Canada, like any other well-governed country, only spent what it got, and to-day it was able to spend large sums by reason of its last growing trade. Far from being a matter for complaint, the fact that expenditures had increased might be accepted as a token of immense prosperity, and to a large degree of the farseeing administration of the Government. He had had opportunities of watching the fluctuation of securities in the money markets, and comparisons with other countries showed that Canada's credit stood in a very healthy position.
