

St. John Man Has Gained 28 Pounds

H. F. Rollings Is Surprised By Rapid Improvement Troubles End

"The best proof I can give that Tanlac is the right thing for me is the way it is building me up," said H. F. Rollings, of 62 Flower Hill, St. Johns, Newfoundland, recently. Mr. Rollings has been employed as carpenter by Reeds Newfoundland Railway Company for ten years.

"At the time I began taking Tanlac," he continued, "I only weighed one hundred and twenty-two pounds, but now I weigh one hundred and fifty pounds, have actually gained twenty-eight pounds, and am picking up, both in weight and strength."

"I had been in the worst kind of a fix for some time and could get nothing to do me much good, if any. My appetite went back on me and my stomach was in such a bad fix that I could not eat meats or any of the more substantial foods at all. I had severe headaches and was so run down and weak that I couldn't do justice to my work. I would get so weak, faint and dizzy that I was actually afraid to mount the scaffolds. I was very nervous and nearly all my strength just seemed to be gone. One day while crossing the railroad track I felt one of those dizzy spells coming on me. I managed to call for help, but I fainted dead away, and the next thing I knew I was home. I could never get a good night's sleep and that tired, worn out feeling was with me all the time."

"My improvement since I began using Tanlac has certainly surprised me. My appetite returned after the first few doses and by the time my first bottle was gone I could eat and digest anything. Then I commenced to pick up my lost weight and strength and get rid of that tired, worn out feeling. The headaches, dizziness and nervousness have all left me and I sleep so soundly that I have to be woken up in the mornings. My appetite is so big that I can hardly get enough to eat and I never have the least trouble with my stomach any more, and when it comes to work I can keep up my end with the best of them. I am convinced that Tanlac will help anyone who tries it and I am glad to make this statement for what it may be worth to others."

Tanlac is sold in Newcastle by E. J. Morris and in Redbank by William M. Sullivan.

Making A Town With Music

Cape Girardeau, Mo., is the name of the town—the Southeast Missourian the name of the paper—and this is the name of the story. Fifteen years ago there was not a piano teacher in Cape Girardeau. No one ever thought of violin instruction or voice culture and music—the divine Muse—meant little in the life of this community. Whereupon the Southeast Missourian decided it was time to "start something" and began a campaign of music "boosterism." Not only through their columns did they try to awaken a musical interest, but they even went so far as to stand sponsor for bringing concert artists to Cape Girardeau, thus emphasizing this interest. The far-sighted owners of the Missourian paper felt both the practical and spiritual importance of music in the community. It was their opinion that music brought out the good in men and women and caused them to respond to worthy movements along other lines. Music may be the flavoring of life—but it is the flavoring that makes the food palatable. From a practical viewpoint they frankly admit that music has had more to do with making Cape Girardeau a home-loving community than any other influence. For example, they say that there are more homes there costing over five thousand dollars and more people own their homes than in any other city in the State of the same size. The skeptical may doubt the practical value of music—but the Southeast Missourian says "Music has helped our business in many ways and we are willing to give much time to promoting it and then pay the deficits if necessary. We've never lost a cent on music and we don't believe we could."

LUDENDORFF'S TRIBUTE TO BEAVERBROOK

In his Memoirs General Ludendorff paid a tribute to the propaganda work carried on by Lord Beaverbrook, stating that it not only won over the neutral world, but finally had a disastrous effect upon the morale of the German civil population and the soldiers.

LADY BEAVERBROOK PREFERS TO LOOK AFTER HER FAMILY

London, Dec. 11—Lady Beaverbrook's reason for refusing to stand in her husband's former Commons seat at Ashton-under-Lyne, Lancashire and made public already is that she has a young family. Her ladyship's refusal is a matter of much regret in the constituency. The vacancy will probably come soon through Sir Albert Stanley's elevation to the peerage.

"BUY AT HOME"

Anita Stewart In Newest Film Play

Miss Anita Stewart in "Mary Regan" which will be shown at the Happy Hour Thursday has the part of a beautiful girl who, aided by a detective, saves from a coterie of society blackmailers and intriguers a dissipated young man whom the plotters are ruining to get his money.

The picture takes the movie lover through that fascinating region, the Broadway "W. T. Light district" where the profiteers of "Big Business" spend their bloated fortunes, watched vulture-eyed by genteel cut-throats.

In this setting of hollow splendor, where hearts are broken as the painted women dance, and the champagne corks pop, Miss Stewart appears as Mary Regan, daughter of a society woman, and of a notorious criminal. Her mother is dead but her father is serving time for a crime which put his name on every newspaper's first page. The disgrace is keenly felt by Mary who is determined that she will never marry and force a man to help her bear the shame.

This is her reason for refusing Robert Clifford, a young detective who was present at the arrest and conviction of her father, but who has seen enough of Mary to satisfy himself that she is sincere in her desire to live a worthy life. No sooner has she turned from Clifford than she is surrounded by the society leeches, who know her father, and whose leader, Peter Loveman, recognizes in her the making of a splendid bait for prospective victims.

Loveman invites Mary to aid him. She refuses, but, still bent on using her, Loveman sends Jack Morton, the son of a wealthy man who has been reprimanded by his father for following the "primrose path" of Broadway, to a mountain hotel where Mary is staying. Young Morton is in charge of a lieutenant of Loveman's who is to "reform" the young man.

Mary sensing Loveman's intention of robbing the young man who is to come into an inheritance soon, undertakes to watch over him. He makes love to her and she consents to marry him, out of a desire to protect and reform him. They are married, but are separated when the elder Morton finds them, and cannot get a proper explanation for their presence together at a hotel.

These events, and others which rapidly follow lead to the capture of Jack Morton by the plotters, and the biggest scenes of the picture come when Clifford the detective and his plain clothes men break into a Broadway cabaret, where Jack is being held in a private room, to rescue him. The place is completely wrecked, the blackmailers are arrested, and then comes the picture's biggest surprise.

the eye and he made a push at them. He saw the baton, though Rev. Mr. Bate and Rev. Mr. Cooper, said they saw none.

The struggle started when witness tried to break away. He was not sure any baton was used before he went down in the struggle. Witness thought he struck Mr. Dickson; he did the best he could but could not remember where he struck him. In his opinion, he was struck with the baton first when he began to break clear. Witness thought he was hit first. Before he broke away no attempt was made to use the baton. After getting up he was handcuffed and taken to the lockup and charged with resisting a constable. He pleaded guilty and fined $64.00.

Arthur Gatain of Bathurst was next called.

On Nov. 19th, he was at the railway station. He was with Barry and Landry. We had drinks together before we went to the station.

Barry had been drinking with him, but how many he could not say. The three went out of the station and witness was pounced upon by two or three men. Had liquor in his hand in a bottle, a long bottle. The men threw witness down on the ashes, his face was scratched.

They said we are taking you for having liquor in your possession, and that they were inspectors. They overhauled him and then there was a mix-up. One man held me and I tried to get over to help Barry out. Barry tried to get clear by breaking away. Then Barry was down before he saw anything more. He did not know inspectors who had Barry on the ground. They then let him up and we were handcuffed together.

Johnston, the next witness, saw a struggle between Barry and Dickson. They had been by the arm when latter threw them off, he made a motion as if striking a blow and saw Adam Dickson strike and all felt these witnesses ought to be
