Dear Sirs,—We have nothing but good to say of Mathieu's Syrup and can conscientiously describe it as the most popular and successful Cough Medicine we handle. Owing to the absence of any drug store in this vicinity there is a great variety of proprietary medicine sold in the course of the year, and Mathieu's Syrup pre-eminently leads in its own class. Yours sincerely,
D. MARTIN.

THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

It doesn't cost a penny to hum a blithe and cheerful tune as you lope down the road; the sight of you, so bright and gay, may cheer some pilgrim on his way and ease his weary load. It doesn't cost a wooden cent to say good morning to the gent you meet upon the walk; and may it bring a pleasant glow to some sad heart that grief and woe have made as hard as rock. It doesn't cost a pewter mark to carry light to places dark by wearing cheerful mien; a happy, bright, contented face will be a lamp in any place, and light the darkest scene. It doesn't cost a leather yen to stimulate your fellow men and nerve them for the fray; just illustrate your firm belief that joy's a better thing than grief, and that the world's O. K. It doesn't cost a bogus crown to be an asset to your town, and to be known as such; serenely do your daily stunt and wear a brave and hopeful front, and you'll accomplish much. Your influence for good or bad is greater than you know, my lad, so use it wisely well; don't wall around or tear your robe, but always boost this good old globe on which we mortals dwell.

LEE WON HIS LOVE.

A Federal Soldier's Change of Heart on Gettysburg Battlefield.

I was in the battle of Gettysburg myself, and an incident occurred there which largely changed my views of the southern people. I had been the most bitter anti-southern man and I fought and cursed the Confederacy desperately. I could see nothing good in any of them. The last day of the fight I was badly wounded. A ball shattered my left leg. I lay on the ground not far from Cemetery ridge, and as General Lee ordered his retreated he and his officers rode near me. As they came along I recognized him, and, though faint from exposure and loss of blood, I raised up my hands, looked Lee in the face and shouted as loud as I could, "Hurrah for the Union!" The general heard me, looked, stopped his horse, dismounted and came toward me. I confess that I thought he meant to kill me. But as he came up he looked down at me with such a sad expression upon his face that all fear left me. I wondered what he was about. He extended his hand to me, and, grasping it firmly and looking right into my eyes, said, "My son, I hope you will soon be well." If I live a thousand years I shall never forget the expression of General Lee's face. There he was, defeated, retiring from a field that had cost him and his cause almost their last hope, and yet he stopped to say words like those to a wounded soldier of the opposition who had taunted him as he passed by. As soon as the general had left me I cried myself to sleep under the bloody ground.—Gamaliel Bradford, Jr., in Atlantic.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

There are several kinds of heritages. Some people inherit money. Other people, whose ancestors have not bequeathed them any great amount of money, still take vast pride in valuable heirlooms, such as old furniture or old jewelry. Yet others who have received neither money nor heirlooms, consider some well-known name a desirable heritage.

I want to tell you to-day of a heritage somewhat different from any of these which I chanced to hear about the other day. The shampoo lady told us of it. We were talking about inventions and patents, and a dentist who is trying to patent an idea which he has conceived, and prevent anyone from using that idea without paying him royalty. Said the shampoo lady, "That's not much like my grandfather."

Said we, "Was your grandfather an inventor?" "Well, her certainly was," said the shampoo lady. "He invented the iron hub that you see on all the wheels. You know it is used all over the world nowadays, but in the old times there were only wooden hubs and it was my grandfather who invented the iron hub."

"And didn't he patent it?" we asked. "Indeed he didn't," said the shampoo lady. "Do you think I'd be doing heads if he had? Why all his grandchildren would be millionaires if he had patented that hub. But he wouldn't. Everyone thought it was a great idea and advised him to get a patent, and what do you suppose he said? 'Why should I patent it? It doesn't seem anything very great to me, but if it's good, I want the people to use it.'"

The shampoo lady paused to reach for a towel. "Of course," she went on, "there are times when I can see that it would be fine to be a millionaire. I don't mind working a bit, but when I hear about that little Bryce girl who has such a lovely voice and can't afford to have it trained, just because she has to support a father who drinks, I would have liked some of that hub money. And when I read about foreign places, especially Venice and the Alps, and realize that I'll probably die without ever seeing them, I do wish I had money enough to travel some. But most of the time I really and truly am just as contented with that speech and spirit of my grandfather's for a heritage as if he had left me money, and I wouldn't change it if I could."

Can anyone doubt that that woman, healthy and strong as she is, happy in her work, contented with her means, appreciative of all the intellectual opportunities, and delighted with all the simple pleasures that come her way, and inspired and enriched by that splendid speech and the spirit behind it, is far happier and more blessed than some of those in this land who inherit plenty of ill-gotten wealth, but little else from their ancestors?

There are many kinds of heritages. Not everyone can leave wealth, or beautiful heirlooms, or a well-known name to the succeeding generation, but everyone can leave such precious heritages as health, the right attitude towards life, and the inspiration of a fine life and a fine spirit.

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering, obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better. If it says better, but you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in Plain English; or, Medicine Simplified, 1008 pages, over 700 illustrations, newly revised up-to-date Edition, paper-bound, sent for 31 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only. Cloth-bound, 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Fads and Fashions.

Low-cut tailored coats of line have buttonholes worked in both fronts and are fastened with linked buttons of bright-hued leathers.

The veiled blouse has given place to the washable blouse of batiste or fine linen, hand tucked or embroidered, and there is a certain charming freshness, a youthfulness about the tub-b blouse which is pleasing.

Very excellent effects are produced by using black lace draperies over marine or white satin; the cascades of fine black lace over the shimmering surface of the satin give a most artistic touch to the gown.

Maline, "Point de Milan, Chantilly, Spanish and "shadow" laces will be inseparable from the summer costume.

Macramé and linen cluny laces are to have a great vogue; in combination with linen and the new, loosely woven "toiles" they are especially attractive and appropriate.

The acceptance this season of the dounced and ruffled skirt, of sleeve trills and draperies has given lace an unusual prominence.

The cottons are lovely. Those in corded effects, especially corduroy and bedford cord, promise to be decidedly popular.

French lines have a rather heavy loose weave. They are noncrushable and may be had in all the newest colors.

Burnt orange, orchid, saxe blue, buff and twine are modish colors in their lines.

Kindergarten cloth is a pretty and inexpensive cotton material for serviceable dresses for children and juniors. It is especially dainty in fine stripes and checks.

Taffeta, both plain and shot, is one of "the" materials of the season. Street suits of this silk, made on strictly tailored lines, will be much in evidence in the early spring.

Foulards continue to be popular. We are to wear jewel shoes this summer.

This season, veillings are showing chicelle dots, diminutive and large; they are grouped at the intersections of the bars or they are scattered at intervals over the mesh.

There is no gainsaying the immense popularity of the buckle to complete a well-made shoe. The "Colonial" style promises to be a favorite, so that buckles, plain and jeweled, will be in great demand.

White and cream colored linens will have a tremendous vogue. Some of them have an interwoven border of filet lace or heavy embroidery, and many are inset with crelet embroidery.

Peticotats are of every conceivable shade and texture, trimmed simply or decorated lavishly with laces, chiffon, fringes and blossoms.

Buttons matching the garment are a salient feature of frocks and tailored suits. They blend with it, and therefore are not used as a contrast.

The M.C.L.I. Debate.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—It was my privilege to have been present during the debate in the M. C. L. I. Rooms last night, and never was more forcibly struck with the conviction that such an institution can do an amount of good.

Besides training our young men to speak extempore and logically such an institution serves as a refreshing antidote to the sport-craze. I am not to be understood as opposed to honest sport, but when indulged in to excess is apt to prove a menace to the more serious pursuit of intellectual development. It is very encouraging to the thoughtful person to note the existence of clubs or societies such as the one referred to. From their ranks are recruited the statesmen of the future. When the hour arrives when keen debaters are needed, and men are wanted, to fill the gaps in the front ranks of a country's intellectual fighters, from the floors of such institutions steps forth the men ready trained for action, their grenades ready primed and fuse alight. I was surprised and delighted to witness such a struggle of wits, where argument was met with argument and repartee by delightful and keen sallies of wit, there seemed to be an unending force of retort and rejoinder of charge and counter-charge, whilst absolute courtesy constantly maintained the floor. Both sides sustained their positions in a truly admirable manner, and although the decision went in favour of the positive, the gentlemen of the opposing side have every reason to be proud of the able way in which their contention was maintained. They proved one thing more than another and it is this, that they as well as the gentlemen who held the positive side are qualified debaters or controversialists and are the walls of adamant that have reared themselves against the onward sweeping sea of frivolity in the way of sport that threatens to engulf us. Let me reiterate my expressions of pleasure in having been present at the debate, and allow me, also, Mr. Editor, to express regret that the leading speeches, at least, are not reproduced in print. It may not meet the wishes of the debaters, but it is a pity anyway.

Yours truly,

A. ENGLISH.

FOOT BADLY FROZEN
After Escaping From Burning Home, Doctor Advised Amputation

Mrs. Jno. Marks, of Cameron, Ont., narrowly escaped losing her foot. She tells the story this way.

"I had my foot so badly frozen after escaping from a fire which destroyed our home that the doctor in attendance advised immediate amputation. Before consenting to the operation I was induced to try Douglas' Egyptian Liniment, and it produced a most remarkable result.

"After four or five applications the frozen flesh dropped off, and the foot began to show signs of improvement. It advanced wonderfully under the treatment, and was soon completely healed. "Egyptian Liniment certainly saved me from being horribly crippled."

Probably none of your family will ever get frozen so badly, but a nipped ear or nose or toe is a common and painful enough experience. Egyptian Liniment takes out every bit of the pain, soreness and swelling, and quickly restores the injured part.
