General Sympathy.

There is no doubt that the feeling of general sympathy which is being freely expressed for our American Cousins is both deep and genuine. Having which will be ever memorable in balloonautics it is keenly disappointing to them that disaster should so suddenly have overtaken their craft, within morning: carrying out whatever projects with regard to further continuing the air voyage across the Atlantic, or of flying back to the starting point

It must also be a cause of regret and disappointment to our English brothers, that adverse interested in the aerial journey, as are the aviators themselves, and are keenly in sympathy with the courageous men who are patiently, though anxiously, watching all the weather reports from the various meteoro- the quickest and most effective delogical bureaus, in momentary pilatory extant. Delatine will remove expectation of the favorable opportunity. We trust that the skin or soreness. Cleanly and simple omens will soon be propitious and that the signal to start may not be much longer delayed.

Our American correspondent makes the statement that Newfoundland is acquiring an unenviable reputation for bad weather, because all the stories of the air flights published in the Amdense fogs, drenched with rain, ets early.-may17,1i and blockaded with ice. All Stranded Schooner these stories are gross libels on our climate. Far from being adverse, the weather about St. John's and along the coast has been most fair, considering the season, and therefore the blame for the holding up of the aviafoundland. True April and May are not considered summer months by any means, neither do we expect summer weather in them. Nevertheless it is remarkable that this season everything has been monly fair, with pleasant breezes and clear skies. The fault, if fault there be, does not rest with this island. So far as local conditions were concerned the flights could have taken place on most any day since the machines were in readiness, and it is grossly unjust of correspondnonstarts of the transatlantic

ary of State for war, said he did not consider the proposal to give the lominions a rebate on existing duties, raised the general free trade issue. Recalling his phrase "The door is banged bolted and barred against taxation on foodstuffs," he said he always considered that a rebate of existing duties stood on an entirely different plane. If it removed taxation from food, it would certainly not add to the cost of living, or in anywise burden our people. It should not be treated as a question of principle, but as a measure of imperial diplo-macy, designed to express the warmth of our gratitude for the dominions assistance in the war. The dominions wanted this rebate and we would be wise to concede it, while keeping the great body of doctrine and practice intact. IMPORTANT CAPTURE.
