

Jeannie Sinclair, THE LILY OF THE STRATH.

But as time wore on, and her fears remained unaltered, it gradually subsided, and she was able to comfort herself with the belief that her husband, even if he had returned to his former home, and desired to discover her, would not be able to do so. She had left no clue to her new abode, and as the Strath was a place so secluded, and at a long distance from that part of the country where she had lived, it was most unlikely that she would be discovered by him so long as she remained there. Convinced of this, she became more at ease, and by her natural cheerfulness of disposition returned. This was her secret, and well, therefore, might she shun the advance of George Munro, and wrestle against the affection which was growing up in her own bosom.

The revelation being made, Mary expected that all intercourse with George would be at an end. The banker's passionate attachment was, however, too great to be subdued; he could not give her up, and he did not see why he should. There was, indeed, a man somewhere in existence who had a legal claim on Mary, but he had forfeited all moral right to her by treating her so brutally and deserting her. In all probability, he would never seek to return to her. If he did, it would only be to repeat his cruelty, and Mary's whereabouts was so effectually concealed that he would never cross her path again. All these considerations were in favour of the banker's wish that Mary should become his wife. They loved each other with the strongest affection, and why should a barrier more imaginary than real keep them apart? He urged these things on Mary with persuasive earnestness, and as in her he had a listener whose heart was enlisted in his favor, in process of time he prevailed. Years had passed now since the man who could claim her had forsaken her. For aught she knew he might be dead, but even if not, was she for one so undeserving to sacrifice her deepest affection to the comforts of a luxurious home, and the love and protection of a man so estimable?

The temptation was great to both of them, and everything was so favorable to a consent that they yielded to it, and on the evening in question George had extorted the promise from Mary that she would be his. We shall not justify them, and yet we have not the inclination harshly to condemn them. Bigamy is not to be excused under any circumstances; but if ever circumstance did exist in which it seemed worthy of mitigation, it was in the case of George and Mary. Mary had bravely and honourably told him the truth when she might have deceived him, and they would do what they had proposed with the knowledge clear to both of them of the past, and the difficulties it might import into the future.

Mary had consented; but it was with trembling, and in the solitude of her own chamber she would doubtless have gone through a sore mental ordeal. But the grief and sorrow of Jeannie Sinclair demanded all her care and service, and took her thoughts in a great measure away from her own lingering fears.

At this point of our story we find that we are surrounded on all sides with lovers, and have to describe one avowal after another. We have already three pairs on our hands, and we find that we cannot advance a step without introducing a fourth. With regard to the three pairs already under review, it cannot be said of any that the course of true love is running smoothly, and in regard to the fourth, to be brought immediately upon the scene, the proverb's avowal will not be wholly falsified.

We have already mentioned incidentally that one of the farm servants at the Holme was named Watty. He was who with lusty strength wrenched the door from its hinges and ran with it to the river side, that William Denman might be carried upon it to the farm house. It was not in our way to refer to him more particularly at that time, but his turn has come now, and we must devote a part of this chapter to him and his concerns.

Watty Stewart was a free-hearted, good-humored fellow, always in a good temper, and always ready to oblige. He was one of the best ploughmen in the district, well behaved, a favorite with his compeers, while all the lasses in the district were ready to fall in love with him.

To most of these he had at all times a pleasant word to say, and many a merry joke he passed with them, remaining as usual in heart till smitten by the charms of Maggie McPherson, and then his fate was sealed. He was hopelessly captivated, and Maggie, in a symbolic but a very real sense, carried him in triumph at her chariot wheels. Maggie was house servant at Cloverlea, and was a blithe, bright-eyed, merry-hearted creature, whose clear, ringing laugh sounded cheerily from the kitchen or in the byre, where she tilted and sang while milking the cows. Yet Maggie knew well the privileges of her sex, and was able to maintain them.

Secretly, she was proud of her conquest, and liked Watty, but had never yet said so to him in words. The proof of it was, however, that she teased him unmercifully, and exercised a kind of despotic power over him. Watty's misfortune was that he was wanting in vanity, and had so little confidence in his own powers of fascination that he never assumed himself that he had won Maggie's heart, and suffered much torture from the fear of losing her. Stupid fellow that he was, he interpreted her treatment of him as evidence that she cared little for him, and every time she laughed and made game of him, his heart was ready to sink with apprehension. Serious she would not be, at least on that question which demanded all seriousness—the question of matrimony. Let Watty approach that subject, however distantly, and the laugh she raised utterly discomfited him, so that he had not courage to "bring her to the scratch," as he termed it, and as a consequence, he was continually held "in hot water," for the possession of Maggie as his wife had now become of vital importance to his peace. Again and again he resolved to be bold and venture, and ask her right off if she would have him, but no sooner had he got into her presence, and been subjected to her banter, than his resolution vanished, and he left Cloverlea as he had come, not a bit wiser or more assured, while he endeavored with emphatic emphasis the statement of Baillie in the "Gentle Shepherd," that "it's hard ta' be as burnt wi' love, ye daurna tell."

JOHN A. WOOD
HAYING LEASED OF MR. MASSIE

The most Spacious and Elegant Grocery in the Dominion of Canada,
And having (thanks to the liberality of his friends and customers for the last twelve years) bought the Stock on very favorable terms.

He is able and determined to take the lead in the Grocery Trade in Guelph.
Many of the Goods will be sold at less than they would cost to lay down at the present time.

TEAS, TEAS!
AT A VERY SLIGHT ADVANCE.

SUGARS AND SYRUPS
Will be sold at market rates.

FRESH COFFEES!
CHEAP AND GENUINE.

And as he intends to confine himself strictly to the Retail, no Goods will be bought but those of guaranteed quality. Every article sold to a customer will be sure to please, or will be exchanged.

THE WINES & LIQUORS
Are all sound and of good age, carefully selected, and guaranteed genuine.

The Crockery and Glassware Department
Has also received great attention in selecting such Goods as are useful and necessary in every household. Parties who have been in the habit of going to the cities when in need of anything superior are now saved the trouble, for at the ALMA BLOCK is kept everything from the common Black Tea-pot to the costly Dinner, Tea and Dessert Service. A large lot of Cut and Pressed Crystal, which was never before exhibited in this part of the country.

My Store on Wyndham Street will still be carried on in the same principles as hitherto, giving a good article at a fair price. It will be conducted by MR. ROBERT MITCHELL, who, having been with me for a number of years, is favorably known to all my old customers. The price of Goods will be the same at both places, so that, there need be no trouble in selecting at which store you will deal on that account.

THOSE WHO HAVE NOT YET PAID A VISIT TO THE ALMA BLOCK
RETAIL GROCERY!

Should do so at once, as I promise them that we will sell at low rates, owing to the great facilities for buying which we possess over any other store in Guelph.

RECOLLECT, my friends, that although this is a NEW STORE, I am not a stranger to you. With one exception, I am the oldest Grocer in the Town of Guelph. I began to supply your wants thirteen years ago in the same spot that I now solicit your patronage. I have not been unsuccessful during this time in giving satisfaction to those who have honored me with their custom, and I hope to be found as watchful of their interests and my own as hitherto.

ALL ORDERS, however small, will be delivered by HORSE and VAN a short time after purchased.
Tentative and obliging Clerks, all old friends of the Guelph public, will be found at all times ready to follow Goods to parties, no matter where they want to purchase or not.

NEW AND SEASONABLE GOODS WILL BE ADVERTISED AS SOON AS RECEIVED.
Glover, Timothy, Tares, Flax and Turnip Seeds
Of every description, in stock and arriving. We shall not in getting Seeds care so much about the prices as the quality, as it has been proved often enough to the farmer's disadvantage that economy in the purchase of Seeds is false.

Caledonia Plaster, Liverpool Coarse & Fine
AND CODERICH SALT.
And all their kinds of Manures suitable for Agricultural use will be kept on hand, or obtained for customers as required. As a list of all the articles kept in stock would take up the whole of this paper, I shall not at the present time attempt to particularize, but would ask all to pay a visit to the ALMA BLOCK RETAIL GROCERY before they lay out their cash, as I am determined not to be outdone by anyone, and HAVE A LARGER STOCK OF FIRST-CLASS GOODS THAN ANY OTHER STORE IN TOWN.

You will not be charged more on account of the Store being the handsomest and most comfortable for you to be supplied at, and I am sure that one visit will induce you to pay another and become regular customers.

Every one should know and have confidence in those they buy their Teas of, as all who sell watches are not watchmakers. JOHN A. WOOD HAS SPENT EIGHT YEARS IN THE GROCERY TRADE, and knows exactly what he is doing, and does not deal in damaged goods of any kind; consequently every pound of Tea sold is warranted as represented or the money returned.

Articles wanted in Families, Hotels, Saloons, Boarding Houses, &c., is sold by JOHN A. WOOD, who is a real live man, working 14 hours a day for the last 17 years. He is a steam engine compared with the ordinary style of Grocers. In a word, John A. Wood is as far ahead of the trade as a velocipede is to a pedestrian. He is the man for the people—quick as lightning and punctual as time.

JOHN A. WOOD,
Alma Block, Wyndham Street, Guelph.

SO IT IS WITH
PREST & HEPBURN
In the leather war now going on between their opponents on the south side of Wyndham-st.

We do not believe in bosh and bunkum, but deal with facts, and leave the verdict in the hands of the intelligent people of Wellington. We are prepared to prove, and we positively affirm, notwithstanding all the puffing and blowing, which has become the order of the day, that PREST & HEPBURN, Wyndham Street, Guelph, manufacture none.

ROOTS AND SHOES
And employ double the number of Workmen of any other establishment in the County of Wellington. We invite the public to call and look through our Factory, and they will be convinced that we are telling the truth, and nothing but the truth. A great deal has been said for and against machine-made Boots and Shoes. Now we believe, and we are confident that every well-balanced mind in Wellington will agree with us, that the less machinery used in manufacturing Boots and Shoes the better. All our staple Boots and Shoes are made by hand, which must be admitted is far superior to any machine-made Goods. We have on hand the largest and best assortment of Boots and Shoes ever offered to the people of Wellington which we will sell as cheap as the cheapest, and on second price. Repairs done as usual.

NEW SABBATH SCHOOL BOOK.
JUST PUBLISHED.
THE MORNING STARS.
A collection of Religious Songs for Sunday Schools and the home circle. This book of religious songs for children was undertaken because the authors could find no book which appeared to them to be well adapted for the use of Sunday Schools, and the choirs of children, whose musical instruction they have in charge. Great care has been taken in this selection that the words might faithfully reflect the sentiment of the music as well as equal it in elevation of tone. Price in boards, 25 cents; paper, 30 cents. Sent post-paid on receipt of price. Oliver Ditson & Co., publishers, 27 Washington-st., Boston. Charles H. Ditson & Co., 711 Broadway, N.Y. dw
