To perpetuate the memory of the late P. Alexander Peterson whose engineers in this part of the country gather, a portrait of the famous engineer, done in oils by the late Robert Harris, Canadian artist, is to be hung in the Engineering Institute on Mansfield street. The late Mr. Peterson, former engineer of the Canadian Pacific Railway, took a leading part in the railway construction in Eastern Canada during the latter part of the last century.

Treat Colds Externally

For sore throat, bronchitis or deep chest colds, rub Vicks VapoRub briskly over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel.

Vicks acts in two ways—both direct: absorbed like a liniment and inhaled as a vapor. A quick relief for the cold troubles of all the family.

ANITA STEWART IN BIG FILM

In "Baree, Son of Kazan," which comes to the Orpheum Theatre next week, Anita Stewart makes her debut as a Vitagraph star, and she has the support of a superior cast. Two well known players in the production had also roles in the Vitagraph's adaptation of Rafael Sabatini's "Captain Blood," and before that in several other pictures produced by David Smith, who made also this one.

Joseph Rickson, who appears in "Baree, Son of Kazan," as Perriott, father of Nepeese, the French Indian girl impersonated by Miss Stewart, was Hagthorpe, the chief gunner in "Captain Blood." Of other Vitagraph attractions, he played the sheriff in "Pioneer Trails," and Tom Chavis in "The Code of the Wilderness." He had important roles, too, in "The Border Patrol," with Harry Carey, and "The Riders of the Purple Sage," with Tom Mix.

Jack Curtiss, remembered for his impressive work as Wolverstone, the mutinous buccaneer in "Captain Blood," has the heavy role, that of McTaggart, the post factor, in "Baree." He had important parts in such earlier Vitagraph productions as "The Courage of Marge O'Doone," "The Flower of the North," and "Masters of Men," and more recently has been seen to advantage in "The Snob," "The Last of the Duanees," with Tom Mix, Marshall Neilan's production of "The Stranger's Banquet," the Robert Hughes production, "Reno," and "The Gypsy Romance."

Donal Keith, everywhere recognized as one of the coming men of the screen and already commanding a large following, appears as James Carvel, who figures in the romance with Nepeese. Mr. Keith played with Miss Stewart once before. He had the juvenile lead opposite the star in the "Boomerang," the filmed version of David Belasco's play, and also had a conspicuous part in "Secrets with Norma Talmadge."

James O'Neill impersonates Tubos, the old Indian who rescues Nepeese from the icy river in one of the most moving episodes. He has attracted much favorable attention in recent years as the interpreter of Indian roles.

A BIG MAN NEEDED

The new organization of boards of trade of Canada had its birth at Winnipeg under most auspicious circumstances. There prevailed among the delegates from the Maritime Provinces on the Atlantic and British Columbia to the Pacific, and from the Prairie Provinces, Ontario, and old Quebec a spirit of desire for understanding and accomplishment which promises well for the future of this new national body. But what has been accomplished has been but the first step on a path strewn with many difficulties to be overcome if the high goal is to be reached.

What was accomplished at Winnipeg was to create an atmosphere of mutual willingness on the part of the various provinces and the different geographical areas of the country to consider each other's problems in a broad way. These problems are very real. They are economic rather than sentimental. They will not be solved merely by the passing of goodwill resolutions.

All of which is by way of emphasizing that while what has been done has been done well, the success of the effort is altogether dependent upon the future steps to take advantage of the favorable situation created. The solution of the problems faced will demand in the new organization leadership of the highest calibre. Much will depend on the appointment of the executive head. It is a job for the biggest man in sight, and he should be appointed to devote all his energies to the task in hand. In this respect the success of the labor organizations, which appoint their strongest men to their executive offices, as compared with such bodies as the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, where the presidency is regarded as an honorary position, might be considered.

The success of the new national association of boards of trade will depend upon the calibre of the leadership provided. A big man is needed for a big task. Financial Post.

His Hearing Restored

The invisible ear drum invented by A. O. Leonard, which is a miniature megaphone, fitting inside the ear entirely out of sight, is restoring the hearing of hundreds of people in New York city. Mr. Leonard invented this drum to relieve himself of deafness and head noises, and it does it so successfully that no one can tell he is a deaf man. It is effective when deafness is caused by catarrh or by wholly destroyed natural drums. A request for information to A. O. Leonard, Suite 436, 70 Fifth Ave., New York City, will be given a prompt reply. [Adv.]

"Drink to me only with thine eyes," is the most unpopular line in all poetry, according to some.

A mystery that puzzles me, The answer—I can't find it, Is how some stars go on the screen,

When they should be behind it.

Emptys Coming Back

Have you ever sat by the r.r. track And watched the emptys coming back. Lumbering along with a groan and a whine

Smoke strung out in a long gray line Belched from the panting injun's stack

—Just emptys coming back.

I have * * * and to me the empty seem

Like dreams I sometimes dream— Of a girl, or money, or maybe fame My dreams have all returned the same, Swinging along the homebound track, —Just emptys coming back.

Chief Greenwood says a sandbag in the hands of the holdup man is a stunning affair.

We wonder if it's true that the man who was hurrying to get his house painted before the paint ran out.

The future is very dark to children with no immediate promise of a circus or an influenza epidemic.

Customer: I don't want to buy your crackers, they tell me the mice are always running over them.

Grocer: That ain't so; why the cat sleeps in the barrel every night.

She (snuggling close): Billy, don't you love your little girlie?

Billy (remorsefully): Yes by golly, the poor child must be crying for her daddy now. Good-bye.

The only sure thing about the other fellow's game is that you are a sucker if you bite at it.

"What is an opportunist?"

"One who meets the wolf at the door, and appears the next day in a fur coat."

"Rest and a change" is a good prescription for the tired business man. Personally, we know of innumerable places where we could get plenty of rest if we could only find the change.

They had a bakers' banquet in Cranbrook the other night and some of the boys made very floury speeches.

A man always retains tender thoughts of his first love. Unless, of course, he marries her.

"Father," said little Rollo, "what is meant by a Sabbath Day's journey? 'I am afraid my son, that in many cases it means twice around the golf links.'"

A Christmas Poem for Men Only
That old pick-pocket, Santa Claus, will soon be here again, Bringing good will (and also debts) unto a world of men

With jingling sleigh-bells, jovial face and tummy large and wide, He comes to bring us Christmas gifts, gathered from every side; Socks too large, and ties too loud, and shirts with purple stripes.

Two for five cigars that burn (that's all) 'outlandish briar pipes, A book that saw the light of day in eighteen ninety-two,

A dozen cotton handkerchiefs with borders red and blue, Bath slippers that are far too short, a golf stick that's too long,

A thing that I'd forgot there was, a set of old Mah Jongg;

All these and many other gifts we haven't time to list,

Men suffer most at Christmas time—this of my poem's the gist;

For men must pay for all they get; exchanging gift for gift;

To contemplate what we receive is sure to leave us miffed.

So then, what ho for Santa Claus, who comes to pick our purse;

The old boy's bad enough we grant, but then he could be worse.

John Mangan thinks that you have to be careful these days on the narrow crooked highways. Even on Sunday when you try to go straight your car topples over.

One Fernie woman is so old fashioned that she asked her daughter the other night to wash the dishes.

It doesn't do any good to hate a millionaire. That never got anyone anywhere.

Colin Commons says many a woman has been weighed in the balance and found wanting * * * to reduce.
