President John Macpherson occupied the chair. Among the speakers were Mr. Frank Yeigh, of Toronto; Mr. E. M. Thommason, of Toronto, secretary from which all other classes were deof the provincial committee of the Y. rived. One was the citizen who shirk-M. C. A., and Mr. A. A Mighty Movement.

The speakers cited the good work that is being carried on by the Y. M. waited at Etherington's home on the C. A., which was likened unto a river election morning for over two hours which began as a small stream and in the hope that Derbyshire would kept branching out until it formed a mighty river, whose tributaries reached the farthest corners of the earth. The work of the Y. M. C. A. was received alike by the Latin as well as the English races. It stood for peace as well as warfare upon evil. Its potent branches were physical, moral and mental development, and its would attend the luncheon on Tuesof Christian men, and a love for God.

He was pleased to note the interest that was evinced in the work of the Y. M. C. A., and that the busgathering where the interests of the Y. be reached by no other form of Chris-M. C. It was good also to note that the businessmen of other cities took great the Grand Trunk Railway, had spent boarding-house $170,000 in erecting railroad Y. A. buildings.

Mr. Macpherson said that the sentiment of the churches in reference to tercourse can be indulged in by all the Y. M. C. A. had changed, and instead of looking upon the Y. M. C. A. as an intruder, it was now welcomed as a helpmate and a boon to the development of Christian character in oung men. The work of the Y. M. Any oung man who professed a belief in God was welcome to its privileges, and to benefit by its uplifting moral, physical and mental influences.

$150-$50 a year for three years. "I feel certain that there are any number of other local businessmen who will also give if they are asked to do so," said Mr. Macpherson. "I believe in the old saying that a man don't live by bread alone, but by helping his fellow men. We hope to gain this amount of money, not by importunities, but by a simple statement of facts."

Secretary Thommason.

son told a little story. An eastern businessman visited St Louis. The trains moving into the station went slowly. There was no hurry about taking them off the train. The hackmen were seemingly indifferent whether they secured a fare or not, and the hotel clerk sleepily inquired if the gentleman wanted a room. The porter leisurely carried his grip up the stairs, and inside the room was an oldfashioned clock whose slowly swinging pendulum seemed to say, "Take your time, take your time."

In Chicago everything was reversed. All was bustle from the moment that the traveller stepped off the train until some few minutes later, out of breath, he was hustled into a room at CAUTION: Be careful to inclose a hotel. On the mantel was a little had last year expended $500,000 in Y. M. C. A. work for their employees; and these men, coming from a Y. M. C. A. building, were better able to protect the interests of the public and the railroad companies than if they came from a barroom.

The Y. M. C. A. reached all classes of men from the railroader to the student, from the North American Indian to the Chinaman of the Orient. A Broader Work.

"And the Y. M. C. A. has not only progressed mentally, physically and morally," continued Mr. Thomason, "but it has broadened in a business sense. At one time the Y. M. C. A. was satisfied to haphazard it along by merely collecting enough money for immediate use. "Now it looks ahead, and despite all this nonsensical talk of hard times, more money has actually been collected by the Y. M. C. A. since February, 1908, than in the two previous years." The speaker, in conclusion, said that the Y. M. C. A. hadn't reached the "chicken pie" plan of collecting money, and that instead of socials, sewing bees, etc., the more dignified plan of having a committee of businessmen visit other businessmen in the city. and solicit subscriptions, had been introduced.

To the Men of London. Mr. Thommason asked that London do three things, namely: Visit the luncheons to be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. "We are not going to hold you up at these luncheons," he said. "We'll get you, anyway. And when our committeeman visits you, treat him like a gentleman. He is just as busy a man as you, and besides he is giving his time to a noble work."

Mr. Yeigh's Address.

Mr. Yeigh stated that there were two distinct classes of citizenship, who assumed his duty like a man. "The highest type has to do with religion," said the speaker, "and involves a recognition of God." Religion was responsible for the highest endowment of men, and during the nineteenth century, among other thigs, brought about the abolition of slavery in the Southern States.

Twelve Hundred Bible School Scholars Mr. Yeigh, in setting forth some of the great work accomplished by the Y. M. C. A., mentioned the 1,200 Bible school scholars, whom he expected chief ideal was to build up a nation day, and said that it showed an awakening of men to men's responsibilities. Mr. Yeigh said that the London Y M. C. A. was an asset to the city and one that all citizens should and did feel proud of.

Mr. A. Cullen.

After discussing briefly the work of organizing the county districts, Mr. A Cullen eulogized the work of the Y. M. C. A. in general and illustrated his remarks with a number of timely stories. The various speakers spoke in glowing terms of the work accomplished by the local officers of the Y. M. C. A., and urged that they be given hearty support in carrying out their undertakings.
