Mother of Edward Beale Is Informed That He Was Lost on Empres.

Mrs. J. James, 603 Bathurst street, reelved a cablegram Saturday from Edward Beale's mother in England asking f her son was alive. Ringling Bros.' Performances

The cablegram was answered immediately, the reply stating that he had gone down on the Empress of Ireland.

Edward Beale, who was manager of Davies' east end store, was on his way to the home of his mother in England, to pay her a visit, when the disaster overtook the Empress of Ireland. As he was an expert swimmer, it is believed he was an expert swimmer, it is believed he was asleep in his cabin when the collision occurred, and had no time to get on deck.
