

G. T. R. AWARD UNREARNT MANY BURIED CITIES

BOMBSHELL TO BRITAIN

London Market Had Been Awaiting Decision With Optimism.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—(By Canadian Press.)—The London Daily Telegraph, like other papers, describes the Grand Trunk award as a bombshell. The London market has been awaiting the decision with what appeared to be some optimism, but the most restrained opinion of the amount likely to be distributed to the junior stockholders never contemplated a decision which, in the abbreviated form, could be described as a "travesty."

As recently as 1915, says the Telegraph, the first and second preference shareholders received full dividends, and to appraise the capital values of these issues as nil does not appear to be a fair or reasonable proposal. It is fair to understand the award or decision to be based on the principle on which the Grand Trunk came to the fore from the time the Government enforced higher wages, and declined to permit increased tariffs. Had justice been done the company, the present position would not have arisen.

The Times, describing the Grand Trunk judgment as a very disagreeable surprise, to the city, devotes three-quarters of a column to a rather non-committal summary of the findings. The notes Sir Thomas Durrant, who argued that the Grand Trunk but for Government support would have been forced into a receivership through the inability of the company to meet its obligations.

It had been contended all along, however, by the company, says the Times, that the burdens laid on it by Government action of the Canadian Pacific and its successor, taken after the company had agreed, in conformity with the Government's expressed desire of the Government in building the new railway, the G. T. P.

The Times, alluding to the increasing working costs, declares that the abnormal character of the award, the difficulty of arbitrarily determining the potential value of the railway on a basis of recent earnings.

Finally, says the Times, "it is difficult to avoid a comparison between the amount of assistance given the Grand Trunk received compared with the other Canadian systems."

Many stockholders called at the Grand Trunk offices here today, but there was absolutely nothing in the way of scenes, although the paper billboards featured the judgment.

HELD FOR OFFENCE AGAINST LITTLE GIRL

Peddler Is Placed Under Arrest by Police At Harrow.

HARROW, Sept. 8.—For an attempt at indecent assault on a little girl at the age of five, Constable Pidgeon arrested a young man who has been in the community for some months. He met the little girl in question coming from school and asked her to ride in his car. The mother laid a charge and he was arrested last night.

MOB WRECKS MANY STORES IN DUNDEE

DUNDEE, Scotland, Sept. 8.—For the third successive night a mob of unemployed engaged in window-smashing. The entire police force and a body of special constables had difficulty in dispersing the mob, but small parties continued the campaign of destruction. Scarcely a shop window in some districts was left untouched. The damage amounts to many thousands of pounds. Numerous arrests were made.

LUMBER SHEDS BURN

MONTREAL, Sept. 8.—Fire breaking out this afternoon in the lumber yards of the Redfern Lumber Company on Charlevoix street and spreading to the lumber sheds of William Rutherford & Sons, Limited, caused damage estimated at $20,000.

Members of Carnegie Expedition Locate Remnants of Towns in Central America.

Washington, Sept. 8.—After having discovered and unearthed ancient and forgotten cities that once were the centre of America's civilization, and after having begun to recover the ancient learning of the Maya people from their Indian descendants, the Carnegie Institution Central American Expedition for 1921, which penetrated the region of Guatemala, in the department of Peten at the base of the Yucatan peninsula, has returned to this city.

The expedition under the direction of Dr. Sylvanus G. Morley, associate in American archeology of the institution, left Washington early in January. The other investigators were Dr. C. E. Guthe and William Gates, both research associates of the institution, the former in charge of excavations and the latter, especially interested in the linguistic problems, not only the language spoken by their descendants but living in some parts of the same region today.

Dr. G. O. Ricketson, field assistant, and A. K. Rutherford, photographer, completed the scientific personnel of the expedition which assembled at the little frontier town of El Cayo, British Honduras, at the edge of the Yucatan Peninsula February 1.

The activities of the final season consisted of the exploration of the forested centres of this ancient civilization under the direction of Dr. Morley, the excavation of Tayasal, the last Itza Maya capital, located upon an island in the Lake of Peten Itza, in Northern Central Peten, by Dr. Guthe, and a first-hand study of the Maya language as spoken today in Northern British Honduras, and also by the Quichos, a Maya tribe living in the highlands of Guatemala, by Mr. Gates. A scientific report of the results of these investigations is in course of preparation and will be published in the current year book of the institution.

Following along the chicle (rubber) trails which traverse this region, Dr. Morley's party discovered several new cities during the course of the final season. Maps were made of these cities, and a complete photographic record secured. Many new important dates were deciphered, and a report on the archaeological remains of the region, which the dates indicate was the very heart of the Old Maya empire.

Duried Plaza Located.
Dr. Guthe's excavations at Tayasal proved equally fruitful. The principal plaza of that city was located, and the ruins of a large building, the foundations of which were made of stone, were discovered.

Dr. Guthe's excavations at Tayasal proved equally fruitful. The principal plaza of that city was located, and the ruins of a large building, the foundations of which were made of stone, were discovered.

STRATFORD REQUIRES MORE SCHOOL ROOMS

Record Attendance At the Collegiate and Separate School.

STRATFORD, Sept. 8.—The local attendance at the Collegiate is announced today as 965, a record figure. The total attendance at the separate school, it has been found necessary to transfer the senior fourth class to the convent, it is probable that next year will see a new separate school in the east end of the city. Property for such a building was purchased last year. The new school, it is announced, will speak here at a date to be announced, in the interests of the city. The new school, it is announced, will speak here at a date to be announced, in the interests of the city.

LABOR WILL CONTEST FOUR TORONTO SEATS

Course Is Decided At Mass Meeting Last Night.

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—Labor will contest four of the Toronto seats in the coming federal election. At a mass meeting called by the Labor representation committee in the Labor Temple tonight, candidates for the seats of South Toronto, John W. Bruce; Central Toronto, James Simpson; East Toronto, Mrs. Hector Prenter; The Labor representation committee is in the midst of a campaign to secure the election of a Labor party and, with the exception of James Richards, the candidate of the party, understood to be in sympathy with the radical socialist wing of the Labor party.

Co-operation with the United Farmers of Ontario in the York constituencies was adopted as the policy of the contest. Support was also given to the candidature of the farmer candidate in West York, and in East and South York, joint conventions will be held with the United Farmers.

STRATFORD REQUIRES MORE SCHOOL ROOMS

Record Attendance At the Collegiate and Separate School.

STRATFORD, Sept. 8.—The local attendance at the Collegiate is announced today as 965, a record figure. The total attendance at the separate school, it has been found necessary to transfer the senior fourth class to the convent, it is probable that next year will see a new separate school in the east end of the city. Property for such a building was purchased last year. The new school, it is announced, will speak here at a date to be announced, in the interests of the city. The new school, it is announced, will speak here at a date to be announced, in the interests of the city.

FATHER FFOULKES IS GOING TO ROME

WOODSTOCK, Sept. 8.—Father Brian Ffoulkes, a young local priest, as a result of the splendid academic honors he acquired at St. Peter's Seminary, London, Ont., will take up a special course of study in Rome and leave in a few days for the continent. He will be accompanied by his brother, who is a student at the seminary with most distinction and as a result of these honors he will take a course, Rev. Father Ffoulkes has been in charge of the parish at Parkhill for the past six weeks.

FAMILY TROUBLES MAY HAVE ANNOYED WOMAN

WINDSOR, Sept. 8.—"If I am not here you will know that I will be here, there are no more heartaches," Mrs. Gladys Askey, aged 26, wrote on a note which she left on a table at the home of her brother, Edgar Askey, 812 Ashmun street, before she went away at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday night.

She returned home less than an hour later after police headquarters had been notified by the brother that the woman had left home intent on doing away with herself.

The reason for the note and her short disappearance is not fully known by police, but they conjecture that family trouble was the cause.

BURIED AT SEAFORTH

SEAFORTH, Sept. 8.—The funeral of Sydney Johns, aged 26, who died on Tuesday from heart-failure following pneumonia, took place from his residence this afternoon. He was born in Tuckersmith Township, where he resided until he retired to Seaforth about seventeen years ago. He was twice married and leaves a widow, but no family.

WILL LIKELY BREAK RECORD

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—With two days still to go the attendance at the National Exhibition up till tonight totaled 1,067,000. Only 134,000 more are required to establish a new attendance record. Today's total was 75,000 or 6,000 more than for the corresponding day of last year.

APPONYI HELD UP

PARIS, Sept. 8.—Count Albert Apponyi, former president of the Hungarian parliament, who left Budapest recently on his way to Geneva to request the admission of Hungary into the League of Nations, was unable to proceed further than Vienna, for reasons which are unknown, according to a dispatch reaching the Hungarian agency in Paris from Budapest. The dispatch adds that Count Apponyi has returned to Budapest.

SPLENDID FESTIVAL AT GODERICH FAIR

Parade Was One of the Best in History of the Exhibition.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
GODERICH, Sept. 8.—The Industrial Fair came to a most successful close today. The parade in front of the grandstand was one of the best in the history of the fair.

The results of the races were:
2:12 P.M. Parade
Lady May C. Chittick, Teaswater 2 2 3
Billy Bishop, Mullin, Alisa Craig 1 2 3
Earl W. Johnston, London 2 2 3
2:30 P.M. Race 2500.
Loran, Bannerman, West 5 5 5 5
Watson Barne, Waddell, Str 6 4 4 5
Daisy Hal, Dr. Whitley, God 2 3 2 3
King 1 2 3 3 2
Craig 4 1 1 1 1
Jim Norish, Litt, Mitchell 5 4 1 1
Time—2:25 1/2, 2:26, 2:27
Starter—Walter Burnside, Kincaid.

FIFTEEN-FOOT CORN CUT NEAR INGERSOLL

Grop Cut by Hand and Was Difficult To Haul.

INGERSOLL, Sept. 8.—Corn on the farm of Mr. Cowell, east of the town, has attracted much interest because of its great height. One stalk that was cut for the purpose measured 15 feet 6 inches. It was necessary to cut the crop by hand, and to haul it from the field has been a problem. The corn is the property of the Southern Western Farmers' Union, and is being shown at the exhibition.

STRATFORD REQUIRES MORE SCHOOL ROOMS

Record Attendance At the Collegiate and Separate School.

STRATFORD, Sept. 8.—The local attendance at the Collegiate is announced today as 965, a record figure. The total attendance at the separate school, it has been found necessary to transfer the senior fourth class to the convent, it is probable that next year will see a new separate school in the east end of the city. Property for such a building was purchased last year. The new school, it is announced, will speak here at a date to be announced, in the interests of the city. The new school, it is announced, will speak here at a date to be announced, in the interests of the city.

FATHER FFOULKES IS GOING TO ROME

WOODSTOCK, Sept. 8.—Father Brian Ffoulkes, a young local priest, as a result of the splendid academic honors he acquired at St. Peter's Seminary, London, Ont., will take up a special course of study in Rome and leave in a few days for the continent. He will be accompanied by his brother, who is a student at the seminary with most distinction and as a result of these honors he will take a course, Rev. Father Ffoulkes has been in charge of the parish at Parkhill for the past six weeks.

FAMILY TROUBLES MAY HAVE ANNOYED WOMAN

WINDSOR, Sept. 8.—"If I am not here you will know that I will be here, there are no more heartaches," Mrs. Gladys Askey, aged 26, wrote on a note which she left on a table at the home of her brother, Edgar Askey, 812 Ashmun street, before she went away at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday night.

She returned home less than an hour later after police headquarters had been notified by the brother that the woman had left home intent on doing away with herself.

The reason for the note and her short disappearance is not fully known by police, but they conjecture that family trouble was the cause.

BURIED AT SEAFORTH

SEAFORTH, Sept. 8.—The funeral of Sydney Johns, aged 26, who died on Tuesday from heart-failure following pneumonia, took place from his residence this afternoon. He was born in Tuckersmith Township, where he resided until he retired to Seaforth about seventeen years ago. He was twice married and leaves a widow, but no family.

WILL LIKELY BREAK RECORD

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—With two days still to go the attendance at the National Exhibition up till tonight totaled 1,067,000. Only 134,000 more are required to establish a new attendance record. Today's total was 75,000 or 6,000 more than for the corresponding day of last year.

APPONYI HELD UP

PARIS, Sept. 8.—Count Albert Apponyi, former president of the Hungarian parliament, who left Budapest recently on his way to Geneva to request the admission of Hungary into the League of Nations, was unable to proceed further than Vienna, for reasons which are unknown, according to a dispatch reaching the Hungarian agency in Paris from Budapest. The dispatch adds that Count Apponyi has returned to Budapest.

LILLE PROTESTS BILL FROM GERMANY FOR REPAIRS TO THEATRE

"Bluff and Bad Taste," Comments French Press On Report From Berlin.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—"A typical instance of German bluff and bad taste" was the unanimous decision by the French press in commenting on dispatches received here from Berlin that Herr Grunewald, director of the Karlsruhe Theatre, had stated Germany had put in a bill for reconstructing the Grand Theatre in Lille during the enemy occupation of that city. Immediately after the publication of these Berlin dispatches protests began arriving here from Lille and other towns in Northern France demanding to know what purpose the French Foreign Office intended to do about it.

An investigation showed the Germans spent a million francs rebuilding the Grand Theatre at Lille along German lines, but promptly made a levy on the city treasury for the total cost of the work. Numerous performances were held there with German music and actors imported from Germany with the Kaiser's consent, but not one centime for paying of the money received from these performances ever reached the Lille municipal treasury.

This might have been overlooked by the people of Lille had the Germans left the theatre intact, but when the order for retreat was given the interior of the theatre was badly damaged, the seats broken up and the scenery burned in the street to give the impression that the invaders had decided to have a final holocaust. The Lille authorities had to put the theatre in order again.

With such a dossier ready it is certain that the reply of the Quai d'Orsay, if it is asked to pay again for this last month by a Lille theatrical manager when a jobless German who had achieved success during the occupation asked for chance on the stage there, this manager immediately called a strong gendarme, who escorted the actor to the railroad station and placed him aboard the first eastbound train with a free ticket to Berlin, assuring him at the same time in the best Franco-Flemish German, "Nichts!"

Most Americans believe that Nikolai Lenin is president of Russia, whereas he holds an office which corresponds to that of the British premier, Michael Kalinin, a peasant for more than two years, has been president of the All-Russian central executive committee. His position is only about as politically powerful as that of the French president, and whereas the French executive is mostly social, the Russian president is mostly a champion and political adviser of the peasant masses of Russia.

Kalinin's office in Moscow is not in the Kremlin, but in an ordinary office building, in the heart of the city. It is the one place in Russia where no "papers" are demanded when one enters and no guards stand about the doors.

CITY PAID FOR THE WORK THEN BUILDING WAS DAMAGED AND SCENERY BURNED IN BIG RETREAT.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—"A typical instance of German bluff and bad taste" was the unanimous decision by the French press in commenting on dispatches received here from Berlin that Herr Grunewald, director of the Karlsruhe Theatre, had stated Germany had put in a bill for reconstructing the Grand Theatre in Lille during the enemy occupation of that city. Immediately after the publication of these Berlin dispatches protests began arriving here from Lille and other towns in Northern France demanding to know what purpose the French Foreign Office intended to do about it.

An investigation showed the Germans spent a million francs rebuilding the Grand Theatre at Lille along German lines, but promptly made a levy on the city treasury for the total cost of the work. Numerous performances were held there with German music and actors imported from Germany with the Kaiser's consent, but not one centime for paying of the money received from these performances ever reached the Lille municipal treasury.

This might have been overlooked by the people of Lille had the Germans left the theatre intact, but when the order for retreat was given the interior of the theatre was badly damaged, the seats broken up and the scenery burned in the street to give the impression that the invaders had decided to have a final holocaust. The Lille authorities had to put the theatre in order again.

With such a dossier ready it is certain that the reply of the Quai d'Orsay, if it is asked to pay again for this last month by a Lille theatrical manager when a jobless German who had achieved success during the occupation asked for chance on the stage there, this manager immediately called a strong gendarme, who escorted the actor to the railroad station and placed him aboard the first eastbound train with a free ticket to Berlin, assuring him at the same time in the best Franco-Flemish German, "Nichts!"

Most Americans believe that Nikolai Lenin is president of Russia, whereas he holds an office which corresponds to that of the British premier, Michael Kalinin, a peasant for more than two years, has been president of the All-Russian central executive committee. His position is only about as politically powerful as that of the French president, and whereas the French executive is mostly social, the Russian president is mostly a champion and political adviser of the peasant masses of Russia.

Kalinin's office in Moscow is not in the Kremlin, but in an ordinary office building, in the heart of the city. It is the one place in Russia where no "papers" are demanded when one enters and no guards stand about the doors.

With such a dossier ready it is certain that the reply of the Quai d'Orsay, if it is asked to pay again for this last month by a Lille theatrical manager when a jobless German who had achieved success during the occupation asked for chance on the stage there, this manager immediately called a strong gendarme, who escorted the actor to the railroad station and placed him aboard the first eastbound train with a free ticket to Berlin, assuring him at the same time in the best Franco-Flemish German, "Nichts!"

Most Americans believe that Nikolai Lenin is president of Russia, whereas he holds an office which corresponds to that of the British premier, Michael Kalinin, a peasant for more than two years, has been president of the All-Russian central executive committee. His position is only about as politically powerful as that of the French president, and whereas the French executive is mostly social, the Russian president is mostly a champion and political adviser of the peasant masses of Russia.

Kalinin's office in Moscow is not in the Kremlin, but in an ordinary office building, in the heart of the city. It is the one place in Russia where no "papers" are demanded when one enters and no guards stand about the doors.

With such a dossier ready it is certain that the reply of the Quai d'Orsay, if it is asked to pay again for this last month by a Lille theatrical manager when a jobless German who had achieved success during the occupation asked for chance on the stage there, this manager immediately called a strong gendarme, who escorted the actor to the railroad station and placed him aboard the first eastbound train with a free ticket to Berlin, assuring him at the same time in the best Franco-Flemish German, "Nichts!"

Most Americans believe that Nikolai Lenin is president of Russia, whereas he holds an office which corresponds to that of the British premier, Michael Kalinin, a peasant for more than two years, has been president of the All-Russian central executive committee. His position is only about as politically powerful as that of the French president, and whereas the French executive is mostly social, the Russian president is mostly a champion and political adviser of the peasant masses of Russia.

Kalinin's office in Moscow is not in the Kremlin, but in an ordinary office building, in the heart of the city. It is the one place in Russia where no "papers" are demanded when one enters and no guards stand about the doors.

With such a dossier ready it is certain that the reply of the Quai d'Orsay, if it is asked to pay again for this last month by a Lille theatrical manager when a jobless German who had achieved success during the occupation asked for chance on the stage there, this manager immediately called a strong gendarme, who escorted the actor to the railroad station and placed him aboard the first eastbound train with a free ticket to Berlin, assuring him at the same time in the best Franco-Flemish German, "Nichts!"

Most Americans believe that Nikolai Lenin is president of Russia, whereas he holds an office which corresponds to that of the British premier, Michael Kalinin, a peasant for more than two years, has been president of the All-Russian central executive committee. His position is only about as politically powerful as that of the French president, and whereas the French executive is mostly social, the Russian president is mostly a champion and political adviser of the peasant masses of Russia.

Kalinin's office in Moscow is not in the Kremlin, but in an ordinary office building, in the heart of the city. It is the one place in Russia where no "papers" are demanded when one enters and no guards stand about the doors.

With such a dossier ready it is certain that the reply of the Quai d'Orsay, if it is asked to pay again for this last month by a Lille theatrical manager when a jobless German who had achieved success during the occupation asked for chance on the stage there, this manager immediately called a strong gendarme, who escorted the actor to the railroad station and placed him aboard the first eastbound train with a free ticket to Berlin, assuring him at the same time in the best Franco-Flemish German, "Nichts!"

Most Americans believe that Nikolai Lenin is president of Russia, whereas he holds an office which corresponds to that of the British premier, Michael Kalinin, a peasant for more than two years, has been president of the All-Russian central executive committee. His position is only about as politically powerful as that of the French president, and whereas the French executive is mostly social, the Russian president is mostly a champion and political adviser of the peasant masses of Russia.

Kalinin's office in Moscow is not in the Kremlin, but in an ordinary office building, in the heart of the city. It is the one place in Russia where no "papers" are demanded when one enters and no guards stand about the doors.

With such a dossier ready it is certain that the reply of the Quai d'Orsay, if it is asked to pay again for this last month by a Lille theatrical manager when a jobless German who had achieved success during the occupation asked for chance on the stage there, this manager immediately called a strong gendarme, who escorted the actor to the railroad station and placed him aboard the first eastbound train with a free ticket to Berlin, assuring him at the same time in the best Franco-Flemish German, "Nichts!"

Most Americans believe that Nikolai Lenin is president of Russia, whereas he holds an office which corresponds to that of the British premier, Michael Kalinin, a peasant for more than two years, has been president of the All-Russian central executive committee. His position is only about as politically powerful as that of the French president, and whereas the French executive is mostly social, the Russian president is mostly a champion and political adviser of the peasant masses of Russia.

Kalinin's office in Moscow is not in the Kremlin, but in an ordinary office building, in the heart of the city. It is the one place in Russia where no "papers" are demanded when one enters and no guards stand about the doors.

With such a dossier ready it is certain that the reply of the Quai d'Orsay, if it is asked to pay again for this last month by a Lille theatrical manager when a jobless German who had achieved success during the occupation asked for chance on the stage there, this manager immediately called a strong gendarme, who escorted the actor to the railroad station and placed him aboard the first eastbound train with a free ticket to Berlin, assuring him at the same time in the best Franco-Flemish German, "Nichts!"

Most Americans believe that Nikolai Lenin is president of Russia, whereas he holds an office which corresponds to that of the British premier, Michael Kalinin, a peasant for more than two years, has been president of the All-Russian central executive committee. His position is only about as politically powerful as that of the French president, and whereas the French executive is mostly social, the Russian president is mostly a champion and political adviser of the peasant masses of Russia.

Kalinin's office in Moscow is not in the Kremlin, but in an ordinary office building, in the heart of the city. It is the one place in Russia where no "papers" are demanded when one enters and no guards stand about the doors.

With such a dossier ready it is certain that the reply of the Quai d'Orsay, if it is asked to pay again for this last month by a Lille theatrical manager when a jobless German who had achieved success during the occupation asked for chance on the stage there, this manager immediately called a strong gendarme, who escorted the actor to the railroad station and placed him aboard the first eastbound train with a free ticket to Berlin, assuring him at the same time in the best Franco-Flemish German, "Nichts!"

Most Americans believe that Nikolai Lenin is president of Russia, whereas he holds an office which corresponds to that of the British premier, Michael Kalinin, a peasant for more than two years, has been president of the All-Russian central executive committee. His position is only about as politically powerful as that of the French president, and whereas the French executive is mostly social, the Russian president is mostly a champion and political adviser of the peasant masses of Russia.

Kalinin's office in Moscow is not in the Kremlin, but in an ordinary office building, in the heart of the city. It is the one place in Russia where no "papers" are demanded when one enters and no guards stand about the doors.

With such a dossier ready it is certain that the reply of the Quai d'Orsay, if it is asked to pay again for this last month by a Lille theatrical manager when a jobless German who had achieved success during the occupation asked for chance on the stage there, this manager immediately called a strong gendarme, who escorted the actor to the railroad station and placed him aboard the first eastbound train with a free ticket to Berlin, assuring him at the same time in the best Franco-Flemish German, "Nichts!"

AUDITOR QUESTIONS USE OF FUNDS FOR BUILDING RADIALS

Copies of Sutherland Report Have Been Given To the Press.

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—Copies of the complete Sutherland report condemning the hydro radial project have been handed to the press, and contain a lot of details not covered in the summary recently handed out by Premier Durrant.

A feature of the report is a letter from G. T. Clarkson, auditor, to the attorney-general, in which he sets forth the various sums invested by the hydro-electric commission of Ontario in the various radial propositions. The letter says in part:

"While only $413,620 had been invested in the Port Credit-St. Kitts line, the province had guaranteed bonds to the extent of $11,580,363, of which $1,200,000 stood deposited on October 31, 1920, with the Bank of Montreal as security for the payment of advances of $100,000."

On or about December 25, 1920, a further loan of $400,000 was obtained from the bank, which then was owed $500,000 with the $1,200,000 of bonds as security. The additional loan was secured to repay $313,620 for radial purposes which had been expended out of moneys belonging to the power undertaking.

As to this, Mr. Clarkson says: "The use of power funds for such purposes is unauthorized."

No cash advances have been made for the St. Kitts line by the province. The amount of $53,256 spent on the line to Port Credit was expended on the strength of promises made by Sir William Hearst, and was taken out of power funds. It was mainly used by the commission to hold municipal bonds to the amount of $5,109,573. Mr. Clarkson adds that "no bonds had been taken by the commission; neither had the by-law in respect of the line. Mr. Clarkson seems to think the commission had legal authority for this expenditure."

As to the expenditure of $124,087 on the other radials, Mr. Clarkson says they "were made out of funds held by the commission for the benefit of power undertakings, and without any apparent legal authority."

Sanitary Association HAS CHANGE OF NAME

OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—At the concluding session of the Canadian Sanitary Association annual convention here this afternoon it was decided to change the name of the association to the Sanitary Association of Canada. The Sanitary Association of Canada, which was formed in 1914, has been in existence for six years. It was decided to change the name of the association to the Sanitary Association of Canada. The Sanitary Association of Canada, which was formed in 1914, has been in existence for six years. It was decided to change the name of the association to the Sanitary Association of Canada.

TO CONTEST SOUTH RENFREW. OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press.)—I. E. Pedlow, member of Parliament for South Renfrew, who was in the city today, stated to Canadian Press that he expected again to contest South Renfrew in the coming election. Mr. Pedlow also stated that he had been informed that there would be no U. F. O. candidate in the field against him in South Renfrew in the coming fall.

TO CONTEST SOUTH RENFREW. OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press.)—I. E. Pedlow, member of Parliament for South Renfrew, who was in the city today, stated to Canadian Press that he expected again to contest South Renfrew in the coming election. Mr. Pedlow also stated that he had been informed that there would be no U. F. O. candidate in the field against him in South Renfrew in the coming fall.

TO CONTEST SOUTH RENFREW. OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press.)—I. E. Pedlow, member of Parliament for South Renfrew, who was in the city today, stated to Canadian Press that he expected again to contest South Renfrew in the coming election. Mr. Pedlow also stated that he had been informed that there would be no U. F. O. candidate in the field against him in South Renfrew in the coming fall.

TO CONTEST SOUTH RENFREW. OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press.)—I. E. Pedlow, member of Parliament for South Renfrew, who was in the city today, stated to Canadian Press that he expected again to contest South Renfrew in the coming election. Mr. Pedlow also stated that he had been informed that there would be no U. F. O. candidate in the field against him in South Renfrew in the coming fall.

TO CONTEST SOUTH RENFREW. OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press.)—I. E. Pedlow, member of Parliament for South Renfrew, who was in the city today, stated to Canadian Press that he expected again to contest South Renfrew in the coming election. Mr. Pedlow also stated that he had been informed that there would be no U. F. O. candidate in the field against him in South Renfrew in the coming fall.

TO CONTEST SOUTH RENFREW. OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press.)—I. E. Pedlow, member of Parliament for South Renfrew, who was in the city today, stated to Canadian Press that he expected again to contest South Renfrew in the coming election. Mr. Pedlow also stated that he had been informed that there would be no U. F. O. candidate in the field against him in South Renfrew in the coming fall.

TO CONTEST SOUTH RENFREW. OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press.)—I. E. Pedlow, member of Parliament for South Renfrew, who was in the city today, stated to Canadian Press that he expected again to contest South Renfrew in the coming election. Mr. Pedlow also stated that he had been informed that there would be no U. F. O. candidate in the field against him in South Renfrew in the coming fall.

TO CONTEST SOUTH RENFREW. OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press.)—I. E. Pedlow, member of Parliament for South Renfrew, who was in the