PLAN FLOWER DISPLAY AT THE WESTERN FAIR

London Horticultural Society Is Determined on Better Show.

Plans for a pretentious floral display at the Western Fair were made at a meeting of the executive of the London Horticultural Society Saturday night.
Officials of the society are determined that St. Thomas will not repeat its performance of last year by carrying home a majority of the prizes, although that city still boasts the name of "Flower City."
The rules governing the exhibition of flowers this year will be changed especially regarding the display, and it is expected that a greater variety of flowers will be called for than was the case last year. This, the local society claims, will put a crimp more or less in the aspirations of St. Thomas, for the success of the St. Thomas society last year was due almost entirely to gladioli grown at the trial beds.
Opposition in this year is expected also from Woodstock, for the society in that city has expressed intentions of placing a display in the Western Fair.

The local society is planning a drive to increase its strength. With this end in view, thousands of pamphlets have been published outlining the aims of the society, and these will be distributed with the water and electric light bills. Arrangements have been made with the public utilities commission for the payment of membership fees at the city offices.
The society is planning to give two premiums this year instead of only one. Members will be given this spring a shrub named Philadelphia of Mock Orange. In the fall, it is intended that a choice of tulips, a peony or a Japan lily will be given.
Plans are also being laid for the establishment of an annual show to be known as the City of London Civic Flower Show. This will be held in addition to other shows which are already established.

Extend $10,000 Guarantee To Aid the Western Fair

City Council To Indemnify Association If 25-Cent Fair Proves Loss—Much Talk Achieves Little.

Ald. W. A. Wilson was the "star" performer in the city council again last night, undertaking, from time to time, to inform the mayor that what he didn't know about parliamentary procedure would fill a large-sized volume.
The ex-chairman of the board of works maintained a running fight throughout the evening with the customary termination—he was ruled out of order. Later in the game Ald. Wilson's motion to disband the present traffic committee and appoint another without the presence of Ald. Douglass was voted down.
"Don't ever speak to me again," was his farewell to Mayor Wenige as he left the council chamber, indicating in a small way his opinion toward the chief magistrate of the city.
Another interesting feature of the evening was noted when Mayor Wenige reported that the public utilities list would be ready for the municipal year book as ordered.

Proved a Fizzle.
The promised "overthrow" of the mayor and his associates, as predicted in the evening edition of a local contemporary, failed miserably to materialize. The "master-piece"—all about Andy Hicks' "neverthing"—which must have prompted hours of toil, failed to cause even a ripple of excitement in the council chamber.
The mayor's assurance that he would have the coveted lists as they had ordered quite satisfied all assembled last night, with the possible exception of the contemporary's representative who awaited with a poised pencil for the juicy morsels of repartee that would come from "those on the inside who did not care to give their names for publication." The mythical and very mysterious "Andy Hicks" was not in evidence, or if he was he had been well groomed by Mayor Wenige and Co. Perhaps Andy Gump was there, but he kept well in the background. The "big coup to shake the very foundations of the city hall" was not on the program. Once more the famous "city hall circle" proved to be an absolute circle with the local contemporary inside.

Promise Guaranteed.
After hearing brief remarks from Western Fair officials, the council supported Mayor Wenige's proposal to guarantee the association to the extent of $10,000 any possible loss that might be noted after a straight 25 cent admission fee throughout fair week. Unanimity did not prevail, five members of the council holding him that they were not quite familiar with the terms of the tender where one of their competitors gained a day with a 10 per cent discount.

City Engineer Near, assisted by Ald. Douglass, insisting that the same procedure as in the past had been followed, and no discrimination had been made in any instance, and the lower tender had always been accepted, specifications were as required.
Ald. Watt wanted to know how it came that these prices "leaked out" before a council session.

"There is something wrong about this," he declared. "These figures should not get out. We should not be canvassing at our homes. It's not right when we are trying to be fair."
City Clerk Baker explained that the report had been mailed to every alderman Friday night, and that Douglass made it clear that while he was not attacking the city clerk, he questioned who was on the clerk's mailing list and that from here, no doubt, the information gained an outlet. An amendment to refer several tenders back to the committee was lost, Ald. Colbert declining to vote with members of the finance committee, from whence the agitation started.

Make Usual Progress.
The usual transportation parley terminated in the usual way—nowhere. The first clause of the report from the special committee was adopted without objection—the city engineer be empowered to instruct the street railway company where to lay more than seven miles of trackage which he claims is due the municipality.

The remaining clauses of the report, including the several proposed paving enterprises and the contemplated conversion of 15 cars into one-man cars, were eliminated after a sharp discussion.
"Since hearing the attitude of the company after our action I would have thought we strike this all out," declared Ald. Watt. Mayor Wenige reported that he had just conferred with the city solicitor and learned that the city engineer was empowered, in accordance with by-law 916, to deal with the company in every instance, including the operation of one-man cars.
Ald. Greer wanted to hear what objections there were to the latter type of transportation. Ald. Douglass contended that they would not increase the service and would result in less work for the employees.

Get In Early Work.
"This is not a question of barter and exchange with the company" he admonished "I've been over buying double-truck cars before they ever asked permission for these cars."

Ald. Watt also questioned the use of "tired-out cars from Cleveland."
Ald. McKay couldn't see why any more one-man cars should be allowed in after riding on the ones now in operation. Ald. Colbert asserted that the introduction of one-man cars was a backward step and that Windsor was abandoning several. The latest proposal would throw 30 men out of steady work.

Ald. Hayden differed. He had been conversing, he stated, with a man from Leavelle, where nearly all the cars in service were of this variety. As is always the case when the street railway company is under fire the discussion was carried far afield and numerous disputes as to parliamentary procedure divided the time until Ald. Wilson drew attention to the fact that "he could not get a chance to speak with certain ones who thought they owned the council jumping up and down like a jack-in-the-box."

The debate was adjourned until Wednesday night when the council stages another engagement with the company authorities.

At the request from Ald. John Colbert the mayor promised to investigate the report that trackmen employed by the L. and P. S. had been subject to a two cent an hour reduction.
"First, I have heard of it," assured the mayor. "But I will look into it."

"You said on your platform no reductions in wages," reminded Ald. Colbert.

Consider Garbage Men.
His Worship also promised to consider a proposal that the garbage workers enjoy holidays in common with other civic employees.

The councilors settled back for a few moments' enjoyment while the mayor and Ald. Wilson crossed bayonets again, the former moving that a new traffic committee be appointed, exclusive of Ald. Douglass. After a prolonged discussion the mayor Ald. Douglass into the fray at intervals the mayor ruled the entire business out of order and Ald. Wilson informed the council that he had a lot to learn yet about procedure.

Ald. Douglass moved, and it was passed with a standing vote, that they show respect to the long and faithful service to the city by Stephen Grant, Martin O'Sullivan and Harry Merritt.

Ask the Way

To those prettier teeth which millions now enjoy

You see prettier teeth now wherever you look. A few years ago they were seen less often than now.

You cannot but realize that a change has come in methods of teeth cleaning. Won't you ask for a test and learn what brings those whiter, cleaner, safer teeth?

They fight film
Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays.
Film absorbs stains, then forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film. That's why teeth lose luster.

Avoid Harmful Grit
Pepsodent cushions the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Powerful aids
Pepsodent also gives manifold power to Nature's tooth-protecting agents. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

Watch the change
Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Two new ways now
No old-time tooth paste could effectively fight film. So dental science sought new methods, and two ways were found. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.
