A Prisoner's Testimony Before the C. P. Commission-The Evidence Concluded -Argument to be Heard Thursday.

After sitting day after day for upward, of a month the Central prison commission has at last heard all the evidence on both sides of the case. This was accomplished yesterday by holding session for twelve hours, from 11 a.m. till 10 o'clock last Guard Guinness testified as to the extreme bad character of the prisoners who had so blackened his own record. He gave his version of his struggle with Fay.

He merely laid hold of the boy, who immediately cursed him and dashed tea in his face. With regard to poking the junatic Goggins with a stick thrust through his cell door, he explained that he only drew out the man's dishes with the pole, Goggins was such a dangerous character. He denied the truth of several other charges of cruelty against him.

also expressed a beller that the output had not a fair proportion of onects in the prison. In the afterneon Barnard Lowen, em-ployed in the brick yard, remembered Guard Hart holding a half-hour's confiden-tial conversation with the prisoner Fay. Guard Irving said that Guard Hart had often told him to refuse the priest admis-sion, although he had no authority to say such a thing. When Father McCabe came witness refused him admission, but the warden coming up told him that in future he must always admit the reverend gen-tleman. He had heard Hart speak disre-spectfully of the warden.
