Helping on the Right. Archibald McKeilar, sheriff of Wentworth, is an humble instrument in the hands of fate. The Opposition in the Legislature can only shower ineffectual blows upon the resounding hide of the fee system, but fate inserted e McKellar into the very heart of it, where he makes painful its every beat. His petition to the Legislature must convince the public that the system doing him this alteged injustice requires a complete overhauling. The deeply-injure's gentleman secured $3618 annually in fees for three years and considers this quite satisfactory, but in 1881 through a change in the Judicature Act $1374 of his fees was annually diverted to lawyers, and for ten years he has struggled along on an average income of $2243. As the sheriff complains to the Legislature, "my loss in the ten years has been $13.749."

Permit us to branch off here and resurrect the permit and permit the permit and permit and permit the permit the permit and permit the permit the permit the permit and permit the p alteged injustice requires a complete over-

There is no comparison in this case with that of Sheriff McKellar. He does not ask the Legislature to reimburse him for postage expenses, nor for his loss of $15,749. Moreover, his fees accrue to him in a purely legal nanner, be they small or great.

Sheriff McKellar's petition promises belp those who in justice to the people oppose the fee system. If the sheriffs make war appa lawyers fees, the lawyers may assail the sheriffs' fees, and in the antagonism of two section of a bad system the suffering public may profit. The patitioner in this case may count upon the sympathy of the Mowat Administration, for lawyers are not necessarily its supporters, and the fat fee system was not created nor is it maintained
