GEN. GASCOIGNE'S COMMENT ON TORONTO'S REGIMENT.

1100 Men Turned Out for the Annual Garrison Parade Yesterday-General Gascoigne Reviews the Men-Canon Dumoulin Delivers an Impressive Sermon to the Battalion in Massey Hall.

Probably no other city on the continent, and even in the world, is prouder of its citizen soldiers than is Toronto, and yesterday it did honor to fier brave boys, as it has done on similar occasions in days gone by, and will doubtless continue to do as long as there is a necessity. It is a representative and enthusiastic crowd that turn out in Toronto to see the soldier boys on their cheering parade.

It was a glorious day. Had the military authorities had the power to make the weather themselves they could not have done better, and the annual garrison church parade this year was the largest that ever took place in the city. An hour before the soldiers were expected the line of routes was crowded with people of all ages who were waiting with great expectations for the march past of the flower of Toronto.

It was 3 o'clock when the strains of martial music, mingled with the steady tramp of many feet, announced that the march to Massey Hall had commenced. The procession was led by the staff officers, followed by the then came the dashing Dragoons in their spotless uniforms and their excellent scarlet, making them very distinguishable. Next were the Governor-General's Body Guard, who presented themselves in their gaudy and brilliant uniforms of blue and white. The Toronto Garrison Artillery and No. 2 Co. Royal Canadian Regiment of Infantry followed, and in their wake came the Highlanders in their noble feather bonnets, with their banners waving to the music of their marching, the regiment carrying themselves in a manner that would be creditable to regulars.

The route of the march was from King west of York, Sherbourne to the Queen and Victoria-streets, to the hall. Queen and Bond-streets General Gascoigne, accompanied by Sir Casimir Gzowski, Col. Powell, Adjutant-General and Col. Lake, quartermaster-general, reviewed the brigade. As the different regiments passed his carriage the general was said to be very favorably impressed.

When the Queen's Own came swinging along, 700 strong, General Gascoigne smiled with pleasure, observing to his attendants: "Good! Very good marching! They've got the real swing! They are well drilled!"

As Major-General Gascoigne stood up in his carriage to review the troops the assembled multitude afforded an excellent view of the new commander. They saw a soldierly-looking man with broad shoulders and a deep chest, though not quite as tall as some of the fellow-officers; a man evidently 50 to 55 years of age, though seemingly somewhat younger. The general was a stoutish man with a mustache and short side-whiskers of an Auburn hue, though slightly tinged with grey. His uniform was somewhat more elaborate than that worn by the others, being augmented by a gold sash and a small blue ribbon which was displayed conspicuously on the left breast. At the general's side hung a handsome sword with an ivory hilt studded with gold and an imposing gold cross.

Next General Gascoigne's carriage was one occupied by Lieut.-Governor Kirkpatrick, Mr. Kirkpatrick, Miss Kirkpatrick and Mr. Gamble.

Long before the militia had approached, the galleries and boxes of Massey Music Hall were filled by those lucky enough to hold tickets. On the platform were the Royal Canadian Dragoons, Governor-General's Body Guard, Toronto Garrison Artillery, Artillery and the band of the Queen's Own, which furnished the music. The other troops occupied the boxes of the hall, and as they filed slowly through the doors the Gren's band outside played Sousa's "King Cotton March," which was accompanied with the tramping of troops, bugle calls and the skirt of the banners.

able professions in the world—the profession of arms. Jobius was perhaps the most notable example of the kind to be found in the Divine book. He was Moses' minister with the soldier's traits of bravery and honor, and who always carried his great javelin as an emblem of his station.

When Moses was taken to the mount and realized that it was his lot to journey upon the promised land and die there upon the mount, then it was that the necessity for such a man as Joshua arose. He gave to every man, said the preacher, "that wisdom, temper, understanding, taste, that lifts him up in life and lets him fall best in the lot he was ordained to fill." In Joshua a great example had been put before them. He had to take up the leadership where Moses left off, and passing the Jordan with the women and children he had to fight his way forward, so thoroughly routing every army that never again should it raise its head against the God of Israel. He overthrew six kings, 30 kingdoms, went up against Jericho and never lost a battle except one caused by the sin of a soldier. After finding out the guilty man and severely punishing him, victory once more perched upon Joshua's banners. All this went to show the wonderful character of the man—a perfect soldier. A whole chapter was devoted in the Divine book as an example to all men, showing them how to be faithful, how to conquer, how to be victorious, how to demean themselves in the hour of trial and then how to end life's fight surrounded by a Divine halo. Nor was there lacking in history many such: Washington, Wellington, always calm, always quiet, always decided, always pure and disinterested, placing his country under everlasting obligations to him. Such a man was a light for the soldiers of the world to look up to and imitate.

With these eloquent words the preacher concluded: "Bethink you of Joshua's great ancestry, of Jesus who not only delivers you from your sins but from all your enemies. He after the conflicts of this life delivers you from the great enemy."

Signor P. Delacosa sang Hardman's arrangement of "Honor and Arms," and after singing "God Save the Queen," the congregation dispersed. The return march was by way of Yonge and King to York-street, where they dispersed to their several quarters.

The staff was composed of Major Buchan, Brigade Major Col. Hamilton, G.O.R. in charge of infantry brigade; Capt. Williams, R.C.D., brigade adjutant; Capt. Kirkpatrick, A.D.C.; Lieut. MacLellan, A.D.C.; Surgeon-General Strange and Surgeon-General Hyerson.

The parade was 304 of all ranks. "A" Squadron, Royal Canadian Dragoons, Capt. Williams ..... 41

This does not include a number of men who arrived after roll had been called.

The various bands of all the regiments showed up in good form, the music being all that could be desired. Some of the tunics worn by the Q.O.R. looked rather rusty and it was more than once remarked that it is time those helmets were very useful in keeping the crowd back.

At the corner of Shuter and Bond-streets the general and his attendants left their carriage to walk to the Massey Hall. The crowd was so dense that little headway could be made and the commander was hustled somewhat severely. He bore it good-naturedly and shook hands with a few of his more enthusiastic admirers, a way finally being made for him by the police.

F Co. of the G.O.R. paraded 71 men all told, the strongest company in the brigade.

B. Co. of the Highlanders turned out 47 men of all ranks being on parade.

The Veterans March Out.
Her Majesty's Army and Navy Veterans held their annual church parade yesterday in commemoration of the anniversary of the Battle of Inkerman. The old warriors formed up some 75 strong in Denison-square, and were inspected by Lieut.-Col. Hoott, who fought at Inkerman. Lieut.-Col. Mighan and Lieut. Rudge, R.N., headed by their splendid band, they then proceeded to St. Stephen's Church, where Rev. Canon McNab of St. Alban's, preached an eloquent sermon, choosing for his text, "A good soldier of Jesus Christ," 2 Timothy, 3.

Mrs. Langtry Likes Wheeling.
London, Nov. 3.—Mrs. Langtry has become an ardent bicyclist. She says she is charmed by the exhilarating exercise, and adds: "I wear a short skirt that reaches to the ankles. It may not look graceful, but I find it admirable for riding. I wear gaiters, and the costume suits me. I do not like bloomers, or rational dress. I have never seen anybody look nice in them, though for cycling there is no doubt they are the safest to ride in."

The joint traffic agreement between the trunk lines was approved Tuesday by the Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The agreement was taken conditionally, that is, it was approved and authorized to be executed when like agreements were taken by the other companies necessary to make the agreement effective. This step has been awaited with much interest, as the action of this line was considered as determining the fate of the agreement.

The Bureau of the American Republics has received information that the cattle raisers of the Argentine Republic are making arrangements to import large numbers of high-grade cattle to improve the herds in order to compete in the European markets with the live stock shippers from the United States and Australia.
