THE SYNOD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF CANADA.

Kingston, on Wednesday, the 2nd instant. In our next number we shall be able, we trust, to give a full account of the proceedings, with the principal acts and measures adopted by the Synod on this occasion. For the present, we can only briefly state a few of the more important matters which engaged their attention.

THE SYNOD SERMON .- A pecurliarly able and edylving discourse, from Col. c. ii. v. 9, was preached in the Brock-street church, by the Rev. Mr. Bayne, of Galt, Moderator for the preceding year; and at an after Session, it was unanimously agreed, on the motion of Messrs. Gordon and Smellie, to request the sermon from Mr. Baynfor publication. To this he was induced to consent; and we are happy to have to announce that this excellent discourse will speedily be placed within the reach of the Church generally. After sermon, and the usual devotional exercises, the Synod having been duly constituted, and the Roll made up-ought, according to the usual course, to have proceeded to the election of a new Moderator-but several of the brethren having not yet arrived, it was agreed to postpone the election until the next morning. We may state here in passing, that the Synod Roll was found to hear the names of fifty five Ministers, of whom, however, only twenty-seven were present, with thirteen Elders; and we cannot refrain from expressing what was the prevalent and strong feeling of the Synod in regard to the paucity of Members. both Ministers and Elders in attendance, namely. that serious evil consequences must arise out of this state of things, if it be allowed to continue: and that Ministers, Sessions and Congregations ought immediately to direct their attention to the matter, with a view to the application of some effectual remedy. It seemed to be the prevalent opinion, that the expense of travelling formed the principal cause of the non-attendance of members. If it be so, the remedy must lie mainly with the Deacons or other office-bearers in congregations, for it is scarcely to be believed, that congregations before them.

Of the pr ceedings of this day, we This Court met, according to appointment, at can only nonce what took place in the evening, when the Synod again met in Brock-street church, to hear the Reports of Presbyteries on Home Missions. This was one of the most interesting meetings during the Synod. A large body of the people were present, and the several Presbyterial reports were listened to with marked attention. It appeared that there are about one hundred vacant Stations, claiming the sympathy and care of the church, and receiving Missionary supply to a greater or le s'extent from the several Preshyreres-many of there stations having large congregations, fully organized and ripe for seitle-

Although the measures founded on these reports and on certain overtores on our Home Mission Scheme were not adopted, until a later period of the Synod's sutings; it may be here mentioned. that it was resolved to place the whole of the Missionaries at the disposal of the Church, whether Ministers without charge, or probationers or catechists, under the direction of the Synod's Home Mission Committee, in order to the more just distribution of Missionary supplies over the whole bounds of the Church. Presbyteries were accordingly directed to give in lists to the Convener of the Synod's Committee of such Missionary labourers, within their respective bounds, as are available and efficient for the work; as elso of their vacant stations, giving such statistics of the stations as should indicate their comparative necessities and importance. The proceeds of the annual collection for Home Missions to be made throughout the Church, were ordered to be placed at the disposal of the Synod's Home Mission Committee, and various regulations for the more effectual prosecution of this department of the ch reh's work were adopted, not the least inportant of which is this,-that no probationer shall be settled in a fixed charge and be has spent twelve months in the Home Mission field, except by the express cancion of the Synod.
