means will be devised ofextending this work. Recollect it is your own Mission, peculiarly your own. Are there not then many schools, who could give ten dollars each, or five dollars per annum? We want to raise $£ 30$ per annum ; aro there not:

Many of those for instance who are unable to support an orphan might contribute in this way. We know of no plan by which so much good can be accomplished at so small a cost. Shall it not be done? we think we can answer yes. In next number you shall know. Neanwhile if any reader would like to help, Mr. Paton of Kingston will, we are sure, be happy to arrange the details of the scheme.

TIIE OLD TEMY LE.

While we were beating out of the flord of Fiskernaes, $!$ hat an opportunity of visiting Lichtenfels, the ancient seat of the Greenland congregations, and one of the three Moravian settlements. I had read much of the history of its founders; and it was with feelings almost of devotion, that I drew near the scene their labours had consecrated.

As we rowed into the shaduw of its rock-embayed cove, everything was so desolate and still, that we might have fancied ourselves outside the world of life ; even the dogs-. those querulous, never-sieeping sentinels of the rest of the coast-gave no signal of our approach. Presently, a sudden turn around a projecting cliff brought into view a quaint old Silesian mansion, bristling with irregularly disposed chimnejs, its black overhanging roof studded with dorner windows, and crowned with an antique belfry.

We were met, as we landed, by a couple of grave ancient men in sable jackets and close relvet skull-caps, such as Yandyke or Rembrandt himself might have painted, who gave us a quict but kindly welcome. All inside of the mansion house-the furniture, the matron, even the childrenhad the same time-sobered look. The sanded floor was dried by one of those huge white-tiled stoves, which have been known for generations in the north of Europe; and the stiff-
