TO DEVELOP CANADIAN LITERATURE

was the object for which THE NEW DOMINION MONTHLY was started on the day on which these Provinces became one country. It has aimed to bring Canadian writers and readers together, and being published at a price within the reach of the average Canadian household, it has largely succeeded. It has also sought in some measure to fulfil the function of an eclectic magazine, supplying its readers with some of the best articles, and selections from some of the best books published elsewhere. The variety of the wants which it seeks to supply have imposed on the publishers the necessity of increasing its size from time to time, so that it now contains 128 large pages of reading matter, both original and selected. In addition to general reading, there is a department devoted to Household Economy and another to Children. There is in every number a lively summary of Current Literature, with extensive extracts from one or more new works of especial interest. Some pages are devoted to Chess, under the able management of Mr. J. G. ASCHER, of Montreal, and a Draughts Department is under the supervision of Mr. ANDREW WHITE, of Bolton Forest. The Magazine is largely illustrated, especially the Household and Children's Departments, and a page is given to a Comic Cartoon. As an example of the contents of the Magazine, we may give some of the general reading in the January number, as follows:—

Claudine's Story, by the author of "The Holy Grail."

"Public Speaking," by Mr. George Murray.

"Nancy Carter's Theft," concluded.

"Nineteenth Century Progress," by Mr. S. E. Dawson, Montreal.

"Modern Mystics—Cagliostro," by Mr. Dedrickson.

The price of the Magazine is two dollars a year, and twenty cents a copy.
