

would appear to trespass into the territory of the act relating to citizenship and naturalization, but I do not think that that in itself would make the amendment out of order if it is otherwise an appropriate amendment to the War Measures Act within the general tenor of the bill and of the purposes of the amendment to the War Measures Act.

I had some doubts about the propriety of the proposed amendment on the ground that it seems to go beyond the general character of the amendment to the War Measures Act which is in the bill, but as I put it before the House I would not like to recede from that position simply because the bill affects matters dealt with by other statutes.

After debate thereon, the question being put on the said proposed amendment, it was negatived on the following division:
