

first conferences, at Paris, on the subject.—Pretensions of the parties stated and debated; difficulties found to be insurmountable.—Affair of the Ohio; intrigues of the British among the natives of the regions around that river; intrigues of the French among those of the Five Nations.—Virginian traffickers arrested, and sent as prisoners to France.—French and British troops sent to the Ohio to fortify themselves in the country.—The governor-general at issue with certain Demoiselles and the Jesuits.—His mortal illness, death and character (1752).—The Marquis Duquesne succeeds him.—Affairs of the Ohio continued.—Colonel Washington marches to attack Fort Duquesne.—Death of Jumonville.—Defeat of Washington by M. de Villiers at Fort Necessity (1754).—Plan of the British to invade Canada; assembly of Anglo-American governors at Albany.—General Braddock sent from Britain with an army to America.—Baron Dieskau arrives at Quebec with four battalions (1755).—Negotiations between the French and British governments on the frontier difficulties.—Capture of two French ships of war by admiral Boscawen.—France declares war against Great Britain..... 110

---

BOOK NINTH.

---

CHAPTER I.

THE SEVEN YEARS' WAR.—1755-1756.

Dispositions of mind in Britain and France at the epoch of the Seven Years' war.—France changes her foreign policy in forming an alliance with Austria; which mutation only flattered the self-love of Madame de Pompadour.—Warlike enthusiasm in Great Britain and her colonies; their immense armaments.—Small number of the Canadian forces.—Plan of the first campaign; zeal of the Canadian people.—First operations.—Troops from Boston scour Acadia and capture Fort Beauséjour, &c.; exile and dispersion of the French Acadians.—General Braddock advances towards Fort Duquesne; M. de Beaujeu marches to meet him; battle of the Monongahela; the British defeated, and Braddock killed.—A panic ensues in the American colonies.—The Canadians and savages commit great ravages, and take many prisoners.—British corps formed to attack Niagara and Fort Frederic.—Colonel Johnson encamps at the head of Lake George.—Baron Dieskau attacking him, is defeated and taken prisoner.—General Shirley delays the siege of Niagara.—Results of the campaign of 1755.—