"Bab's Burglar"
A Paramount Picture

IMPERIAL THEATRE MONDAY

DEAR, funny, lovable little Bab—the "Sub Deb"—with her "pilot" tooth and faithless lover—that $1,000 yearly allowance which "just melted away"—her escapes with the car bought without the family knowledge. Then the burglar! Poor Bab tumbled into mischief and out again—into scolding romance—into trouble—head over heels. It's a delicious story. Millions have read it. Marguerite Clark proves anew her title, "The sweetest girl on the screen," in "Bab's Burglar," by Mary Roberts Rinehart.

office of the American consul on the Saturday night that she had stated he had come there on the pretext of fixing the radiators for the present janitor. The prisoner, however, pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing the box from the Bank of Commerce and was let go on suspended sentence. Burton L. Gerow appeared for the defence.

The first witness was Stanley Groves, present janitor of the Bank of Commerce. He stated that he had never had any trouble with Flowers.

Mr. Flowers was then called to the stand. He testified regarding the box found in his house, that he had found it in the cellar of the bank building and did not think it was worth anything. The witness testified that he had handed large sums of money for the V. C. R. ticket office and J. M. Robinson & Sons, and there had been no reflection on his honesty. The court allowed him out on suspended sentence.
