Noted Indian Runner and Wife Here Today on the Way to Amherst

Arriving on the Montreal train at noon today were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Longboat from Toronto, passing through to Windsor, N. S., where the famous Indian will engage with Fred Cameron in a twelve mile run tomorrow afternoon. Although he has been ill for a time and has had an operation performed upon him for nose trouble, Longboat is looking in good trim, and says he feels quite confident as to his chances tomorrow. Mrs. Longboat said she might remain in the maritime provinces for a fortnight or more on a pleasure trip and it was possible that they might come back to St. John in a few days.

Longboat said he would like to run in this city if a match could be arranged between him and some other of his class. He believed that Woods, the English champion, could be brought here for a race with him, and possibly Woods and Cameron and himself could make an interesting "go" for local sports. If it were arranged he would like to see it next week "Tom" and his wife attracted much attention about the depot.

LETTER FROM REGINA

F. S. West Gets Word From Son—Pathetic Scenes Among Sufferers

Frank S. West, purchasing agent of the Transcontinental Railway here, has received from his son Wendell G. West, a government official, a letter which was wrought by the cyclone which swept Regina. Mr. West is connected with the G. F. P. at Regina. He visited Regina on the day following the disaster. In his letter he tells of the wrecked homes and being held up by the debris. He says he found poor families searching the ruins of their homes for what little of value was left, and looking scanty meals over open fires in the streets.

Among the freaks of the storm he mentions the destruction of the C. P. R. elevator which was carried forty feet and left on the main line of the railway, spilling thousands of bushels of grain in all directions. He also sent some very striking photographs showing the work of destruction in detail in various parts of the city.

STRAWBERRY RUSH OVER

A Disappointment on Arrival of The River Steamers Yesterday

Keen disappointment was expressed by grocers in Indiantown yesterday afternoon on the arrival of the steamers Champlain and D. J. Purdy when it was seen that the heavy stock of strawberries which was thought would be brought down, had not materialized. The Champlain had only a little more than ninety crates aboard, while the Purdy had but a few more than 300. It had been thought that the total arrivals would be in the vicinity of 700 crates, the usual large cargo brought down on what is generally known as the river wharves as "berry-day," when the berries are most plentiful and cheapest.

The long period of heat has had its effect upon the crop of berries. While the quality brought down thus far has been well up to the average, the quantity has been only fair and the big run is now over. Many of the berries have been burnt and blackened in the cultivated patches. The prices took a sudden and unexpected rise yesterday going from six to eight and nine cents in short order, and they will be no cheaper now.

PLAYGROUNDS AND CHILDREN

(By H. L. Spencer)

"Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." These words, first spoken ages and ages ago, are often recalled to my mind as I sit on Queen Square, west, and watch the little boys with their balls and bats, and the little girls with their mugs searching in the grass for strawberries.

One of the latter had been unusually fortunate in her quest, for she showed me about a dozen of the berries this morning, each about the size of a pea; and they were all red, as she said, and were destined for her grandmother's dinner.

Queen Square, West, is now a supervised playground, but it is of inestimable value to a limited number of children, who resort to it for recreation; and it not only contributes to their health and happiness but the health and happiness of their maturity and old age, and the health and happiness of a long line of descendants.

The older I grow the more thoroughly I am convinced that we do not live for ourselves alone, that the men and women of the future unconsciously build on foundations that we have laid. If these foundations, physical and moral, are firm, the well-being of the little ones, for a few generations at least, is assured.

My little strawberry pickers and ball players on Queen Square, West, though their number is quite limited, form a valuable asset of the city, and by-and-by will rank among the good and useful and happy people of St. John.

Much as some of us may have deplored in the past of humanity's future, I think we may discover on every hand evidences of its progress. One of the most striking of these in St. John is the opening of the Harriet Allison Supervised Playground, the gift of Mr. Walter C. Allison, where hundreds of little children will be protected and instructed in healthful amusements and sports, which are a necessity of the modern child, and a precursor to manly and womanly maturity. Words can hardly express the weight of obligation to the city of today and of the future is under to Mr. Allison for his munificence to the children of today, and the children and grown-ups of generations hence, for the seed he has sown will yield fruit when the little children of today are "at rest from their labors."
