The record of one more year has been closed, its toils are over, but their results still live; yes, and will continue. "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he reap." "He which soweth sparingly, shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully, shall reap also bountifully." If through your efforts hunger has been dispelled by plenty; tears, by happy smiles; and sorrow by light-hearted joy, then may you also rejoice. Weigh well the fact that it is only in this short life we are permitted to follow this Christ-like example, for in that Heaven to which we are hastening, where "they hunger no more," "neither do they thirst," it will be forever too late to put forth these endeavours. In entering these blessed and "everlasting habitations," may we rather look forward to a welcome from some who, while treading the dark pathway of life, were cheered by a friendly ray from our lamp.

"There are little ones glancing about in my path,
In want of a friend or a guide;
There are dear little eyes looking up into mine
Whose tears might be easily dried;
But Jesus may beckon the children away
In the midst of their grief or their glee.
Will any of them at the beautiful gate
Be waiting and watching for me?"
