up by the line, or because of the sum he will have to pay for land damages; all who have been swindled by some rascally contractor, or who have had a "free grief" of any kind soever in connection with the Railway, have, perhaps, not unnaturally, wreaked their vengeance on Mr. Vail, as the only available way of giving expression to the bitterness of their souls. Our readers at a distance may unhesitatingly accept this explanation of the causes of Mr. Vail's defeat as the correct one, and repose on the assurance that what politically killed the late minister of Militia was the railroad-" only that and nothing more. The protection theory, the Sugar question, or the Coal story had about as much in Mr. Peter Mitchell.

This gentleman, who recently resign

It is not a little singular with what unithe Independence of Parliament Act, formity every politician or coterie of polihas been elected by acclamation, and ticians (in our Province) that has meddled the Tory papers, which had for some with railway promotion, has as a direct cor time been very chary in touching his sequence come to grief. Mr. Howe was the case, have suddenly discovered that pioneer in the work; and we all know how within less than three years after the turn chell is a patriotic Conservative, that ing of the first sod of our first railway a opposition to him was useless, &c., &c.
Two or three features in Mr. Mitchell's political career demand attention under political career demand attention under the circumstances. When the penalties of the Independence of Parliament Act were invoked against him, he denied the penalty were in power, gave the country three railway bills, and at least two completed railways, notwithstanding which they experienced, at the first opportunity, that he had in any way violated its provisions. Tory papers repeated his denial, argued that he should not resign they experienced, at the less opportunity, at the hands of their countrymen, the denial, argued that he should not resign and virtually declared that he would of Pictou, secured for that county a railnot.
