

Collegiate School, Windsor.

The attendance at the Collegiate School, during the past year, has been very satisfactory, amounting to more than fifty pupils. There have been but few cases requiring the exercise of severe discipline, the moral character and conduct of the boys being on the whole most gratifying. The usual examinations were held at Christmas and Midsummer and passed off with much credit to a fair proportion of the pupils.

The Alumni Prizes of £8 and £4 respectively, were adjudged at Midsummer, to Masters Geo. H. King, and James L. DeWolf, the former of whom obtained the first place among the Midsummer matriculants at King's College.

The following is a brief sketch of the course of study pursued at the Collegiate School. About one-fourth of the working time of the school is devoted to instruction in the Classical Languages; not quite a fourth to Modern Languages; and one half to English Subjects. There are three regular teachers, giving in all about twelve hours a day to the business of tuition.

An hour and a half is given each day to Arithmetic. All the pupils, with the exception of a very few of the juniors, work at this subject at the same time, although in different classes. They are carefully taught the various rules, and required to exemplify them extensively on their slates and on the black-board.

A recitation is required in History, three times a week. The lesson is first carefully prepared by the pupils at their desks. It is then read distinctly before the Master in the class. The books are
