

various committees are presented and the members are trained in the procedure of meetings. One of the strong points of our work is that it develops the young women who take an active part in it and trains them to help others by giving out what they receive. Many a one has been helped by her connection with our Y. W. C. A., and has gone forth strengthened through its influences to do what she could for others.

The various classes have met regularly on their appointed evenings throughout the year. The Bible Class met on Tuesday evenings, when the systematic study of God's Word and the earnest Christian teachings of its leader, Mrs. Kennedy, has quickened and strengthened the spiritual life of its members.

The Art Class assembled on Thursday evenings, except when owing to the removal from the city of Mr. Jas. Davidson, who had so faithfully instructed it for two seasons, it was for a brief period without a teacher. We were so fortunate as to secure the services of Mrs. Stanley Williams, as Mr. Davidson's successor. Under her capable instructions the students made good progress and became much interested in their work.

The Physical Culture Class also met on Thursday evenings, when by exercises and drills the physical natures of the members were developed.

A Shorthand Class, conducted by the Principal of the London Shorthand School, was held for a part of the season.
