But seriber at the Carleton Place Post Office. the sugacious Puritans took no action on his petition; for if they granted it, they feared that all the you g men liable to a draft would get married, and if they denied it, it would be, they considered, a denial of the authority of the Bible. So Nathaniel had to go to the war, in spite of Moses,as the newly married men under thirty-five ed within half a mite of the B. & O. Railroad. have to do at the present day.

WINTHROP .- He bore hardships with the courage and imperturbable good-nature of a born gentleman. It is when men are starving, when the plating of romance is worn off by the chafe of severe and continued suffering-it is then that "blood tells."

It must be a happy thought to a lover that his blood, and that of his sweetheart, mingle in the same-mosquito.

Mention is made of a man who died re cently, in Maine, at the age of twenty-five years, who was seven feet eight inches high. Though he died young he lived long.

A sentimental young man thus feelingly expresses himself :-- "Even as nature benevolently guards the rose with thorns, so

Your individual character, the special mould and temper of your being, is different from that of all other beings, and God, in creating it, designed it for a particular use in His Church. Your relations to your fellow men are peculiar to yourself, and over some minds,—some little group or circle of meral being—you can wield an influence which it is given to no other man to wield. Your place and lot in life, too is wield. Your place and lot in life, too, is one which has been assigned to you alone. For no other has the same part been cast. On your particular path no other footsteps shall ever leave their print. Through that one course, winding or straight, rapid or slow, brief or long protracted, in no other course shall the stream of life flow on to the great occan. And so to you it is given to shed blessings around you, to do good to others, to communicate, as you pass through life, to those whose moral history borders or crosses yours, a heavenly influence, which is all your own.
