(Experimental Farms Note.)

A hot-bed is desirable wherever vegetables or flowers are grown in Canada. It is a means by which plants are grown through their earlier stages in a suitable temperature in order to shorten the time of reaching condition for use or of coming into flower. It is the early vegetables which are the most profitable and most appreciated. Furthermore, with a hot-bed it is possible to mature certain vegetables in parts of Canada where, if started in the open, they would not ripen before being killed by frost. Again, with a hot-bed it is possible to mature a large crop when without one the crop would be very small. Certain vegetables also, even if not subjected to actual frost, will not grow if the soil and air are cold hence must be started in warm soil and warm air such as is afforded by a hot-bed, and the plants grown there are not set out in the open until warm weather.

Such crops as radish, lettuce, spinach, carrots, and other vegetables which will reach marketable size in a relatively short season and are easily handled while the weather is still cool in early spring, reach the stage when they are ready for use much sooner when kept in the hot-bed or cold frame than if one had to wait until the seed were planted in the open and the plants developed there. There is unusually greater danger from keeping the hot-bed too hot for these particular vegetables than from its being too cool. Cauliflower also can be grown to maturity in hot-beds, and in places where it is difficult, owing to summer frosts or cool weather, to grow cucumbers and melons, a few plants in a hot-bed will provide a fair supply for the family.

In making a hot-bed the conservation of the heat in it is one of the chief considerations, and to assist in this the hot-bed should be in a protected place, preferably on the south side of a building, wall or close board fence where the cold winds will be broken and all the sunshine possible be obtained. The manure used should be kept when it is put in, and it should be kept hot by thoroughly banking the outside of the frame with manure to prevent the cold getting in and the heat getting out. It is easier to conserve heat in a bed that is low than one that is built high up.

Cold frames are much like hot-beds in outward appearance, but no manure is put inside as cold frames are used later in the spring than the hot-beds and less heat is needed, there being sufficient from the sun shining through the glass, and the glass and frame usually afford sufficient protection from light frosts at night should there be such.

Details in regards to making hot-beds will be found in a pamphlet which can be obtained free on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

WAR SAVINGS SOCIETIES

A War Savings Society is a group of persons organized to promote systematic saving among its members and to emphasize, in every way possible, the need and desirability of thrift. Ten or more persons may thus organize themselves and, having done so, secure official recognition through the issue of a charter from the National War Savings Committee.

Organized in schools, factories, large business houses, and in the midst of already existing bodies, these War Savings Societies are capable of assisting greatly in the War Savings and Thrift Stamps campaign. Organizations such as the Daughters of the Empire, the Red Cross, the Home Makers, the Women's Grain Growers and others that could be mentioned can render valuable service by forming War Savings Societies and Thrift Clubs among their members.

War Savings Societies should be formed by the thousands throughout Canada.

One Successful Bluff

Perhaps the most gigantic bluff of the war was the "Dover barrage bluff." Admiral Hall, of the British navy, invented, says the New York "Evening Post," what purported to be elaborate plans for an electric mine field across the Channel from Dover, some of the surface lights of which were put in place and then managed to have the whole scheme sold to the German secret service for $20,000. In fact, there were no mines laid; but the German officials thought there were, and for a long time religiously kept their submarines away from the deadly place.

Pert Paragraphs

Facts are not stubborn things. It's the man who won't recognize them that is stubborn.

It isn't what others think about you that brings the worry wrinkles; it's what you know about yourself.

You've got to leave your work with some planning and thought. A fireless cooker doesn't do the business until heat is applied.

Wealth does not come by the most diligent saving, but by the most diligent producing. Men and nations who pinch the pennies hardest are never the richest.

Last of the "Mayflowers."

The birth-rate of the descendants of the "Mayflower" Pilgrims is not sufficient to maintain their numbers.

Americans are soon to celebrate the three hundredth anniversary of their landing, and if their present birth rate continues for another three hundred years, they can all then be put into a "Mayflower" again and shipped back across the Atlantic, if so desired. At least this is the conclusion of S. J. Holmes and C. M. Doud, of the University of California.

Woman's Statement

Will Help Carleton Place

"I hated cooking because whatever I ate gave me sour stomach and a bloated feeling. I drank hot water and olive oil by the gallon. Nothing helped until I tried simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler's-ka. I feel completely Adler's-ka relieved. ANY CASE sour stomach, gas or constipation and prevents appendicitis. The INSTANT action is surprising.

PEACE AND THE FARMDEMANDS FOR PRODUCTS WILL BE VERY LARGE.

Although the War is over, the Reconstruction Period Ought to Prove Even More Beneficial to the Agriculturist and the Stock Grower Than the Period of War.

The war is over, and now starts the drive for reconstruction, and in this no class of the community is more directly interested than the farmers. Now, more than ever, will there be a reason for increased production in all lines and especially of foodstuffs. Transportation facilities will improve rapidly, and the demand for supplies in Europe needing first consideration, it is only to be expected that every surplus item of farm production on the American continent will be required for export.

This country especially, is well situated to meet the first call, which will naturally be for wheat and such proportion of other cereals as can be used to best advantage in milling. The year's crops are all saved and but little inroad on the new supply has been made as yet, but business of moving the grain will increase in activity at once without doubt. Also, such material suited for stock feeding, will be in demand to help save whatever remains of the herds and flocks on the other side of the Atlantic.

Not much more of the grain crops than will be required for seed next spring, can be expected to be held out of the amount called for to help carrying our allies and others over the coming winter and in view of the fact that the next call, namely for meat animals and breeding stock, will follow immediately on the call for bread, farmers in Canada must take immediate steps to make fullest possible use of all feed substitutes that are available so that their live stock may be maintained in fair condition until next year's pasture season arrives. The situation will probably necessitate provision to allow for the survival of the fittest of our live stock and a careful culling of all herds should be started at once with a view to disposing of such animals as cannot be expected to improve economically, and to save every promising breeding animal so that building up may go on at a rapid pace next year.

The facility with which the purchase and export of products can be effected has been assured by the success of the Victory Loan campaign. The fighters have done their part in the war and will be willing to do their part in reconstruction, but in the period of demobilization it will be necessary, among other things, that this fact alone is sufficient to encourage all producers of foodstuffs to do their utmost in the way of maintaining the food supply.

Manufacturing and Farming.

Of course there are other industries to share in making use of labor set free by the cessation of munitions manufacture on a war scale, but if farm machinery manufacturers are allowed a share of both material and labor so lately employed in the work of producing fighting material, in accordance with the importance of their industry to the quick development of agricultural expansion, we may look for a rapid increase in the output of farm machinery and especially tractors within the next few months.

Rumors to the effect that farm machines, and especially tractors, were due to become cheap by reason of increased competition and excessive production existed during the first year of the war, when farm tractors began to be considered seriously by a rapidly-increasing number of farmers, but such a condition cannot be looked for until some time to come or at least until more than one crop has been taken off, and then only if the crops prove good enough to allow of a reduction of prices for foodstuffs, so allowing a reduction in the cost of manufactured articles.

Merely because a surplus of foodstuffs is required to bring about lower prices for manufactured articles, including farm machinery, the farmer need not consider that he must be the sufferer from good times for other people. His chance to lap up a good supply of the basis of exchange has not yet passed and he can look forward to being the beneficiary in position in this regard for some years to come. He will, however, be in better position to hold his advantage indefinitely if he will at once invest a fair share of his cash in equipment that will ensure cheaper production. What the country needs most is food, and the country is willing to pay for it, therefore, since hand labor cannot be looked to to fill the demand for help on the farms, even with the return of the Allies' soldiers set free from military duty, the farmer who withholds from encouraging industry in which many men incapable of farming might be employed by refusing to purchase a needed tractor or other farm machinery, when he has the means to do so, is merely holding back general production and piling up discomfort for everybody in the country.

Give Liberal Ration.

If dairy cows are to be fed for profitable production they must receive a liberal ration at all seasons. In summer pasture generally is depended upon, but often it must be supplemented by molasses crops or silage, and sometimes by concentrates as well. For winter feeding, the ration usually is composed of hay, silage, and a mixture of grains. In properly balancing the ration the grain mixture is compounded to fit the roughage with due consideration for cost, bulk, palatability, and physiological effect upon the cow. For the best results, cows must be fed individually, salted regularly, and furnished with all the clean water they will drink.

ICELAND PROUD OF CULTURE

Little Nation, Long Isolated From the Rest of the World, Has Maintained Its Spiritual Life.

There are few nations that can point to a brighter record of culture than this little nation of one hundred thousand people (Iceland), practically isolated on their arctic island for nearly one thousand years. Why did they not revert to barbarism, as has been the fate of many white groups out of touch with outside civilization? There is but one answer: The Promethean flame which kindled the genius of the old, now nameless, monks—the saga authors—has never died in Iceland. It could not die so long as the sagas lived, firing the spiritual life of the nation.

Each period of national prosperity since the saga age has seen a revival of literary activity. Now Iceland is more prosperous in a material way than ever in its history, and behold there is a pen scratching in every cottage; there is a poet apostrophizing every waterfall, dedicating the summer crop of poppies and daffodils, and charming, or at least trying to charm, the innumerable host of fays and light elves, trolls and water sprites and "landvaettir" which have endowed the bleak hills and mountains of Iceland with an immortal soul.—From the Dial.

Search for Secrets.

Ponce De Leon started out to discover the Secret Fountain of Youth. Men are always looking for secrets: the secret of health, wealth, or happiness. But the secret of successful advertising has been discovered. It is strange it was not discovered long ago, but it was not until recent years, although it is remarkably simple. It is to "Tell the truth and shame the devil." Put into your advertisements the exact facts, without exaggeration or elaboration. When people see that you are entitled to confidence, they will make a beaten path to your doors.
