

event, a notable feature being the burning of the mortgage on the fine church property, and as the document changed to ashes the congregation, conscious of their freedom from debt, sang with their hearts and voices, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," and then devoutly lifted their hearts in grateful prayer to Him who had led them these many years and sought His continued blessing and guidance. On the Monday evening of the second week, the Rev. Dr. Milligan, of Toronto, lectured on "Sundays Abroad." At both the week-night meetings, supper was served and a fine musical programme was given.

This congregation and their young minister, with their fine church, debt-free, are now gathering themselves together for more abundant service during the second half-century of their history, and like many another congregation in the country districts, they will give their sons to the ministry, their money to the missionary enterprises and their positive moral support to every word or work that makes for the extension of the Kingdom of God.
