

	Page
histori-
in de-	65
Chris-	79
noted .	86
ed into	100
	113
titles of	117
ous as-	119
on the	121
ifferent	126
thirteen	133
the First	138
ed com-	139
diver-	143
ch the	145
	146
e pub-	148
of those	149
ne New	154
	160
persons
iracles,
accounts
belief of 154
	173
Y.
	181
	191
ment	221

CONTENTS.

	vii
	Page
CHAP. IV.— Identity of Christ's character	230
CHAP. V.— Originality of Christ's character	241
CHAP. VI.— Consistency of the facts occasionally mentioned or referred to in Scripture, with the state of things in those times, as represented by foreign and independent accounts	243
CHAP. VII.— Undesigned Coincidences	272
CHAP. VIII.— Of the History of the Resurrection	274
CHAP. IX.— Of the Propagation of Christianity	278
SECT. II.— Reflections upon the preceding Account	286
SECT. III.— Of the success of Mahometanism	308

PART III.

A BRIEF CONSIDERATION OF SOME POPULAR OBJECTIONS.

CHAP. I.— The Discrepancies between the several Gospels	316
CHAP. II.— Erroneous Opinions imputed to the Apostles	320
CHAP. III.— The connexion of Christianity with the Jewish History	324
CHAP. IV.— Rejection of Christianity	327
CHAP. V.— That the Christian miracles are not recited, or appealed to, by early Christian writers themselves, so fully or frequently as might have been expected	341
CHAP. VI.— Want of universality in the knowledge and reception of Christianity, and of greater clearness in the evidence	349
CHAP. VII.— The supposed Effects of Christianity	357
CHAP. VIII.— Conclusion	364