TRADE NOTE.

HELPED THE VIOLINS.
An Interesting Circumstance in Connection With the Musical Season Just Closed.

At several of the chamber music concerts held during the past musical season, the music critics on the daily press took occasion to comment on the admirable balance between the piano and the other stringed instruments. There seemed to be a sympathetic blending of tone, producing an ensemble as pleasing as it was unusual. The piano used on these occasions was a "Gourlay," and while the critics contented themselves with simply noting the circumstance, the artists went into raptures. They said that the tone produced by the piano seemed to support and intensify the violins and 'cello, thus producing an effect of unparalleled beauty and sweetness. Nor were these praises mere formal ones, for a number of the best known string players in the city hastened to secure a "Gourlay." Among those who now make constant use of that piano are: Mrs. Drescher Adamson, Mr. Frank E. Blackford, Miss Lena M. Hayes, Miss Lois Widlow, and Mr. H. S. Sander Toronto. These names are known and honored by every music lover in the city. They stand for wide scholarship, and excellent taste. When it is considered that the "Gourlay" is so admirably fitted for the violin or 'cello, it will be readily understood that, for vocal accompaniment, it is simply ideal. The relationship between the violin and all instruments of the violin family is exceptionally close.

Mrs. A. Lethbridge, of Ballyduff, Ont., writes: "I believe I would have been in my grave long ago had it not been for Burdock Blood Bitters. I was run down to such an extent that I could scarcely move about the house. I was subject to severe headaches, backaches and dizziness; my appetite was gone and I was unable to do my housework. After using two bottles of B. B. I found my health fully restored. I warmly recommend it to all tired and worn-out women."
