It is easy to imagine what yards and yards of beautiful silk went into the making of this wrap for wear over dancing frocks. The silk is a peculiarly lustrous, opalescent weave in the kismet tartan effect, and the colors are peacock blue, ivory, pale rose, saffron and gold. The wrap extends to voluminous width at the hips, the folds of silk being drawn around and upward to the front in a clever but indescribable fashion to give a clinging ef fect at the knee. The wrap accompanies a lace dancing frock matched by
