

GOLD RUN NEWS NOTES

Second Pay Streak Is Located on 33

Snow Used in Boilers Owing to Scarcity of Water—Cold Weather Experienced

Warner, who is working on Gold Run, has discovered another pay streak immediately under old workings of last year and quite rich. For the past four days the temperature has ranged from zero to 38 below zero.

Some of the plants operating on Gold Run considerable inconvenience is experienced in obtaining water, nearly all having been used. There is used in place of water for the boilers.

Every team on Gold Run has been hauling wood for the past two or three months.

Mr. E. Simpson of 40 Gold Run was with quite a painful accident a few days ago. While down the shaft near the hoist, two of his fingers were caught in the pulley which was driven by two of his men, and he was released from his perilous position. The second finger on the right hand was with the bone severely crushed and is a painful hurt, but it is a surprising how a greater accident was averted.

Hill, for a Wonder

Special to the Daily Nugget.
St. Petersburg, March 3.—Count Anton Tima and M. Radovski, both members of the House of Representatives, fought a duel with swords today in which M. Radovski was severely wounded in the arm. The duel was the outcome of an exchange of vituperations in the Diet. The combatants refused to be reconciled after the fight.

Heavy Capital

Special to the Daily Nugget.
Chicago, March 4.—Opposition to the Paper Trust, which now practically controls a business of $100,000,000 per annum, is centered in a new Chicago company chartered in North Dakota and with a capital of $1,000,000.

Another Outbreak

Special to the Daily Nugget.
Washington, March 4.—There has been another revolutionary outbreak in Columbia near the capital and serious fighting in the neighborhood of Bogota, where the government forces were driven by the revolutionists into the mountains with heavy loss.

Gardner Won.

Special to the Daily Nugget.
Chicago, March 4.—Gus Gardner of Philadelphia bested McFadden of New York in the fifth round of what was a six-round go. McFadden was knocked out at any stage.

Big Endowment.

Victoria, March 4.—The endowment of the Methodist College has reached $100,000 with $50,000 more coming in a few months, ensuring a fund of $150,000.

Pool Tournament Entries.

New York, Feb. 17.—Judging from entries already received for the tournament, for the world's championship, which begins at the Brooklyn, on Monday, March 3, there is every promise of a very sport. The tournament will continue for two weeks. Among the entries are: William H. Clearwater, of Pennsylvania; Jerome H. Keogh, Buffalo; Grant Ely, New York; Patrick H. Walsh, New York; Irving Long, H. P. Stofft, W. E. McCune, Boston; John Daly, Chicago; William Wenrick, New York; Charles Weaton, W. W. King, George F. Smith.

Rigid Examination

Special to the Daily Nugget.
London, March 4.—The licensing committee of the London Jockey Club is examining a number of jockeys previous to deciding as to their licenses. The investigations include inquiry into the affairs of several prominent riders whose bank accounts are alleged to show profitable relations with the principals of the Liverpool bank frauds. It is understood that at least two of the most notable English riders will not appear on the turf during 1902. John Martin, American rider, received his license.

No Cheering News

Special to the Daily Nugget.
London, March 4.—In the House of Commons the Chancellor of the Exchequer stated that he had no information concerning the United States Steel Trust that could be usefully published. Answering questions regarding commercial relations of the Empire, the chancellor said he proposed to discuss the whole subject of preferential duties when the representatives of the self-governing colonies are in London at the time of the coronation.

Wants More Money.

Special to the Daily Nugget.
Halifax, March 3.—Captain Bernier of North Pole fame, who has been in England to raise money for his proposed Arctic expedition, has returned to Canada. He obtained $15,000 but required $40,000 more. He is very confident of success of the undertaking.

HIS HONOR THE MAYOR

Entertains Aldermen at Dinner

Dawson's Municipal Head a First-class Host—An Informal and Pleasant Affair.

The dinner to the aldermen given last night by Mayor Macaulay at his residence was quite an elaborate affair, much more so, in fact than was expected. The appearance of the tables were such as one might take for granted only in the palatial residences of the east, and esoned in the room adjoining was Freimuth's orchestra, which played soft music at intervals during the repast. It led one of the aldermen to remark, and all the other aldermen to agree with him, how fortunate Dawson was in the selection of its first mayor; that the election had resulted in the selection of the one best qualified to tender the hospitalities of the city to distinguished visitors.

Those present were president of the board of aldermen J. F. Macdonald, Aldermen Murphy, Adair, Vachon and Notquay, and city solicitor Donaghy and Mr. A. I. Macfarlane.

There were few formal toasts, in fact the only ones to be so characterized was the health of the mayor by the president of the board of aldermen, and the health of Mrs. Macaulay, proposed by Mr. Macfarlane. This was at the close of the entertainment, which up to that time had been informal in its procedure and the principal topics of conversation had run almost entirely on civic affairs.

Only Two.

The White Pass stage which went out this morning had only two passengers, E. J. Fitzpatrick and Al. Robinson, the Vancouver tailor, who comes in here every year and without adding a cent to the revenues of the city takes back with him enough orders to keep a first-class tailoring establishment running in this city. If Mayor Macaulay's ideas are carried out Mr. Robinson will contribute on his next trip.

The stage that came in last night brought nine sacks of mail and the following passengers: Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Seacore, the latter a bride; Mr. and Mrs. Sylterig, Con Short, I. C. Troughton, W. Macdonald, O. Ericson and W. Stockwell.

The next stage with mail and passengers is expected at five o'clock this afternoon.

A Daring Act.

Acting-Commissioner Newlands proved this morning that he is not a man tied to red tape procedure. It was only yesterday afternoon that it was brought to his attention by Magistrate Macaulay that there were no accommodations provided in the police court for reporters, and this morning the reporters found a baize covered desk specially erected for them in what was raised off as the jury box but had never been ruled as such. Even to spend so few dollars as this accommodation necessitated without retarding the matter to Ottawa shows great courage on the part of Mr. Newlands, and his kindness is thoroughly appreciated by all the Dawson newspapers.

Reported Big Deal.

One of the biggest mining deals now under way and possibly by this time completed, has reference to the transfer of no one seems to know exactly how many claims on Gold Run. This is the deal which Messrs. Chute & Wills have been working at for some time, and an idea of the size of it may be formed from that of the consideration, which is five million dollars. It is known that the company not only owns many claims on Gold Run, but that it has been paying big prices for the control of others. This morning it was rumored about town that the big deal had gone through, but none of the parties interested could be got to say a word on the subject.

Jim Jeffries Ill.

New York, Feb. 17.—James J. Jeffries is sick of the grippe at a hotel in this city. His physician said today that the pugilist was in a fair condition and was getting along nicely.

Old Times at Calgary.

The Old Timers' dinner, which took place at Calgary recently, was the first annual banquet of the society. Only those who came to the west in '83 or previous to that date were eligible to attend the spread. It was a most interesting and historical gathering of the pioneers who had braved the hardships and dangers of the early days. Around the table sat men who came in over the old trail from Fort Benton, when long bull trains with creaking wagons drew in supplies from the south for Fort McLeod. Many former members of the N.W.M.P. were there, and old comrades recalled the days when they rode side by side or stood together behind the stockade and bastions of Fort Walsh, when the Indians threatened attack.

Some of the speeches were very amusing. One old timer—the oldest there, so he claimed—wanted to rule the speaking. He repeatedly insisted that he had been in the country eight or ten years before some other gentlemen speaking, and wanted everyone to realize the fact that he first struck the country twenty-six years ago.

One of the old-timers described his first entrance to Calgary, in 1880. He came to the opposite bank of the Bow river, which at that time of the year was very high and swift, plunging his horse into the cold, deep water he eventually reached the other side, hanging to his horse's tail while the animal swam across. Here he was met by two policemen, and warmly welcomed at the N.W.M.P. barracks.

Calgary, at that time consisting of a few log shacks, was an isolated post many weeks journey from the then far away east. Now it is a flourishing city of five thousand people. Similar changes have occurred in other places, and what were once great, lonely stretches of prairie where a man could ride for days without seeing a soul, are now dotted with the ranches of prosperous settlers.

It was suggested that no time should be lost in making an effort to gather and record the early annals of the west, for the old-timers who participated in historic events were one by one passing away, and with them much interesting history.

Many a hearty laugh went up as yarns were swapped, each man telling his story, and, of course, perfectly authentic. Only occasionally was the speaker interrupted—that was when he said something too hard for even a westerner to swallow. At a later hour, with much good feeling, the gathering broke up, after many pleasant reminiscences of the days long gone by.—Ex.

The King and one Barnes.

An old story of the King. When—as Prince of Wales—he visited America in 1859, it was inevitable that all good Americans should wish to have speech with him. Now, at a place called Natick, not many miles from Boston, there lived one Barnes, who kept a hotel. Barnes was a good-natured fellow with a bad stammer, and was the butt of the practical jokes of such wags as there were in Natick. On the eve of the big parade in Boston, he announced his intention of going to see the prince.

"Whatever for?" said one of his friends. "You won't get near him, and ten to one you won't so much as get a glimpse of him."

"I'll b-b-bet ten dollars that I'll g-get right up to him and t-talk to him, t-t-to," stammered Barnes, greatly daring.

The bet was taken there and then, a committee was appointed to go to Boston with Barnes to see fair play, and next morning he was piloted by its members to the city and up to the ropes which had been stretched to keep back the crowd. They could see the prince, but a squad of police prevented all outsiders from getting anywhere near him. Yet Mr. Barnes simply murmured:

"W-w-wait a minute." As he spoke, the beautiful black horse which had been picked for the prince's riding was led up. He was very fresh—too fresh, as the sequel proved—but the groom quitted him down well enough for the prince—then little more than a boy—to mount safely. But scarcely was he seated, when the horse began to plunge and rear violently, so that the prince was unseated, landing on all fours on the turf. There was the wildest excitement in the part of the crowd nearest at hand, and the police lost control—and Mr. Barnes' opportunity came. He dodged under the ropes, and was the first to grab the bridle of the riderless horse.

The prince quickly rose and limped to the horse's head, while all circled round to see if he were badly hurt. "Your horse is feeling p-p-pretty good today, p-p-prince," remarked Barnes, as the prince came up. "A little too good," was the terse reply.

Still holding the bridle, Barnes turned to the "committee," who were craning over the ropes, watching the incident with an excitement that had driven all thought of the ridiculous wager out of their heads. "I guess I'll take that t-t-ten dollars now!" he shouted.—Ex.

Klondike Population.

Since Major Woodside left here and got to rubbering at Halifax to the danger of his neck, there have been several additions to the population that will not appear in the last census—returns. Notable among these is the case of a son born to Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Mogridge on March 1st.

Promising Quartz.

"Bennett & Payne are doing a lot of work on their quartz property on No. 35, left limit of Gold Run," said Peter Hartle this morning. "They are turning out some of the finest free milling ore you ever saw, with free gold in it that you can rub out with your fingers. They struck what you may call a blarney vein, but now they are running down a shaft and have every indication of having met with a true fissure vein between walls of schist and slate. When I was there Monday they had a lot of men at work and were feeling very well satisfied with the outlook."
