E. & D. BICYCLES

The great reason for the goodness of E. & D. bearings lies in their fourpoint design. The load passes directly through the balls, and there is no opportunity for the balls to jam.

In E. & D. four-point bearings the weight on any one point in the bearing is never more than 1-8th of the weight of the rider. In ordinary bicycles, the immense leverage between oup and cone bearings and cone cuts the bearings and breaks the balls.

To show how little the wear cale, & D. four-point bearings is, we first guarantee them for three years, and, condly, we oil them at the beginning of the season, and at the end, upon examination, the oil will be found

E. & D. bearings are excellent. In all parts, the four-point sysetm is employed. In 1900 E. & D. models, even the head bearings are equipped with four-point bearings.

come nearer to his ideal of a winter forcer than all others. He tried last season a house 100 feet in length and twenty in width, which yielded a crop of 4,500 pounds of fine fruit. In it he tried six kinds and attributed the success to the two named, and this season

Mr. Nicholson has always been a keen observer and has kept a cose record on the behavior of the kinds he has grown, and the results obtained in the way of price, etc., and he has this to say: "Years ago when I used to gc" could serve up one a portion. Now, with tomatoes averaging from 25 cents to 35 cents per pound during the winter season hotel keepers and chefs generally find they can afford to slice them, and consequently a larger tomato

And herein lies the value of the varieties in question. They grow to a good size and are solid; also they sat freely. Mr. Nicholson inclines to the opinion that English varieties always make better winter forcers than do the American kinds, the foreigner makes better foliage and grows more strongly during the winter. He claims here is the reason of a better set of fruit. 'Mr.

Last summer I had company, — a men and his wife. The man's hands and face had dry, scaly sores on them, and his head was covered with the same, his hair being full of those white scales or scabs. His wife said, "Some mornings she would find a tablespoonful or more of them in the bed." I asked him what alled him, and he replied "that he did not know." "Why don't you cure yourself?" "I would give a hundred dollars to be cured. I have paid out a lot of monoy, but don't get cured," he said. Well, I told him "I would cure him for less than that," and told him to get the Curicura remedies and he would be cured. As he was living in Bristol, Vt., I did not see him for some time after, and then he fairly shouted to me: "I am cured. Curicura has done it. The Lord bless you and Curicura." Mrs. SARAH E. MINER.

The long trucks used in carrying empty barrels to and from the cooperages are especially made for the purpose and kept constantly employed in this use, so that just as there are drivers steadily employed in other trades, so there are drivers whose steady work is driving barrel trucks. The barrel trucks used in New York and in Brooklyn are of a capacity of 150 to 225 barrels each. A few onehorse barrel trucks are used of a capacity of less than 150 barrels, but the double trucks predominate, and among these the trucks most commonly use are of a size having a capacity of about 200 flour barrels. There is running in Jersey City one barrel truck on which can be carried 200 barrels. The size of such a load can be imagined by those familiar with the big loads carried in New York. The load seen here is likely to be of 200 barrels, and this makes a load that looks like a small mountain. Empty flour barrels weigh about eighteen pounds each, so that besides making a very bulky load, 200 flour barrels make a tolerably heavy one being not very much under two tons

It takes care and skill to rope 200 barrels onto a truck so that they will stay there; however well stowed, they make a flexible, swingy load, that is always working somewhere, and if one barrel gets out, the whole load is in danger. But this rarely happens. The experienced driver, who knows just how to stow a load so as to get aboard the greatest possible number of barrels that he can carry, knows also just how to rope it so that it will stay on, and, with such great length of line around he always looks out for the slack. W'th this bulky load, projecting well beyond his wheel-base on the sides, and out indefinitely astern, the driver takes up a lot of room in the street, and he has to move with care. Other drivers look out for him, too, of course, but things that are fixed in their situation, or in their course, the driver has to keep clear of. He looks out, for instance, not to get too close to the curb"on one side, where there might be danger that he would brake off the street lamps, and on the other side he must look out and not get close enough to street car tracks to scrape the cars.. And another thing that he must look out for is, when he is on a street car track himself, the clide that the rear wheels of a vehicle often take on the track when a driver turns out from it; if he should let his rear wheels take a long slide his long, projecting load would sweep around in the street like a projecting timber, so that, generally speaking, the barrel truck driver has a good many things to look out for; but, as a rule, he gets through with his bulky load all right.

Is It the Eye of Your Wife.

A new fad is that of having the eye photographed. One always thinks he knows all about the eyes of his friends, but does he? Try him by asking him suddenly, the color, shape, size and expression of the eye of any one of his closest friends. There are few who can give accurate information. An eye which bas always been thought to be blue turns out to be brown, and a brown one is suddenly found to be be gray. Some gray eyes look to be black under intense emotion. In an idle moment a leading photographer made a photograph of an eye of a customer. He pushed the camera right to the eve and only that one feature. Its novelty has made it a fad.

Young girls are now sending photographs of their eyes, only one eye in the photograph, to their friends. It sent anonymously a great deal of fun is obtained in guessing whose it is. Small evening parties are entertained the tally cards have corresponding numbers. Even with the originals present it is puzzling.

Another form of amusement is to cut a small aperture in a sheet and guess the owner of each eye that lours through. There should be no light behind the sheet, so that there will be no silhouette of other features to help out the guessers.

The eye test may be followed by a full silhouette guessing game, also for prizes. The light is directly behind the head of the poser, who shows a full profile. The number of each poser is taken by someone behind the scenes, and the guesses are compared by number.

Another guessing contest may be given in the same evening by enlarging the hole made for the eye contest and clipping the hand through. The guessers file past and scrutinize the hand just as closely as they did the eye.

The display of mouths or ears will be equally funny. In fact, any one feature of the face, unless extremely prominent, is hardly recognizable when taken separately. Even extraordinarily formed features have probably never been noticed before. care should be taken on each exhibition to show but the one feature of each poser, as a combination will often give a good clew.

An evening spent in the study of one's friends in detail soon proves how unobserving we commonly are of the most striking physiognomies, and furnishes no end of amusement. Needless to say, each contestant should be a separate one, and even the posers should not be told what they are to do until the moment comes.

American freedom of thought or action was never intended to be con-strued into license. Yet, so far as our marriage laws are concerned, that is precisely the direction in which freedom is tending. We are horrified at the thought of free love; we go into spasms of virtuous indignation over free divorce; we hown down mightly upon Mormonism. And yet we sanction free marriage—absolutely free with everything eliminated; minister, magistrate and license. There's where our sublime inconsistency comes in—Edward Bok in the April Ladies' Home ournal. marriage laws are concerned, that is
