LOVE IN LABRADOR

A Country Where Flirting is Severely Condemned.

One of the features of May Canadian Home Journal is "The Schooner Girl," a story of love on the Labrador coast. It is an interesting picture of the customs and personalities and mental attitude of the fishermen of that rugged land. It is well illustrated from photographs of the country and people.

Clothilde, the Schooner Girl, suddenly rebels at the monotony of "clean and throw, clean and throw," and she and Nickalaus go off to gather bake apples. Since Clothilde came on the schooner six weeks before, Nickalaus has been her cavalier, according to Labrador ideas that means her accepted suitor. And now he tries to tell her some of his plans for the future, that he will work doubly hard to keep her from the less labor of the other wives. It is a terrible shock to his affection and pride when he learns that she has no intention of marrying him. Never had he thought she could be one of those "men trickers." Finally she explains who she is and from a lover, Nickalaus becomes a devoted attendant. And all ends happily.

O. her good short stories and the serious furnishing for several enjoyable hours of relaxation. Governing ladies will at once bury themselves in the pages of "My Lady's Garden" of which there are several in this number most beautifully illustrated and most practical.

WEDDING BELLS

TWEEIDIE—BROWN

The Congregational Church, Boston, was the scene of a quiet but very pretty wedding on the evening of April 24th, the contracting parties being Mr. Fred O. Brown of Marblehead, Mass., and Mrs. Myrtle L. Tweedie, of Derby, N. B. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. Ellsworth Shumaker. The bride was beautifully dressed in a light gray travelling suit with hat to match.

After the ceremony the happy couple went to their home in Marblehead where a reception was held. The bride was the recipient of numerous and costly presents among which was a dozen silver teaspoons from several gentlemen in the State House in Boston where the groom's father holds a life position.

MAY MAGAZINE

Canadian Home Journal has just come. It seems to grow larger and fresher and more attractive every month. The short stories and serials are very good and "The Schooner Girl," a tale of the Labrador coast gives us a dash of interest in people and customs. Several pages are devoted to flowers, telling what, how, and when to plant. There are words and music of a very song for the vocalist and pianist, fancy stitches for those who enjoy embroidery, menus for the housekeepers, recipes for the cooks, health and completion tips for the wholesome woman, stories for the juniors and fashions for everybody.
