

The Oblate and

When the brave Jesuit missionaries went forth to preach the Gospel to the savages, And face the perils of the Huron Land, Torture and death,—there went to share their fate, Assisting them in the great work of God, Devoted laymen, who gave all their zeal To serve the Fathers' wants; and these were called "Oblates," because they made oblation true. Of soul and body. One of them was named Robert Lecoq, and he was called "The Good." Because of his strong virtue. It befell That on a journey through the wilderness, This Robert chanced upon a Huron, who, In deadly sickness had been left to die By his hard-hearted friends. Compassion touched The Oblate's heart and he resolved to save The Huron's life. He built a cabin near, And taking the sick man he covered him With his own clothing. Then he started out To hunt and fish for food. Weeks passed away, And still the Oblate stayed with the sick man, Nursing him night and day, till health and strength Returned, and the poor Huron rejoiced and restored, A year passed by, And it so happened that Lecoq Returned By the same trail, and as he journeyed on, He was hard stricken by that dread disease, Small-pox; and thinking that his end was nigh, The Hurons who were with him stripped him bare Of all his clothes, and left him there to die On a bleak rock beside the Georgian Bay! For thirteen days he lay in anguish sore Awaiting death, but on the fourteenth day The savage he had rescued chanced to pass! And first the Huron did not know his friend Because of his disfigurement. But when The savage heard the voice he loved so well,— The voice of his deliverer—he wept For joy and sorrow! Lifting the sick man Upon his shoulders strong, he carried him For four long days until they reached a place Where he could get assistance. So did God Reward a kindly act done in His Name, And Robert who was called "The Good," was saved To care the Master's vineyard many years. And crown his labours by a glorious death. * Jesuit relations of 1640. Clev. edition XIX; Page 180. Robert Lecoq was killed by the Iroquois at Trois Rivières in 1650.

A Little Brother in Black

Continued. A crowd had collected. Water was brought; they bathed his forehead and the cut in his head still Thomas Jefferson did not open his eyes. A doctor had been called, but before he could get there Arthur and Nellie had the boy in the carriage and were on their way to the hospital. He would have been treated well at the hospital under any circumstances; but extraordinary kindness was shown Thomas Jefferson when Nellie and Arthur had engaged a room for him, and given orders that nothing was to be left undone that might tend to his comfort or hasten his recovery. It was a long while before the surgeons brought something like life into the face of the child. He was a doubly pathetic object, because of his helplessness and, because of his colour—black so often spelling friendless. But,

All Stuffed Up

Condition of many sufferers is such, especially in the morning, that difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat. No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, and irritates the throat, damages the stomach and affects the appetite. To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic. It was ill for four months with catarrh of the head and throat. Had a bad cough and raised blood. I had become discouraged when my husband bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and persuaded me to try it. I advise all to take it. It has cured and built me up. Mrs. Helen Johnson, West Lincoln, N. though his aunt deserted him—she refused to go to the hospital, averring that she had done enough for the child who was none of her own—Nellie and Arthur stood by him, remaining late at the hospital, and leaving with a promise to return on the morrow. By no care on their part could the accident have been averted; yet the feeling that in some way they were to blame cast a gloom over these young people, who but a short week before had pledged their troth to each other. "If I had walked home, it would not have happened," said Nellie. "But it was I who insisted on having out the horses," declared Arthur. "Well, God can bring good out of it," replied Nellie, not in cans, but simply expressing her inmost feelings. The next morning when they came to the hospital—Nellie bearing an armful of flowers—and were admitted to Thomas Jefferson's room, the nurse met them with a serious countenance. He had passed a bad night, wandering in his mind, she told them. "But he will recover?" asked Nellie. The nurse shook her head. "The doctor says he may linger on for days, or he may die at any moment."

Thomas Jefferson up to this had lain like one asleep on his bed, and they had spoken in whispers, so as not to disturb him. Now his eyes unsealed and he turned an anxious look on Nellie, who stood nearest to him. He recognized her, and a pitiful smile flickered and died out on his face. "Miss Nellie, please!" he said. "What is it, Thomas Jefferson? I am so sorry!" said Nellie, bending over him. "Yas'm," he answered, thankfully; adding with a pained interrogation: "Please'm, the lady says I'm gwine ter die!" "Oh!" cried Nellie, shocked that he should have overheard the nurse. "We hope to get you well."

"Yas'm; an' Miss Nellie, please'm, I mus' get well. I mus' grow up ter get babbize," he said, with an energy that surprised them all. "Don't worry about growing up," answered Nellie. "You can be baptized at any time. But see the flowers I have brought you!" And she held the geraniums and lilies of the valley for him to inhale their perfume. His face lit up. "Give 'm to the beautiful Lady," he said. "She an' our mother?" "What does he mean by the beautiful Lady?" asked Nellie. "I think he must have been to the Church of the Assumption," said Arthur. Nellie drew herself up stiffly. "The Catholic church where you are so fond of going?" she said, reproachfully. His reply was interrupted by Thomas.

"I's got his name now—Fatha Brooke!" he cried. And then, half sobbing: "Miss Nellie, is you gone?" "I am here," said Nellie, softly. "Fatha Brooke gave me a seat jus' like white folks, an' I didn't outstay like them. I did after he done gone an' lef me. Tell him, please'm."

She had not the faintest idea what the boy meant, and what she did she always declares her good angel counselled her to do. "Would you like to see him and tell 'im yourself?" she inquired.

That Racking Persistent Cough

Should Never Be Neglected. The constant hacking, racking, persistent cough that sticks to you in spite of everything you have done to get rid of it, means danger. The longer the cough sticks, the more serious menace it becomes to your health. It is a very easy matter to get rid of the cold at the outset by using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

In nearly every case it will allay the inflammation, soothe the irritation, heal the diseased mucous lining of the lungs and bronchial tubes, and thus rid the system of all the bad effects of the lingering cough or cold. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has been universally used for the past 20 years, and so great has been its success, it is only natural that a great many imitations have been placed on the market. Don't accept any of these, so-called Pine Syrups. Get the original "Dr. Wood's."

Put up in a yellow wrapper; 3 pence tins; the trade mark, Price 25c, and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Millburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. "Yas'm, please'm," said Thomas Jefferson eagerly. On their way to Fatha Brooke's, Nellie told Arthur her fears that the priest would not thank her for troubling him; but Arthur thought otherwise. After events proved he was right, Fatha Brooke was much interested, and said he would go to Thomas at once.

Announcement

For the information of our many patrons, in both town and country, we deem it necessary to announce that the Coal Business, successfully carried on in the past by the late Mr. Charles Lyons, will be continued by the Estate, under the old firm name of C. Lyons & Co.

By maintaining a high standard of service and by courteous and honest treatment of the public, this firm has, for period of more than a quarter of a century, enjoyed a large and ever-increasing patronage; and in announcing our intention of "carrying on," we desire, most earnestly, to give expression to our appreciation thereof. We are deeply grateful to the firm's many patrons for their constant manifestation of confidence in it in the past, and we assure them that if they favor us with a similar evidence of their good-will in future there shall be no economy of effort on our part to make our intercourse both pleasant and profitable to them.

As we possess almost unlimited facilities for supplying the coal trade; and as we are desirous of extending our already large business, we respectfully invite the patronage of new customers; and if we succeed in thus increasing our present connection, we guarantee that we shall be indefatigable in our endeavor to justify the confidence of our new friends.

We again thank our patrons for their past generous patronage, and respectfully solicit a renewal of their esteemed custom.

OPERATING ONE HOUR EARLIER Important Daylight Saving Change of Time at 2 a.m. Sunday, March 30, 1920

All clocks and watches used in operation of Canadian National Railway will at 2 a.m. Sunday, March 30th, be advanced one hour. To prevent serious confusion and inconvenience, to the public the attention of all concerned is directed to the following conditions resulting from the important change of time:

If cities, towns, villages and other municipal bodies do not change their local time to correspond with the new Railway time, all concerned should keep in mind that while trains continue to leave Railway Stations on present schedule, such schedule will be operated one hour ahead of present local time. Therefore any municipality where local time is not changed to correspond with the new Railway time, passengers must reach Railway Station ONE HOUR EARLIER than shown in current folders and public time posters.

Where municipal time is changed to correspond with the new Railway time, passengers will not experience difficulty growing out of the change. April 2, 1919
