General Botha was the first Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, and he has gone to the country on his record. The Union of South Africa was formed under the South Africa Act which passed the home parliament on Sept. 20th, 1909. Under its term the self-governing colonies of Cape Colony, Natal, the Transvaal and the the Labrador fleet reported this sea-Orange River Colony formed the Inion of South Africa. The Union Parliament has two chambers, a Senate and a House of Assembly. Senate consists of forty members. The House of Assembly has 121 members distributed as follows: Cape of Good Hope 51, Natal 17, Transvaal 36, and the Orange Free State 17. The members must be British subjects of European descent. General Botha has had struggle since the war commenced. He has had to face and put down a rebellion, and he also undertook opposed by the Nationalists, led General Herzog, the campaign which brought German S. W. Four parties are in the field in this Election: South African peared in yesterday's Mail & Advocate Smartt; the Nationalists led by General Herzog and the Labour party. An arrangement was made to avoid three cornered contests. In a number of constituencies Botha withdrew his candidates in favour of Unionist, and the Unionists withdraw from others in favor of Botha's men. In the Orange Free States, where Herzog is supposed to be strong, Botha is contesting every one of the seventeen seats. Sir Thomas Smartt, although there is no coalition between the Unionists and the South African Party, has undertaken to support Genperial interests are involved. The issue between Botha and Herzog is defined as one between the "One Streamers" and the "Two Streamers." Botha is urging unity of action be tween the Dutch and English, and ask ing them to persevere on the road o mutual respect and co-operation, lead-

Inter-Collegiate Football Yesterday.

Collegians and St. Bon's Play to Draw—A Fine Exhibition.

What was admitted to be a very clever exhibition of football was seen on St. George Field yesterday afternoon between the Collegians and St. College supporters. Play opened at a fast pace, both sides making some vigorous rushes. Good combination was very much in evidence. After not last long, though, about ten minutes from the start the Collegian boys scored as a result of a clever bit of play. On resumption matters became lively and excitement ran high. The St. Bon's struggled hard to equalize and lost some good chances though their opponents were equally unfortunate in doubling their Just before full time was announced the St. Bon's scored the equalizing goal. Mr. W. J. Higgins acted as referee.

"Just as the gray dawn was breaking he asked me to lay his rifle by him and after I had done so he nulled me down by his side, and I just on the road now. I can hear someone sounding the great challenge, "Halt, who comes there?" With a tremendous effort he staggered up and, in a terrible voice, shouted, with almost superhuman strength, 'An Englishman, who did his duty.' Shall I ever forget that scene! The gray dawn breaking in the east, and over all an ineffable peace seemed to reign. The only sound to be heard was an aerocould not be held last summer owing plane that was just going over our lines and the drone of its propeller.

Big Catch of Walrus. Eskimo Crew of Steamer Bag 1,353

Off Siberian Coast. Seattle, Wash., Oct. 16.- After a successful walrus hunting expedition in the Arctic, headed by Capt. O. A. Aannevik, noted navigator of the Far North, the steamer Corwin has reach-

The Corwin left this port last May and after delivering cargo and passengers at Nome was outfitted for cruise to the Siberian coast and far into the Arctic. With all her passenger accommodations removed Capt. Annevik heading the expedition and Capt. R. J. Healey acting as navi-Nome for the Siberian coast. Twenty Eskimos, skilled in hunting walrus were obtained and with her officers, the only white men aboard, the vessel began her cruise in search of big cruises in the Arctic; going as far as latitude 69.40 north. On the first cruise her crew bagged 837 walrus, were discharged into the freighter Latouche at Nome and sent to Seattle. On the second expedition the crew bagged 516 walrus, from which were obtained 100 tons of hides, 4,000 pounds of ivory and 165 barrels of oil, the vessel's cargo when she arrived in Seattle.

"There were unusual ice condition in the far north this year and the bergs and floes were further south than I have ever seen them in my cruises of the Arctic," said Capt. Aannevik. "There was a big blizzard on the Fourth of July in the Arctic and more than ten inches of snow was on the Corwin's deck before the storm was over. There was also a great deal of ice off the Siberian coast, especially near Cape North. Our catch of a total of 1,353 walrus on the two cruises is the largest ever made by one vessel in a season. It is the record for Arctic waters. "The Eskimos are very prosperous as a result of their successful hunts in the Arctic and almost dictate their terms to the owners and masters of vessels or cruisers. The twenty Eskimos we had were paid by the day in cash. They are getting to be shrewd to be beaten in the deal it is always Prince Alexander Refuses to Sell His Country to Austria.—Greek Munitions for the Turks.

Chicago, Oct. 16 .- A cable to the ribune from Paris, says: The information reached here to day that Austria a month ago offered tempting terms of peace to Serbia. And only the intervention of Prince Alexander, who said that Serbia was ready to die by the sword rather than be a traitor, prevented an acceptance gator, the Corwin steamed direct from of the offer. Austria's peace terms were that Serbia should retain all territory held before the war, with the exception of Bulgarian Macedonia, which was to be handed back to Bulgaria. Serbia, of course, was to allow Austria and Germany to send The Corwin made two hunting troops and munitions to Constantinople through Serbia and Bulgaria via Belgrade.

For this purpose the Belgrade sec or of the country was to be ceded to Austria, for the period of the war, Austria guaranteeing to return it at the end of the hostilities.

The Serbian council was seriously considering the offer which, in their view, required no greater sacrifices on the part of Serbia than the allies' proposals to pacify Bulgaria, would let Serbia out of more fighting when Price Alexander dramatically ended the discussion.

It also became known here to-day in connection with the refusal of Greece to support Serbia that Greece has for some time been actively sup plying Turkey with munitions of war. Greek vessels have been obtaining permission to enter the port of Smyr a for cargoes of figs contracted for before the war. Ostensibly the Greek vessels entered Smyrna with light cargo, but in reality they were every time loaded with munitions for the Turkish Army. Only recently have the allies learned what was going on and Greek vessels going to Smyrna are now stopped.
