Some Thoughts in Dreams.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

What absolutely uncanny things dreams are! Sometime ago I read an article which claimed that all dreams are the expression of either desire or fear, usually a subconscious. When sleep has slipped the leash from the subconscious mind, the desire or fear expresses itself in dreams.

For instance, that familiar dream through which everyone passes about once in so often, that one is in a public place with an insufficient quota of clothes, is an expression of our subconscious fear that we will sometime disgrace ourselves that way. Some Place I Couldn't Afford To Go.

My own particular dream of this nature is that I am in some distant place to which I really have neither the time nor money to go. "How did I ever come here?" I wonder. And then I think with true waking practicality, "Well, I had no right to spend all that money but now I'm here I'll do such and such a thing."

However, I think it is quite too large a claim to say that all dreams have these two motives.

My Passion For Fixing Up Rooms Displays Itself in Dreams.

Another interesting claim of the dream psychologists is that we would never do anything in a dream that we would be incapable of doing in our waking hours. I wonder. Seems to me I have. But it is amusing to see how close we run to form in our dreams. Last night, for instance, I dreamed that I was trying to rent a room in New York. They showed me a great big dreary attic room. "That wouldn't do for me," I said, "but see here, what a splendid place it would be for four girls to live together." And then I launched into a full description of how he could just clean up the paint put a yellow paper on the walls, inexpensive muslin curtains at the windows, set up four little iron beds and get twice what he was asking for the room.

All The Time We Know It Is A Dream
Another interesting thing about dreams is the way we are sometimes conscious in the midst of them that we are dreaming. I suppose we are not perfectly asleep then. "I dreamed a dream and I dreamed that the dream was true" says the poet. I do that, but I'm more apt to dream that it isn't true. One night—

But perhaps that's all you want to hear about my dreams. Doubtless you have interesting things you might tell about your own. Send them along and some day we'll have a dream symposium. And be sure to tell us if you have any reason to believe in dream signs.

Recruiting Tour.

(Concluded.)

March 6th.—Lay at Bay-du-Nord all day. Very severe storm raging—S. E. and snow. Could not possibly proceed.

March 7th.—Left 7 a.m. for English Harbour East. No young men here, all left for Western fishery. Left here for Harbour Mille and lay off. Could not approach to enter so boat went in with squad under Mr. Cave. Held meeting but nothing doing so left for Little Bay—no men as usual—and nothing doing we again left for Bay L'Argent and arrived at 5.30 p.m. Here arrangements were made for meeting at 8 p.m. J. R. Courage, Esq., S. M. in the chair, who I thought acted in rather a discouraging way at the meeting. He commenced by throwing cold water on our efforts from the first by assuring us before the people at the meeting that we would have to go to some other harbour for recruits, but in spite of this we got one, and I do think that only for the conduct of the S. M. we should have got more. Fiona lay here all night.

March 8th.—Left Bay L'Argent for Anderson's Cove where ship had to water up, the tanks being empty, and a squad under Mr. Cave walked to Stone's Cove at 9 a.m. and returned at 12 noon. Nothing doing, and after dinner ship left for Rencontre East our last port and after canvassing the settlement held patriotic meeting at 7.30 p.m. in the Roman Catholic Schoolroom to a good audience. Miss White, the school teacher, being very enthusiastic. There were many young men here and several offers but the parents again intervened and they were prevented from volunteering. Went on board very tired at 10 p.m. and Capt. English immediately got under way and took his departure for Placentia.

March 9th.—This morning Dodding Head, Burin, on port bow when Capt. bore away for Placentia wind south, strong, with good sea, and arrived at Placentia without mishap at 12.30 p. m. Squad debarked at 3 p.m. and went to Wilcox's boarding house for rest until Saturday morning. Fiona going to Argentina.

March 10th.—Entrained at Placentia for St. John's at 7.30 a.m. and arrived in City at 2.15 p.m. Here we disembarked each going his own way, and your recruiting officer reported to W. B. Grieve, Esq., Secretary. No time being available for further work I took train for home, Topsail. (Signed)

War News.

Messages Received Previous to 9 A. M.

PENFIELD IN SWITZERLAND.
PARIS, April 9.
The arrival at Zurich last night of Frederick C. Penfield, American Ambassador to Austria, Mrs. Penfield and three members of the embassy staff, is reported in a Havas despatch from St. Gall, Switzerland.

WILSON'S REPLY TO KING GEORGE
LONDON, April 9.
The reply of President Wilson to the message sent to him by King George as given out here officially today is as follows: "To His Majesty George V., King and Emperor,—Your eloquent message comes to me at this critical moment of our national life as proof of the community of sentiment among the free peoples of the world now striving to defend their ideals, to maintain the blessings of national independence and uphold the rights of humanity. In the name of the American people and Government to which they look for guidance I thank you for your inspiring words. Woodrow Wilson."

AMERICA'S TRADE RELATIONS.

WASHINGTON, April 9.
America's commercial relations with the Allies and with the Central Powers are being studied by a Government committee to determine whether trade legislation has been made necessary by the declaration of war with Germany. Britain's "Trading with Enemy" Act and the Allies' co-operation measures are under investigation. Although no move has been made yet toward commercial co-operation with the Allies, there is every reason to believe the United States will decide to co-operate fully in trade matters as in military affairs. The Government probably immediately will invite the new commercial committees from the Allies to visit Washington. America's declaration of war has changed the whole fabric of the trade relations of this country. The United States will aid Britain in rationing northern European neutrals through which countries heretofore a vast amount of supplies has reached Germany from the U.S. Now it is as much to the interest of the Allies to see that neutral countries contiguous to Germany receive from shippers only enough supplies to meet their own immediate needs. One of Britain's first acts now probably will be to make inoperative its black list decree in so far as it applies to the States.

H. N. Concert.

The concert given by the Holy Name Amusement Club in the Aulla Maxima of St. Bon's College last night for a worthy object, was a great success. The songs, dances and sketches by the minstrel troupe were mirth-provoking, as was also ventriloquist Wheeler's performance. The production of "The Shoal Bay Treasure" and the tableau "Rule Britannia" brought the event to a close.
