

FACTS ABOUT TEA SERIES—No. 5

What 'Orange Pekoe' Means

Many buyers of tea have come to ask for 'Orange Pekoe' believing that it signifies fine quality. This is not, however, necessarily the case. In the trade 'Orange Pekoe' is only a name given to the first leaf below the bud or tip on any Indian or Ceylon tea bush. An 'Orange Pekoe' leaf grown at a high elevation usually possesses a very fine flavour. If, however, the plant is grown at a low elevation, it may still be 'Orange Pekoe' but also be of very poor quality. The consumer's only safeguard is to buy a tea of recognized goodness. High grown 'Orange Pekoes' comprise a large part of every blend of "SALADA" and give to "SALADA" its unequalled flavour.

"U" GRADUATES
GOOD IN BUSINESS

But Industry Cannot Absorb All of Them Now

CONFERENCE STATEMENT

Representatives From Canada
and U. S. Meet Here

That Canada cannot at the present time absorb all the graduates of technical and business schools was the consensus of opinion of some 25 prominent business men who wrestled with the problem of Canadian opportunity for the college graduate at a round-table discussion at the university yesterday.

Prof. E. H. Morrow, head of the department of commercial economics, introducing the question, stated that the policy of the university was not only to train men in business administrative methods, but to place them upon graduation in organizations which could offer possibilities for the future.

"We owe it to our students," Prof. Morrow declared, "not only to train them, but to see that they are so placed that the ambitious student may grow and expand."

"The problem which we are facing today is the fact that our trained men go to the United States. What are we going to do about it? We can't keep these young men on toast. When they graduate they must have work. Can we therefore ensure them if they go to the United States? Are we going to continue to train men for the United States? These are questions which we must face."

TOO MANY
The following extract from a letter from one of the largest business men of Canada was read by Prof. Morrow: "Unquestionably this country does not appear able at the present time to really absorb all graduates of technical and business schools. Over a period of years we have lost no opportunity to find places in organizations, either Canadian or elsewhere, for young men of this class."

J. B. LeClaire, representing the H. J. Heinz Company, of Pittsburgh, Pa., who visited the university with the view of obtaining college graduates to train in their business, stated that it was not the intention of the Heinz Company to steal Canadian graduates.

Major Gordon Ingram paid a tribute to the college man in business from a recent personal experience and expressed the opinion that business men were just beginning to appreciate the value of such men.

CANNOT COMPLETE
Arthur White, of the George White & Sons, expressed the opinion that Canada, with its comparatively few large organizations, could scarcely hope to compete with the United States in the question of absorbing graduates.

"Let them go to the United States," Mr. White declared. "We can't absorb them at the present time, but they'll come back to us."

The conference was arranged by the employment service operating in connection with the department of commercial economics. During the morning many of the business men interviewed members of the graduating year, with a view to offering employment, of both permanent and temporary nature. The custom of business men of Ontario seeking college undergraduates for summer employment is becoming increasingly popular, and many students of the University of Western Ontario will fill temporary positions with Western Ontario firms throughout the summer. By this system business men hope to obtain at graduation a trained man who has already some insight into his particular type of business.

EARL WANTS PROBE IN TRAFFIC IN TITLES

British Peer Will Bring the Question
Before the Government

LONDON, April 30.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—The Earl of Selborne intends bringing up in the House of Lords the question of trafficking in the conferring of titles. He has given notice that on May 12 he will ask whether the Government has re-established the honours committee of the Privy Council, and, if so, who are its members. He will also ask whether the Government intends to introduce a measure at the present session of Parliament making it illegal to attempt to traffic in the conferring of honours.

The trouble over the conferring of honours began in the summer of 1922, when Sir Joseph Robinson, a South African magnate, was offered a peerage. Such a storm was raised that Sir Joseph declined the honor. Thereupon the British press entered into a campaign to put a stop to the traffic in titles.

Lloyd George's committee or commission, which inquired into the traffic, was announced in the House of Commons on August 3, 1922, and was comprised as follows:
Lord Dunedin, chairman; Lord Denman; Arthur Henderson, M. P.; Sir Evelyn Cecil, M. P.; Sir Samuel Hoare, M. P., and Sir George Croydon Marks, M. P.

SIX-HOUR SNOWSTORM
BREAKS UP WARM SPRING

LEEDS, England, April 30.—Now that spring is here, so are the curiosities of the English climate. This morning there was warm sunshine in Yorkshire. Then winter came, and a six-hour snowstorm raged over the moors, making travel along the roads almost impossible. The northern professional golf tournament at Kelgley was postponed, the route of Cycle Union's 1,000-mile ride was altered, and sheep farmers throughout the district were busy saving their lambs from the storm.

SHOPPING EVENTS
FEATURED TO-MORROW

Ensemble Suits, $25, $35

Up-to-date spring wardrobes don't dream of doing without an ensemble. In the first place, the ensemble idea is foremost in new fashions. In the second place, an ensemble is a most emphatically useful thing to have. And, again, the cost is so strikingly moderate.

Models at $25.00 and at $35.00 vary from flannel ensembles of sportlike air, to more formal affairs of twill and repp. The matching frock is most often of crepe, printed or plain — and sometimes with hem border of the coat fabric; sizes 16 to 42.

Silk, Satin
And Crepe Dresses
$18.75 Up To $35.00

Everything that distinguishes a smart frock of this season from a smart frock of other seasons has been brought into play in this group of afternoon models.

There's the long scarf collar—small rippling knee flounces — pleats that conceal fullness, and with the slightest motion produce the animated silhouette; cap sleeves for one extreme — long and full peasant sleeves for another.

In a host of new shades. Prices alone are easily classified; they stay firmly between $18.75 and $35.00.

EMPLOY NEW METHODS WITH ANAESTHETICS

LONDON, April 30.—A new method of what is known as regional anaesthesia has been under observation for some months past, notably at the Westminster Hospital, and is now becoming part of the routine practice of that hospital.

The new anaesthetic makes it possible for the first time to operate on the very infirm, on diabetics and on those suffering from heart, lung and kidney trouble. Hitherto, only palliative methods have been practicable. It now becomes feasible for the surgeon to intervene when under ordinary conditions the patient would inevitably have died owing to the operation.

Hospital cases often arrive for treatment at so late a stage that nothing can be done for them. By the elimination of surgical shock such cases can now be treated with success.

Many advantages are claimed for the new method as compared with general anaesthetics, such as chloroform and ether. It was originally worked out on the continent and has been extensively used there.

It consists in the injection of the group of local anaesthetics known generally as novocain directly on to the nerve supplying the part to be operated on, and among the special advantages claimed for it are the following:

It establishes a complete barrier between the brain and spinal cord on the one hand and the part that is being operated on on the other; whereas, in the case of general anaesthetics the pain is transmitted by a sort of barage fire to the brain, even though this is unconscious, and shock results.

It reduces the operation's death rate in certain types of operation where this is inevitably high, the indication being that in some cases the percentage death rate may drop from 30 to three per cent.

There seems reason to hope that the operation of the future may be carried out by inducing a natural sleep in the patient, and by then giving him regional anaesthesia, and allowing him to recover normally from his natural sleep.

It reduces the operation's death rate in certain types of operation where trated an attempt to rob a store in Pine avenue by routing three burglars. Shots were exchanged, but neither policeman nor burglars were hit and the latter escaped in a car.
