The daily teaching of small brothers and sisters, the daily patching and darning of their well-worn garments, all had become to her like the bondage in Egypt. She had performed her tasks in the cold spathy of grief and darkness lung over her soul. The little light in her life, the few pleasures that eased her slavery, were all 'lone' by E. Gar. It seemed ungrateful to shrink from him, and yet she did.

Miscellaneous.
CHICAGO GRAIN ELEVATORS.—Their aggregate capacity is 16,840,000 bushels; individual capacity from 90,000 to 2,000,000 bushels. They are a few miles from the city, but those at their disposal of the Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy Railroad give nearly one-third of the whole capacity. One of the newest of them, the 'elevator D', may be taken as what is the fashion to call a 'representative' elevator. It certainly is a very fine one, and should be seen by all inquiring visitors. It was begun in 1875, is 386 feet long, 100 feet wide, and 145 feet high, required five million feet of lumber in its construction, and cost $2,500,000. One can easily obtain permission to inspect it, and the superintendent will enlighten his ignorance, or increase and qualify his knowledge, as the case may be. He is concluded to a little 'elevator' (here is this confusion of names again; it is what our English friends call a 'lift'), and hoisted to the top floor. At one end he sees, swiftly passing over a large roller, the largest belt in the United States, 280 feet in length, and eighty inches in width. Below him are great scales, and bins six feet deep. A large and suggestive dust gradually covers his clothes as he listens to the polite elevator, who is telling him that there are twenty-five standard Fairbanks scales in the building, and that they weigh so accurately that in an aggregate of six car-loads there was only a shortage of thirty pounds between 'St. Joe' and Chicago. But look over the engine when the bell rings. A train has come in below full of grain in bulk. Into a car goes a great shaft, or 'conveyor,' somebody pulls a lever, and presto! away has gone that grain into a weighing bin, then down into another receptacle of profundity and security. It draws on the observer's mind that one man's property in the means kept separate from another man's. This grain is all graded by a State inspector; it is 'weighed in' and 'weighed out,' and all that is useful to the contents of each bin should be homogeneous. But here comes another train—empty cars, with shells, to laboriously handle the grain? Not at all. Down comes that shute again, boards are put across the doorways of the cars, and in one of them after another the grain runs up foot by foot. In less time than any one would think possible—a few minutes to each car—the train is entirely loaded, its doors are closed, and the engine is drawing it out again, to be delivered to one of the Eastern trunk lines.—Harper's Magazine.

Correspondence. Notes by Road and Rail.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions of our correspondents. Notes by Road and Rail. Mr. Editor,— Sir: If you ascend to the top of the South Mountain, there will at once be presented to the mind sufficient to arouse a wise and philosophical standpoint (healthy, or to be more explicit, love of beauty and country. It is from this eminence that the valley becomes interesting,—its broad acres, comfortable homes and heaven pointed spires, alike infuse into the mind mingled feelings of poetry and demonstration. I do not purpose to soar up to the dizzy heights of imagination, but note items as they occur in a simple way. At Albany we noticed part of the Niagara & Atlantic Railway, under construction, finding its way across the bank of a serpentine stream along the meadows and upland, where 'you and I or nobody knows how oats, peas, beans and barley grow.' Here, too, is a nice little school, with some seventeen scholars, with an average of fifteen,—perhaps the best average in the County. Miss Whitman supplied the school with a composition on 'Autumn Leaves,' and Miss McKewen on 'Neglect,' both admirable articles. Inglesville rejoices in a lodge of I. O. G. T. Mr. Norman Dunn has charge of the school, under whose direction it is progressing favorably. Among the hard working, persevering farmers at Cleveland is Mr. W. H. Miller. It is a caution how he has chopped trees, pulled stumps, removed boulders, and buried forever out of sight millions of rocks in clearing his farm, to say nothing of the young orchard he is raising. To Mr. A. J. Sanders the writer is indebted for a lucid view of trees laden with apples, a description of which would border on the 'Arabian Nights' Entertainment,—sufficient to say, notwithstanding the weight, further along some young man was picking apples—placing a ladder against a tree, singing 'do, ra, me, fa, sol, la, se, do'—the tough, bent, beautifully barked, and together with the ladder and do, ra, me, fa, sol, la, se, do, he suddenly changed to language which, for sublimity, was remarkable. At Berwick every other house had a 'single' out—'Hotel' or 'Boarding House,' etc. A Camp-Meeting twice a year would doubtless benefit this section of Kings. Waterville is a quiet little place. There is no use talking. Waterville has a splendid supply of girls—pretty, not handsome—bright, not foolish—careful, not formal—and well calculated for first class wives—and goodness knows there is need of this style of women. Three stores supply the people with this, that and the other. There is a Freshly-baked Church—Rev. A. M. Douglas officiating. On Sabbath evening he preached rather a deep sermon, founded upon the words 'Choose you this day whom you will serve.' The people of Waterville have certainly a man of talent, comparatively speaking. A young man, his fame as a minister of Christ looks prosperous and beneficial to the congregation under his charge. Axon.

Well, John, said the captain, 'that'll be another dollar 'n fifty cents.' 'Are we married under the other?' 'Not by a darned sight ye ain't,' quoth the captain, with emphasis; 'but the fee comes in here.' After some fumbling it was produced and handed to the court, 'who examines' it to make sure that it was all right, and then poked it, and continued: 'Know all men by these presents, that I, Captain J. of Halsey, North Carolina, being in good health and of sound and dispositive mind, in consideration of a dollar 'n fifty cents to me in hand paid, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, do and by these presents have declared you man and wife during good behaviour, and until otherwise ordered by the court.' Chicago Correspondence of Toronto Globe. Chicago will have something new under the sun, within ten days from date. The police authorities, after long studying and pondering the matter, have decided on arrangements, and the telephone will be brought at last to play effective service in the cause of law and good order. The fact is, the telephone arrangement, notice as at the number of about thirty, have been erected in different parts of the city. They are large enough to allow a man to step aside, so as to exclude the noise of the street and intruders, are painted blue, of neat shape, and are the latest and most conspicuous of recent street sights. Keys to these boxes are furnished to reputable citizens living in the vicinity, but entrance cannot be obtained without the use of the keys. The keys are carried by police-men after the manner of the keys in safe deposit vaults. Entrance having been thus obtained, by simply pulling a peg in the telephone arrangement, notice is at once given to the Central Police Station. There a wagon, two horses, and a guard of three officers will always be on duty, ready to start at the signal, for the place from which the alarm has been sounded. Upon reaching the scene the captain of the relay, after making examination, will at once send a message to the telephone office, reporting the facts to the station. If further assistance is needed, a general alarm will be sounded by striking a signal on the bells of the Police Stations. This will call all the officers on beat in the district to the several telephone boxes, and enable the Superintendent to at once communicate with them to inform the patrolling force. By this means every officer can at once be put in possession of the description of a thief or burglar, the direction in which he has started, and other particulars, and set to work to effect his capture. The wagon is provided with an ambulance, and rings at the bottom will enable obstreperous prisoners to be conveniently shackled. It is also proposed to require patrolmen to report from the various boxes, which will be a very effective way of preventing mislingering. The present attempt is regarded as somewhat in the light of an experiment. Should it prove successful, a large number of boxes will be erected, and it is claimed that, by means thereof, a large saving may be effected in patrol services, more than sufficient to counter-balance the additional expense. The police authorities are sanguine of the success of the experiment.

Urgess S. Grant.—There he sits with his back to a tree and his face to a cigar. Down comes a scout and says: 'General, the left has turned, and is in full retreat.' He takes out his cigar just long enough to say: 'I don't believe it, and smokes on. Presently the men come streaming by, and there he sits. At last he gets up and walks out into the company of the fugitives, and says to them: 'Boys, you can't now for exercise if you want to; but you must fight it out here and now, for you can't get over the river.' And he went and sat down again, and let them run. 'Scarcely kindness does to your fellow-creatures are as beautiful as secret injuries are detestable. To be invidiously good is as godlike as to be invidiously evil is diabolical. —The whole thing in a nutshell.—A worm.

A North Carolina Marriage.—Soon after the close of the last war Captain X was appointed a justice of the peace in a country place not far from Raleigh, North Carolina. His father had been a planter in a rather small way, and his son the captain had acquired considerable experience in the business of managing real estate, drawing up deeds, etc., during the father's time, and then in settling the estate after his decease. Farther than this he had no legal knowledge, and, indeed, his entire stock of 'book-learning' was small and poorly selected, but any lack in general information was fully made up, for his uses, by self-education. Late one afternoon as he was riding home from Raleigh, he met some woman and two men, who hailed him and inquired if he was Captain X. The young woman and one of the men wished to be married at once, the other had come as a witness. They had procured the necessary license, but an irate father was on their path, and swore that they should never be married. It was considered on all accounts safest to have the ceremony performed without delay, and they pacified the father. Now the captain had never witnessed a marriage, and naturally had no clear idea of what was usual in such cases. He remembered having seen a book about the house years before with a form for marriage in it, but what the ceremony was, and naturally had no clear idea of what was usual in such cases.
